

Top 3 Things to Do in Los Angeles

From the mountains to the coast, the desert to Dodger Stadium, Los Angeles has more variety in 500 square miles than anywhere else on the planet. Making memories here couldn't be easier. Here's the top 3 things to do while visiting the City of Angels:

1. The Griffith Observatory

Take it all in as you survey the sunny Southland from 1100 feet high. The Griffith Observatory offers great views, photo opportunities, and access to over 53 miles of hiking trails in the adjacent Griffith Park. See the sparkling Pacific Ocean, hike to the Hollywood Sign, learn about astronomy, or lounge in the shadow of James Dean's bust. Whether you're on a budget, basking in history, or just passing time until dinner, The Griffith Observatory cannot be missed.

2. The Broad Museum

World-class contemporary art and an infinity mirror experience, all for free? Book your complimentary tickets for both experiences well in advance, and see the Yayoi Kusama installation that almost made selfies worth taking! The museum offers rotating modern pieces from a vast collection of up-and-comers and household names, making it an essential stop in L.A.

3. Hollywood Walk of Fame

That fact is that some locations are so quintessential to the places they inhabit you'd be remiss if you didn't pay them your respects. The Hollywood Walk of Fame is the Eiffel Tower, the Taj Mahal, and the Empire State Building of Los Angeles. A roughly mile-long strip that screams "If you didn't come here, did you really come here (gestures to L.A.)?" See the stars of days gone by, skillfully dodge the confluence of international walking paces, shake hands with five different Spidermen, and of course, see the prints at the iconic TCL's Chinese Theater. Do it once and say you did.