Crowley Fuels Alaska

Serving Alaska Since Before Statehood

Crowley knows Alaska. We began serving the people and businesses of Alaska in 1953, six years before statehood. Since then, we've built a reputation for consistently providing unique solutions to Alaska's logistics, fuel and marine transportation challenges. Read more about our history in the state.

Fuel products and services

Crowley Fuels transports, stores, sells and delivers high-quality fuels, with an emphasis on service, reliability and safety. We are the state's largest wholesaler of quality fuel products, including diesel, heating fuel, propane, gasoline, aviation fuels, marine fuels and packaged petroleum products.

Our 18 petroleum terminals across the state have a combined 76 million gallons of storage capacity, and we utilize our diverse distribution channels - on land, over water and occasionally through the air - to deliver the fuel Alaskans need to live, work and play in more than 280 communities across the state. #### Our commitment to safety

Zero harm to people, property and the environment is of the highest priority at Crowley. Our safety record is evidence of the effectiveness of our safety culture, which includes regular, required trainings and thorough safety policies and procedures. At Crowley, our employees and business partners have the responsibility and authority to speak up and stop unsafe operations, without question or repercussion.

Our commitment to safety has been recognized by the best in the industry – from the ConocoPhillips Alaska/Alaska Trucking Association Industrial Fleet Safety Award, which we have been honored with five out of the last eight years, to the Shell Oil Products distinction as “HSSE Wholesaler of the Year,” from which we were selected among Shell's entire network of U.S. petroleum wholesalers. This award-winning service reflects the results of our deliberate investment in our staff and equipment to serve our customers with safety as our first priority.

Our people

At Crowley, our goal is to foster a culture that attracts the best talent, celebrates diversity and inclusion, and encourages innovation. We're proud of our 350 employees, who live and work in Alaska, right alongside the customers we serve.

We are always searching for great people to join our team. We offer competitive pay, a comprehensive benefits package and opportunities for employees to learn, grow and advance their careers. Learn more about working at Crowley or browse our open positions.

Our fuel-delivery fleet

On the highway system, our drivers cover more than 3 million miles annually using our extensive company-owned and -operated fleet of line haul and local trucks, including 160 delivery vehicles and 65 tank trailers. Each of our terminals also have delivery vehicles that serve their local communities.

Because much of the state is not accessible by road, we also have a fleet of marine vessels specially designed to face Alaska's unique challenges. These vessels - combined with the skill and expertise of our experienced mariners - allow us to reach otherwise inaccessible locations to serve the fuel needs of those in Alaska's most remote areas, including the western coast and inland river systems.

We continually invest in our equipment to support safe, efficient operations. We are proud to have the youngest truck fleet in the Alaska industry and we look forward to introducing the latest addition to our marine fleet in the coming year.

Giving back

Our employees live and work here, alongside the people and businesses we serve. We understand the importance of supporting the communities where we do business. We demonstrate this commitment to community in various ways, including the Crowley scholarship program and support of many local events and organizations. Additionally, the Crowley Cares Foundation matches employee contributions to local charitable organizations for maximum benefit. Read more about how Crowley cares for our communities.

Crowley Fuels - About (new content, no page currently exists)

Crowley Knows Alaska

As a company with roots stretching back before statehood, Crowley knows Alaska. We began serving the people and businesses of Alaska in 1953. Since then, we've built a reputation for consistently providing unique solutions to Alaska's logistics, fuel and marine transportation challenges. Here are some highlights of our history in Alaska:

- 1953: Six years before Alaska became a state, a Crowley company pioneered the use of barges to transport railcars between Ketchikan and Prince Rupert.
- 1956: As Crowley's footprint grew, we began supplying the Distant Early Warning (DEW) line radar installations for the U.S. Air Force. This marked the first penetration of the Arctic by a commercial tug and barge service.
- 1958: Answering the call of Alaskans, Crowley became the first company to offer common carrier transportation of cargo in containers from the Lower 48 to Alaska utilizing traditional tug and barge service.
- 1963: The common carrier transport expanded as Crowley began the Alaska Hydro-Train. The Hydro-Train melded rail and barge transportation as Crowley loaded rail cars in Seattle and delivered them to Whittier for transport on to Anchorage and Fairbanks.
- 1968: Crowley conducted the first of many sealifts of oversized, overweight cargo in support of oil exploration at Prudhoe Bay. Since then, Crowley has moved individual modules as tall as 10-story buildings and weighing more than 6,000 tons.
- 1973: As the Trans-Alaska Pipeline Authorization Act was signed into law, Crowley acquired Mukluk Freight Lines and, through 1975, hauled more 48-inch pipe for the 800-mile pipeline than any other carrier. Crowley also contributed to pipeline construction through a contract with Bechtel.
- 1970s: Crowley was involved in other notable projects such as North-South runway at Ted Stevens Anchorage Airport, many miles of highways, and Duck Island, the first gravel drilling island in the Beaufort Sea for Exxon.
- 1985: Crowley purchased Chevron's Kotzebue and Nome fuel terminals to complement marine fuel delivery already underway.
- 1989 – 2018: Crowley provided tanker escort and docking services with best-available-technology tugboats in Prince William Sound for Alyeska in support of safe operations and environmental protection.
- 2003: Crowley constructed a Bethel tank farm to better serve residents in that community.
- 2005: Crowley acquired Northland Fuel (including Yukon Fuel, Yutana Barge Lines and Service Oil & Gas).

- 2009: Crowley implemented and administered the State of Alaska's Ocean Ranger Program, putting Coast Guard trained observers on cruise ships to monitor environmental operations and marine discharges.
- 2009: Crowley's 155,000-barrel articulated tug and barge (ATB) Sea Reliance/550-1, became the largest of its kind to ever transit Alaska waters.
- 2011: Crowley purchased the Port of Anchorage fuel terminal.
- 2014: Crowley acquired Taku and Anderes Oil, allowing us to begin serving the people of Southeast Alaska.
- 2018: Crowley makes the first-ever fuel delivery to Prudhoe Bay via marine assets.
- 2019: Crowley commits to the investment of a 55,000-barrel articulated tug and barge (ATB) for use in Southcentral and Western Alaska, with an in-service date of 2021.
- 2020: Crowley places a 100,000-barrel ATB in charter service, further supporting transportation efficiencies in Alaska.

Crowley Fuels – Aviation Fuels

Aviation Fuel Services in Alaska

Crowley's aviation fuel services in Alaska include convenient, 24-hour, self-service aviation fuel card lock stations, and staffed, public aviation fuel terminals for fueling into tank, wing or belly. As Alaska's premier aviation fuel company, our fuel terminal network has a storage capacity of nearly 30 million combined gallons of Jet A and AV100LL, which we supply to airports, individual operators, airlines, other distributors and general aviation in many communities across the state.

Aviation fuel is one of the most carefully controlled petroleum products and must meet demanding quality standards for the safety of everyone who use aircraft. Crowley is committed to providing commercial, government and general aviation across Alaska with the highest quality fuels for their aircraft. Our aviation fuels meet ASTM standards and quality control procedures are followed throughout the supply chain, from the refinery to bulk storage at our terminals.

Products

- AV100LL
- Jet A
- Aviation lubricants and greases

Services

We offer marine transportation of aviation fuels to shoreline docks for seaplanes/floatplanes, as well as airport fuel delivery into wing, tank or belly.

To help keep Alaska's aviation community safe from carbon monoxide poisoning, we are pleased to offer free CO2 detectors to pilots in Alaska. Learn more about this program and request your free CO2 detector.

Fueling Alaska Business and Industry

Crowley has provided safe, reliable petroleum supply and distribution services in Alaska since 1953. We serve coastal and inland communities across the state, from the North Slope to Southcentral to Southeast Alaska. Our goal is to provide our industry customers across the state with a competitive fuel supply solution that is dependable, redundant and responsive.

Quality fuels

We power the projects of a wide range of industry customers with high-quality fuels, including diesel, gasoline, marine fuel, aviation fuels, lubricants and packaged petroleum products, propane and heating fuel. We provide dependable inventory management and delivery service to customers ranging from a single-site operator to a multi-site operator needing more than 20 million gallons per year. Our flexible, scalable fleet can easily respond to changes in fuel demands and deliver fuels to job sites in every corner of the state, always with a focus on quality, safety and reliability.

Reliable supply

Our long-term relationships with local Alaska refiners, our knowledge of and access to competitive fuel markets outside Alaska, and our strategically situated local petroleum terminals ensure reliable, competitive supply solutions for our customers.

Dependable delivery

We operate an extensive company-owned and -operated fleet of local and line haul trucks to meet the needs of our customers on the road system, as well as specially designed tugs and barges to serve the unique requirements of the remote western coast and inland river systems. Those assets, combined with the depth of expertise of our employees, allow us to respond to opportunities of any scale with safe, dependable delivery of fuel to your construction site, mining operation, fishing vessel, or any other type of commercial activity.

Responsive service

Crowley is committed to meeting the needs of our customers safely and reliably. When plans change, or the unexpected occurs, our large distribution network and years of industry experience position us to respond quickly to the changing needs of your business. Our line haul operations include a centralized dispatch that operates seven days a week, with after-hours emergency availability, and our marine, trucking, terminal and supply options span the state.

Tank leasing and monitoring

For the convenience and peace of mind of our customers, we offer fuel tank leasing and monitoring. With tank leasing from Crowley, you'll have onsite fuel storage for your project. We utilize smart tank technologies to monitor tank levels, providing real-time re-supply status, responsive customer service and accurate information.

Safety first

Zero harm to people, property and the environment is of the highest priority at Crowley. Crowley Fuels - Marine Fuels (note: we are combining a marine fuels and Western marine delivery onto this page; this page replaces the previously proposed commercial transportation, construction and marine fuels page)

Marine Fuels from Crowley

With thousands of miles of coastline and rivers, travel by water is a way of life – as well as a necessity – for many Alaskans. From small fishing skiffs to ocean-going ferries, from Southeast Alaska to the Arctic, Crowley's marine fuel terminals throughout the state provide quality fuels that Alaska mariners can depend on.

Offshore fueling services

In addition to our extensive facilities throughout the state, we are actively engaged in supporting Alaska's commercial fishing industry with offshore fueling services, notably in the Bristol Bay region. We can also provide offshore fueling for exploration and other commercial vessels anywhere our fleet transits.

Specialized fleet

Our fleet of marine vessels is specially designed to face the unique challenges of Alaska, such as uncharted locations, shallow river navigation and limited infrastructure. Our shallow draft tugs and combination fuel and deck cargo barges - combined with the skill and local expertise of our experienced mariners - allow us to reach otherwise inaccessible locations to serve the fuel needs of those in Alaska's most remote areas.

\ Crowley Fuel's goal is to provide safe, dependable fuel service to our customers. Due to a recent break-in and theft of cash at our Hooper Bay terminal office, Crowley is implementing a policy change.*

With the adoption of the new policy, the Hooper Bay terminal will only accept exact change for fuel purchase amounts. No money will be kept onsite after business hours. We regret the inconvenience to our customers; however, Crowley will continue to accept exact change, credit cards, debit cards, and Crowley gas cards for payment.

The purpose of this change is to ensure the safety of the terminal and prevent a similar occurrence in the future.

Crowley encourages members of the community to submit information that may assist in resolving the incident. All information will remain confidential. As a member of the Hooper Bay community, it is our aim to continue to meet our neighbors' needs with reliable fuel distribution services.
