Video Transcript: Hello! (“Sara Bianco2023 ASLTA NPDC Chair” appears in white letters at the bottom) I’m Sara Bianco. (Text disappears and transitions to “Pronouns: she/her” across the bottom in white) I use the pronouns she/her. (Text disappears and transitions to “Description” across the bottom in white) Describing myself, I am a light-skinned cisgender female with brown hair in a ponytail and blue eyes with glasses wearing dainty silver hoop earrings and a navy blue polo shirt and gray sleeves with the conference logo on the left side. The logo is in the shape of the state of Ohio covered in teal with white letters, ASLTA, in an arch above the state and white letters, Conference, in an arch below the state and a tree in the middle of the state with a brown trunk, rows of leaves in different colors set upon dark green hands cupping the tree. The background is white with a brown wood trim. (text disappears)

We are nearing the upcoming conference to be held this summer in Columbus, Ohio! We’re very excited! (hands fold in front)

(“News about train derailments” appears in white letters at the bottom) People have been reaching out to us concerned that the news of trains derailing in Ohio will impact our conference.

First, the conference committee wants to inform everyone that we feel for the communities impacted by the train derailments. (hands fold over the heart)

Video folds over itself and reveals a flyer. Flyer description: The flyer has a white background. The ASLTA logo, “ASL” in dark blue transitioning to red brushstrokes with “ASLTA” in dark blue below, appears at the top. Below the logo is the title, “Ohio Train Derailments,” in black. Next is an image of the outline of the State of Ohio with “Ohio” appearing in the outline at the top left part of the state. Inside the outline are three red pins. The first pin is located in the left central part of the state with “Springfield” in large black letters with “no toxic spills” in smaller black letters below. Next is “Columbus” in large black letters in the middle of the state with “no impact” in smaller black letters below. Last is “East Palestine” in large black letters in the upper third of the state next to the right-side state border with “toxic chemical spill impacts only this area” in smaller black letters. A bold black line connects Springfield and Columbus with “45 minute drive” above the line. Another bold black line connects Columbus with East Palestine with “3 hour drive” below the line. Below the state outline is the text, “Our hearts go out to the communities in East Palestine, Ohio; Springfield, Ohio; and other places globally as they navigate the disasters that resulted from the train derailments,” in black letters. In a second paragraph, the text reads, “The 2023 ASLTA National Professional Development Conference is not impacted by the derailments that occurred.” In the bottom left corner is the conference logo, the shape of Ohio in aqua and two green hands cradling a tree in the middle with a brown trunk and rainbow colored leaves in arcs. In the bottom right corner is the OhioASLTA logo, the shape of Ohio with a black border and the top third has “Ohio” in black on a background, the middle third has “ASLTA” in black on a yellow background, and the bottom third is green.

Video folds over itself and Sara continues. The incidents do not impact our conference. Two trains have indeed derailed in Ohio. (“East Palestine, Ohio 3 hours from Columbus” appears across the bottom in white) In East Palestine, Ohio, about 3 hours drive from Columbus, (text disappears) there were toxic, chemical spills. The spills do not impact our conference in Columbus. (“Springfield, Ohio 45 minutes from Columbus” appears across the bottom in white) Closer to us there was another train derailling in Springfield, Ohio, which is about 45 minutes from Columbus. (text disappears) There were no toxic, chemical spills there. There is no impact on our conference. (hands fold in front)

(“See you there at the conference!” appears across the bottom in white) We’re looking forward to seeing you at our conference! (Closes with a big smile)

The video scrolls to the left revealing an end slide.
