A. Introduction

The introduction describes the background of the article discussed as a whole. The introduction should be written clearly and succinctly, comprising: (a) an adequate background and significance of your paper; (b) concise previous studies related to the issue written in your manuscript; (c) the main limitation of the previous studies and what you hope to achieve (to solve the limitation) in your manuscript; (d) the scientific merit or novelties of your paper; (e) the aim(s) of the study; and (f) the structure of the article or research questions.

All writings should be written in paragraph format; this journal discourages the authors from writing point per point in the numbering and bullet formats. The manuscript uses font Cambria (12 pt), 11 pt space, with a length of 6,000-10,000 words (including footnotes) and a minimum of 30 references (80% from reputable journal articles). The footnotes follow the style of the Chicago Manual Style 17th edition (fullnote). The authors are advised to use Mendeley or any referencing software, which can be downloaded here. For guidance on the Chicago Manual Style 17th edition, download the citation from here.

1. First Heading in Bold (first-discussion)

It is an important section of your manuscript. The analysis should be clear and concise. Heading in the discussion section should be consistently written with the structure of the article or the research statement, as mentioned in the introduction. The authors should highlight the importance of research findings and to what extent this research will result in further implications. Please do not repeat the abstract or describe the results of the research. Also, in this part, the authors are not allowed to discuss a new issue. The authors are suggested to write the conclusion between 1-2 paragraphs only.
