Senior

Go to school early so you can get a parking spot, and then you can go drop off your tennis bag in the locker room – the trunk of the car is too hot for the tennis racket strings; go back to the trunk and read the textbook; go to class and be a good student and pay attention unlike the senioritis senior you are so bent on becoming; go to class and then eat your lunch – you should have made a sandwich the night before, at least we put out cereal for you in the morning; go to the library in your free period; ignore the distractions and work on your homework; but then when you have an away tennis game go to fifth period physics because you won't be there for sixth; try to not fall asleep in physics; leave early and get to the tennis game on time and move your feet during warm-ups, but before the game get the rest of the physics notes from your classmate; then play the game and move your feet and don't give away a game, you don't have to be nice to her; finish first and then support your team, but leave if you need to do your homework, don't procrastinate it like the senioritis senior you are so bent on becoming; drive yourself home, but don't forget to drop off the library books on the way; go to the meeting for drip-lines in gardening; this is how you should be starting your senior project; this is how you need to start learning; this is how you should be scheduling your senior project; and this is how you should schedule your college admissions; why haven't you worked on your essays?; but I have, I have been tweaking my essay since summer and I always work on admissions during intervention; you should take the SAT one more time; this is how you make colleges want you; this is how you get more community service and clubs and leadership positions to put on your resume; this is how you prepare for the busy week next week, and go to the two away games and choir concert; this is how you get adults to appreciate you; eat without your elbows on the table; when you go off to college no one will go out with you if you eat like this; but I'm tired and why would anyone care while we stuff our faces in the college dorm; you are so lazy; the laundry needs to be put away; why is the clean laundry on your floor?; why have you added the second load of clean laundry to your floor?; this room is a mess and there is mold in your bathroom; how can you get letters of recommendations if you act like this?; don't act like this at school; everyone says you are perfect at school and soccer and everywhere except at home; why don't you act perfect at home?; maybe you're not perfect like people think; find a carpool for Saturday's game; it's too far away; bring your laptop and write the essay on the car ride home; you're watching television again, so are you done with your homework?; don't watch too much and then go to bed or go clean your room; but I'm not done with my homework, I'm just too tired to go get the textbook from the trunk of my car and I'm trying to stop the stressed senior you're so bent on me becoming.
