Mobile Response

The Alternate Response Unit 3 (ARU-3)

Paramedics, EMTs and behavioral health specialists are among the staff members assigned to AR-3, which is the City's first behavioral health response team with an EMS component. AR-3 is dispatched via 911 with the goal of immediately connecting individuals to appropriate resources and/or treatment programs. During its current pilot phase, the unit will operate primarily in North Philadelphia (19140) every day from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Alternative Response unit (ARU-2)

- The ARU-2 Unit responds to 911 Overdose calls in the Kensington community

Social Services at the Free Library | 215-814-4492 | socialservices@freelibrary.org

and provides NARCAN distribution and/or community education on the use of NARCAN.

- The Alternative Response Unit (ARU-2) is an innovative program that pairs Paramedics, Case Managers, and public health professionals to provide community-based services to the Kensington community.
- ARU-2 is a community-based mobile response program that provides:
  - immediate intervention
  - assists individuals with linkages and referrals to substance use services upon engagement.
  - Connects individuals to behavioral health care and substance use treatment services through rapid response within their own community.

Dispatched via 911

CIRT Co-Responder

CIRT pairs mental health professionals with Crisis Intervention Team (CIT)-trained police officers from the Philadelphia Police Department (PPD). The program has expanded with the formation of the PPD Behavioral Health Unit and is available citywide during the weekday day shift.

CIRT is dispatched from 911 dispatchers, or other police pathways (self referral by CIRT teams, other officers, the Police Behavioral Health Unit).

Philly Gun Violence Resource

Up The Block

Website: uptheblock.org, thetrace.org

Point of Contact: Afea Tucker, Philadelphia Community Engagement Reporter (e) atucker@thetrace.org

Up the Block

is a product of The Trace, a nonprofit newsroom dedicated to covering gun violence in America. Up the Block is Philadelphia's gun violence information and resource hub. Our guide showcases resources designed to help anyone who has been affected by gun violence, or who thinks they are at risk of either shooting someone or being shot. We're connecting Philadelphians to the people and organizations that provide trauma-related therapy, emergency care, Pennsylvania Victims Compensation Services, gun violence prevention initiatives, after-school opportunities, and more.
