Appearance

Default

A pale, blonde haired woman who normally wears white, teal and gray oriental clothing and a black scarf. She generally has short hair tied up with a mid-sized, black bow. Height-wise, Suzuka is about 5 feet 6 inches (168 cm) tall.

"Night Runner"

An alternate costume that Suzuka wears for street racing at night. The style of clothing remains similar to her oriental Japanese style, but the color palette is much darker, primarily made up of black, red and gold to blend in with the night. She usually wears this to match the look of her Honda S2000.

Personality

Due to events in her past, Suzuka is usually a stoic person, especially behind the wheel. She's considered a woman of few words, only speaking when she needs to. An exception to this is when cars are the topic at hand in a conversation, when she can go on and on about her street racing career as well as the specifications of a car. Suzuka is somewhat of a lone wolf, preferring usually to drive alone outside of engaging other drivers in street races. She can open up to people and befriend them if she thinks they've earned her trust, but aside from that, Suzuka prefers to be alone, away from large cliques and groups.

Driving Style

As a rising star, Suzuka's driving skills show a lot of potential. She's usually able to adapt to her current situation, driving defensively if she's under pressure from aggressive opponents or the threat of police. She can also capitalize on an opponent's weak spots when the time is right. Suzuka generally tends to race cleanly, usually avoiding contact between other vehicles.

Backstory

Originally hailing from Kyoto, Japan, Suzuka Watanabe was once a part of a family of two. It was once a family of three, but at the age of three, her parents divorced and Suzuka had to live with her father. At the age of seven, however, her father died in a car accident, leaving her orphaned, but would move in with a friend from elementary school. Upon the completion of elementary school, she moved out of Japan to start high school in Surfers Paradise, Australia.

Most of Suzuka's life was spent alone, especially in her teenage years, where she would usually do chores in her city to earn money for meals and to pay off her education funds. Once she was 17, she did get a part time job as a mechanic, working mainly with different types of cars. Her below-average lifestyle would soon change once she got to university, however. During 2013, news was circulating around Surfers Paradise regarding an underground racing league forming in the city. The scene was actively seeking participants and was giving out a sizable prize pool of $40,000 at an invitational race. Desperate for the money, Suzuka went under the anonymous alias "Sakura" and borrowed a stock Nissan Silvia S14 from her mechanic job's garage.

By some fluke, Suzuka was able to win the invitational race, winning the prize money. Half of the prize pool was used to pay the mechanic for the Silvia S14 at the cost of being fired, a quarter went into her daily expenses, while the rest would be saved up and accumulated as she participated in more street races. To this day, Suzuka Watanabe, now taking up the pseudonym "Sakura", is working her way up the ranks of Surfers Paradise's underground racing league in order to make a name for herself, and to make enough money to survive in her daily life.

Trivia

- Suzuka's preferred vehicles of choice usually include JDM and European sports cars from the 90's and later, especially if they're highly customizable.
- Suzuka is asexual. As a result, lewd RP is completely out of the question for her.
