Robin Manthie has led Kitchen Coalition (formerly Minnesota Central Kitchen) from a temporary COVID-19 response organization to permanent program of Second Harvest Heartland Food Bank. Kitchen Coalition's mission is to ensure every neighbor has a meal that's right for them. The program has been recognized as an innovative model in hunger-relief -- rescuing food, using for-profit kitchen capacity, diverse distribution outlets, and partnership across the entire value chain to deliver more than 25 thousand meals a week. Kitchen Coalition meals are made by community for community, with most meals made in the neighborhoods where they are eaten and more than 50% produced in kitchens that are BIPOC owned. Before joining Second Harvest Heartland Robin launched new products and developed marketing and operational strategies at General Mills, Feeding America, 3M, and Boston Consulting Group and received an MBA from Northwestern's Kellogg School of Business. Robin lives in Minneapolis with her family.
