

tw/ Mentions of pedophilia (Exotix himself is not a pedophile, but the topic is still discussed here)

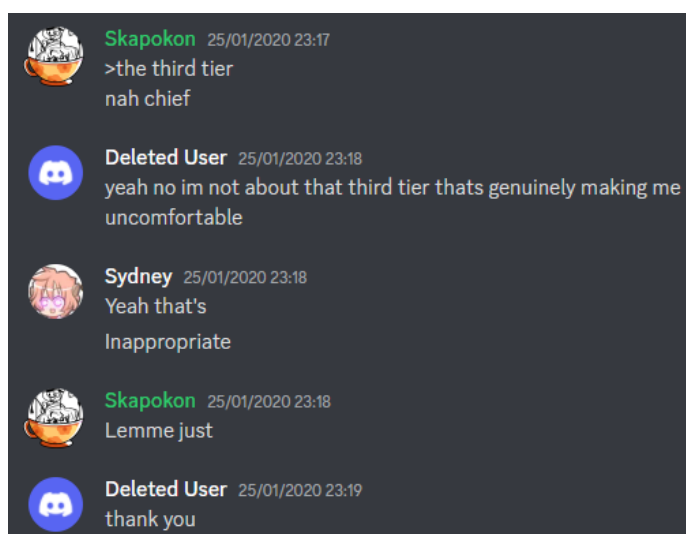

Exotix7, also known as Jack Mayhew, is the creator of the Lawl Spin-Off All Star Smashers, which is a Lawl that many regulars in Lawl-related Discord servers (including myself) have advised people not to bring up with the simple explanation that the creator is a jerk. Normally that would be the end of it, but considering how this guy continues with the very same cycle of actions that got him into this position in the first place, arguably getting worse as time passes, I felt the need to write this document. I am pretty sure many people have wondered what exactly we mean when we say that Exotix is a jerk, and in this document I just want to lay out all of his acts of immaturity and stubbornness that has gotten me to the point of not being able to keep this a secret anymore.

This is all, of course, completely disregarding the quality of ASS itself. I personally am not the biggest fan, but even if that series was my favorite Lawl, I'd still be making this document. This is about the actions of Exotix as a person, not as a content creator.

The Loli Incident

The very seed that started this all happened a decent amount of time ago, as I remember it was during pre-COVID 2020. I remember this because the Byleth Smash announcement was still fresh in people's minds which is relevant for a later event that will be described when we get there.

So in the Lawl Nexus server, multiple users were doing Tier Lists about the Lawl MAD roster, mainly putting the characters in the order of preference like we have done with other Lawls in the past. Exotix decided to take his own shot at this and made a Tier List, in which one of the tiers was specifically for any characters that were young anime girls (Konata, UDK...) and called it "Lolis".

Understandably, Exotix got called out for naming the tier that. Loli is a word very commonly associated with the sexualization of little girls or characters who look like little girls in anime, which would of course make certain people in the server uncomfortable considering that we have a strict NSFW ban and that some of the members are minors. In some anime circles the word has unfortunately been so normalized that it's just used to describe anime little girls, but the Lawl Nexus server was definitely not one of them. For the record, the last time anyone had used that word on the server before this was in 2018, and they were also met with disgust when that happened.

What I believe any reasonable person would have done would be to just apologize for what they did and promise not to use the word again. At worst, say that they do not agree with the word having those connotations but in order to be respectful towards the rest of the group members, not use it again here. That response would have raised some eyebrows, but it's the least that a mature person would have done in a situation like that.

Exotix made a GoAnimate Grounded Video about it.

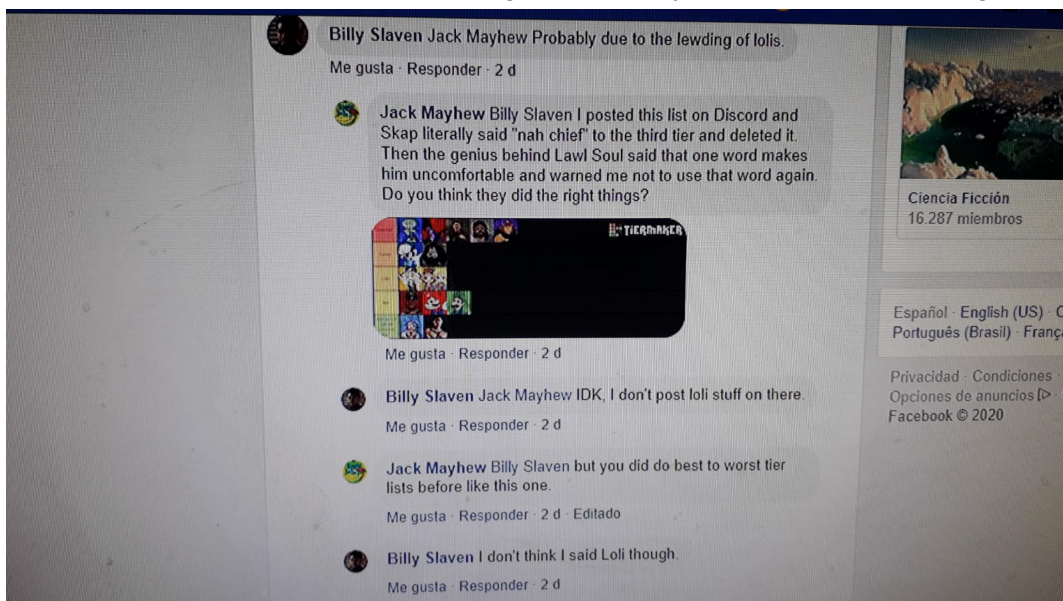

In the now deleted video, he tried to portray the event by featuring Egg Bro (a character meant to represent him) saying the word Loli, only to be caught and called out by Byleth before being put in jail by Inspector Gadget for saying a "bad word" (representing the admins). The video showed how childishly he understood the gravity of the situation, indirectly comparing being told not to use a word that could be a potential trigger to some people (including two of the admins, and that's only counting those who spoke out back then), to saying a cuss word in a school setting. Despite being currently deleted, the evidence of it existing can still be found on the All Star Smashers wiki where he made a Spirit Battle based on the video.

If that wasn't enough, Exotix reposted the Tier List with that tier renamed days after the fact, and made a vague post saying that the reason he doesn't frequently visit the server is because there are "too many rules". Keep in mind that at any point we struck him for this, and we actually had removed a strike of him due to having improved since it happened (I will get to that later as well), so it's not like we were punishing him unnecessarily harshly. We simply told him to stop using a word and to stop dragging the same topic through the mud (when we called him out for this, he basically went "Oh, then why are YOU doing that?". This will be recurring as well).

We decided to call him out also because it was brought to my attention by a friend of mine that Exotix was talking about this on Facebook of all places, putting himself as the victim and speaking about us in a very passive-aggressive manner, which is what led us to call him out when he posted the re-made tier list. Not too long after, he'd leave the server, and if that were the end of it I wouldn't be here writing this document. It'd just be a guy who acted weird on a Discord server, left and we never got to see any of his behavior ever again.

The Wiki Vandalism

The New Smash Bros. Lawl Origins Wiki is one of the most respected out of the Lawl Wikis that feature more than one Lawl, so Exotix decided to continue with his shenanigans there instead. His first actions merely used the comment sections of some of the articles, and he said things that alluded to this incident specifically, namely leaving comments calling Lolis to characters who are little girls (like Hat Kid or the dreamers of the Original Lawl), all while also trying to advocate for Black Friday Woody to be renamed. He said that he needed to change his name to Friday Woody because the name including the word black was something that he considered racist, which of course is a ridiculous statement considering how Black Friday Woody is named after the Black Friday holiday, which has nothing to do with racism or even people of color in the first place. He also changed his Userpage to “No swearing”, once again underselling what he did wrong and stating that other people have said the word before.

In order to tell him to stop we called him out through this thread on his message wall. I'll let it just speak for itself:

https://new-smash-bros-lawl-origin.fandom.com/wiki/Message_Wall:Exotix7?threadId=440000000000065943

Regardless, his stubbornness and refusal to change and apologize was what made us ban him as he showed no signs of ever wanting to change for the better. However, he made himself an alternative account where he proceeded to simply edit on the Wiki regularly with no signs of wanting to continue vandalizing. But this alternative account, JoStuck, ended up having to give in, because he wanted to pull the same shit that he did with Black Friday Woody but with the Angry Video Game Nerd, who he considered to be offensive to people with anger issues. This time around we only knew because he left a comment referring to him as the Agy Video Game Nerd, which led us to believe that it was him because of the next point. But before that, I'd like to bring up that Exotix has continued to make alternative accounts as late as November and December of 2022, with them being these ones. Also this one that the guy literally reminded me of by making an edit which prompted me to see his previous contributions (I forgot to block this one, just so you can see how hard it is to keep up).

The YouTube Alternative Accounts

If the alternative Wiki accounts weren't enough, Exotix also made a few alternative YouTube accounts where he'd post very simple videos trying to hammer in with these points. InvisiCat/Dogfish Denny still has a few videos up, but there was also Headwear Infant, which on its own was a channel named after something I told him during the callout on his original account. These videos were basically bringing up the incident in direct or indirect ways, either calling the admins of the Lawl Nexus bad people, mentioning characters like the aforementioned AVGN and Black Friday Woody and how they needed to change their names... He kept hammering and hammering in the same points with no sign of stopping. I also unfortunately do not have proof of this but apparently in one of the accounts he had something very transphobic in the description, and I regret not having taken a screenshot of it for proof. You can still see me allude to it in the Message Wall for JoStuck.

<https://youtu.be/dPq8JSYeHsA>

YouTube

Dogfish Denny

Smash Bros Lawl Match of my Dreams!

I wanna see AVGN, Hat Kid and Black Friday Woody fight because they're the best!

Movistar

100 % 8:19

How about we shorten AVGN's name to "VGN" because it offends people who are angry irl?
(Yes I am totally the person you think I am)

Smash Bros Lawl Discord Question

26 visualizaciones · Hace 5 horas

0

1

Compartir

Descargar

Guardar

Headwear Infant

4 suscriptores

SUSCRIBIRSE

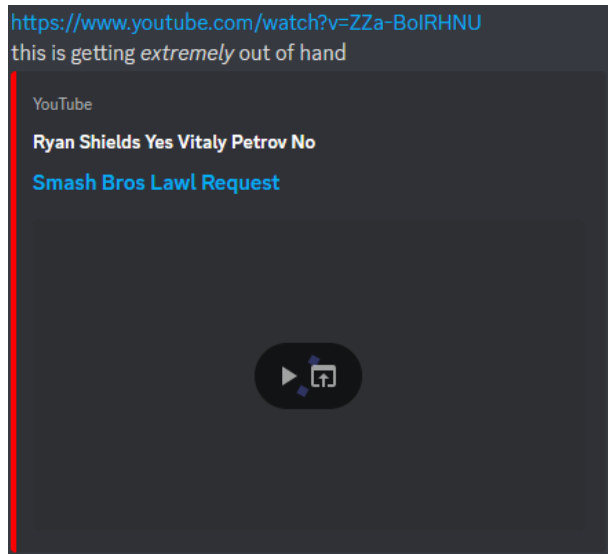

Comentarios

Añade un comentario público...

He'd also continue making Wiki accounts with the names of the accounts that he'd be making on Youtube, which would prompt the admins to instantly ban him because, not sure if you know, but one of the default reasons Wikia/Fandom has for banning someone is abusing multiple accounts to avoid a ban, and that's exactly what Exotix was doing. Worst of all was the time that he attempted to frame somebody else and get their account banned instead. There was a user called Ryan Shields Yes Vitaly Petrov No on the Wiki who I already saw on my channel commenting to me about his ideas for his own Lawl (which he tried to add to the wiki, only for me to immediately remove because he didn't even have any movesets). Exotix made a YouTube alt account named after this guy's Wikia Account where he'd post the same bullshit as in the others in order to try to get him banned.

Of course I knew that this guy had his own YouTube account which means that I saw through Exotix's thin disguise. I also called him out on this, with his reaction being the expected one:

 Skapokon 22/05/2021 21:06

You have to stop with your YouTube secondary accounts to complain about something that happened over a year ago that somehow you haven't gotten over with. The fact that your last account was named after an unrelated member of the wiki to try to get them banned was a new low.

Is this really the best thing you can do with your free time? Don't you have anything better to do than to use YouTube as your soapbox to complain about the fact that we told you that using a term heavily associated with degenerate porn in a server with minors makes some of us uncomfortable? And the worst part is that when we call you out then you try to redirect the complains to us being "too violent" or whatever.

Just stop with this bullshit and go back to do All Star Smashers or whatever. The fact that you are still dedicating so much of your time to this is genuinely creepy and worrying.

 Exotix7 22/05/2021 22:09

I just don't get complaining and defending something at the same time. It's like it only makes you all uncomfortable if it's me mentioning it.

And yes, I know it is just one subject but why do I get the feeling that even moving on from it isn't gonna help either? I've done many other things that take way longer than this but they're unrelated.

But whatever, I know that no matter what I say, it's gonna be rejected even if I do commit to being productive. I bet even stopping won't help.

23 de mayo de 2021

 Skapokon 23/05/2021 1:34

If this is because of the Madotsuki moveset, we are not defending that. But that was years ago when the negative connotations of that word were not as well known and when edgy jokes like that were more accepted. If Chin still used that word regularly in videos or if someone did the same thing as you did, we would have complained about it. Context is important and I think you are missing that. You also used that word multiple times just to piss us off when we told you not to. You want an example to show that it's not just you that we call out? Someone in the server got a strike for posting a news report about the Australia ban on l/li h/ntai (an article that stated that it shouldn't have been banned), all to make a King for a Day joke. And I can think of more examples but I don't want to be here all day. It's not just you. Also trying to use the same logic to characters like Black Friday Woody or Angry Video Game Nerd is just trying to get enemies at this point.

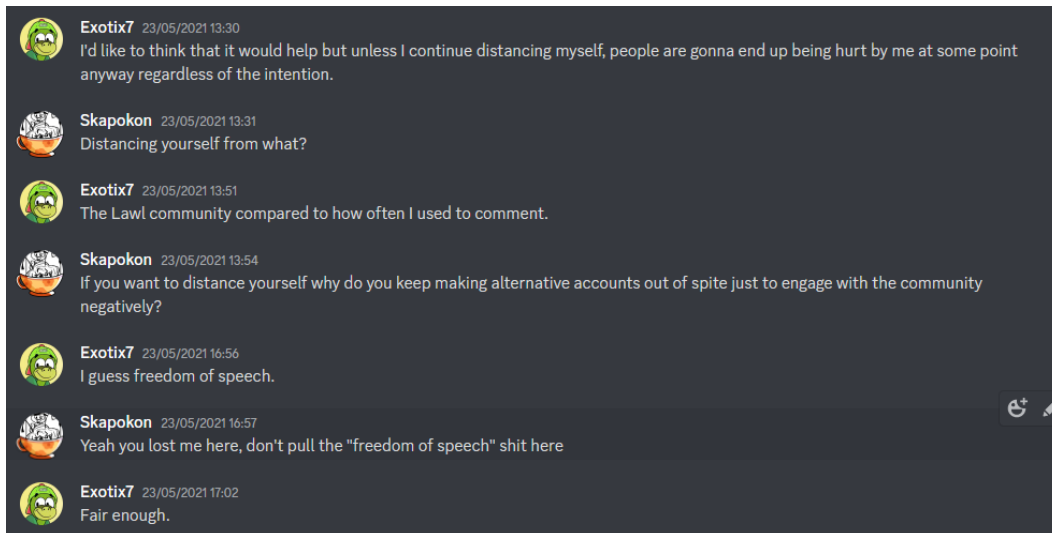

You know what would help? Not making multiple accounts on YouTube and Wikia to preach for this nonsense and defame us as a fun-stopping squad when all we want is for people in our server to have some God damn tact. Making alternative accounts takes time and the fact that keeps popping up makes me think that you simply enjoy poking the hornet's nest and then blame it on us. SPECIALLY the fact that you tried to cheat the system by pretending to be someone else and get THEM banned. It's also clear that you want the admins to find these videos by including Smash Bros Lawl in the title so we find them when we are looking for new movesets.

Also if you dropped this already and continued working on your personal projects I wouldn't even be here so yes, stopping WOULD help.

(editado)

 Exotix7 23/05/2021 13:30

I'd like to think that it would help but unless I continue distancing myself, people are gonna end up being hurt by me at some point anyway regardless of the intention.

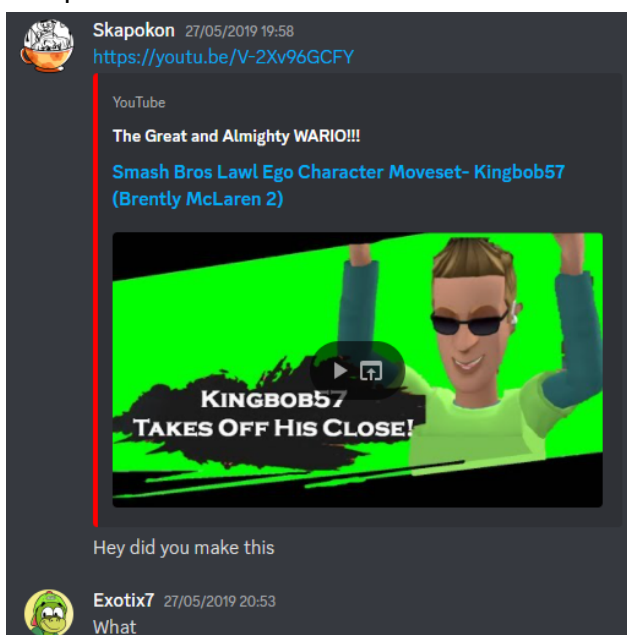

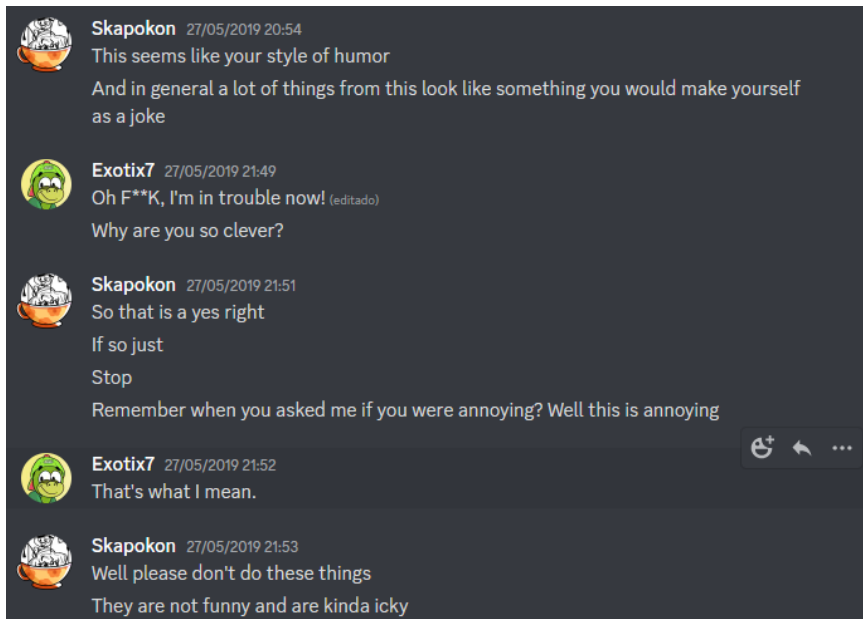

But there is one more alt account to be mentioned here.

Distinctive Orangutan/Lawl Treasures

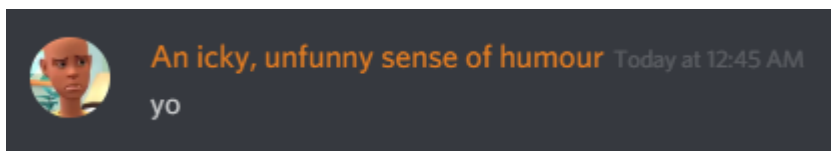

Yes, this Lawl's creator is another Exotix alt. If you are familiar with this Lawl you may know that while nowadays it's just a normal Lawl like any other, it began life as a troll Lawl in the vein of something like the now ancient Lawl Hate, with the first character to receive a moveset being a random guy on YouTube and all of the other characters having a very similar vibe. What raised eyebrows to me was the inclusion of certain characters related to old Lawl drama, with them being Anon Lawl Critic (a troll who used to leave very harsh comments on Lawls he didn't like) and Superintendent Clayton (a reference to how controversial Lawl figure Daniel Clayton came back to one of the Discord servers under the name of Superintendent Chalmers). This second one in particular also lines up with Exotix who seemed to have a very odd obsession with Daniel Clayton even after he left the fandom.

I suspected that it was him who made the Lawl and...

He himself admitted it, no questions asked. In fact, when I told him this he changed his nickname on Discord to be this (this was what caused the strike that we removed):

I do remember Chase Matthew (creator of Lawl Overdrive and someone who was going to help Exotix revamp All Star Smashers before all of this happened) also mentioned a few pieces of anecdotal evidence that pointed at Exotix being Lawl Hate's creator, mainly their voices being similar, using GoAnimate and having a similar sense of humor when it comes to bait. This is, of course, just speculation, and I can't find the comments of Chase saying that. The fact that I can believe it is only more proof in regards to Exotix's tendency of making fake accounts.

The Last Straw

Not content with his alt accounts on YouTube and the Wikia, as well as his ramblings on Facebook, Exotix took it to Twitter. Most of the stuff he has said about us remains there but there is one comment that got deleted and I have to highlight:

...do I need to say what's wrong with this!? We called this guy out for using a word that made most of us uncomfortable due to its association with pedophilia, and he pulls THIS ONE on us? The absurd backwards mentality that if someone calls out lolicons they are the pedophiles? Enough was enough for me, and this nonsense is what truly made me want to warn people about Exotix, while the recent accounts were what made me decide to finally do this. If you reach to the point where you make multiple alternative accounts (and even your main) just to shit on some people for calling you out for not letting you say loli, that's a clear sign of an obsession, and that's when I have to put my foot down. I swear if I start seeing Exotix's fans parrot this stuff... There's probably more that I could mention here that made me angry, but I feel 9 pages of evidence with links and images is more than enough. Before the conclusion I just wanted to bring up a very recent example of his nonsense.

He also tried infiltrating the Aureus server with an alt account named Higher Mammal in May 2023. He tagged Shrekles himself on a Tweet exposing himself.

On his Twitter account he also posted this, trying to pretend that that account was unrelated to him and we banned it for no reason (like what he tried to do with the Ryan Shields account). I don't know if that's actually the case or not, but neither option makes him look good:

Conclusion/What to do

The shortened version of this whole ordeal is basically:

Exotix is a guy who is so obsessed with lolis and so willing to die on that hill that he made multiple alternative accounts on multiple websites to call out the people that gave him a very small warning (including calling them pedophiles), and one of those accounts was created with the intention of getting someone else banned, something that he has done repeatedly as lately as May 2023. And I hope I don't have to edit this date.

As to what to do, I'd prefer if none of you engaged with Exotix and his content from now on. I don't want you to go to his channel and social media calling him out for what he's doing, because that is exactly what he wants, and I know him very well to know that he will take advantage of that to add ammo to his "arsenal" (basically saying that me and the other admins have been sending people to witch hunt him). He desperately wants attention to get more excuses to act childish, so do not give him what he wants. Worst I'd want you to do to him is to block him. If you're on his server, leave without saying anything, and don't suddenly kick him off your own server unless he pulls the same shit that he has been pulling for over 2 years in the Wiki.

Just ignore him and move on with your life, something that I hope Exotix will get to learn some day. But if the amount of sock puppet accounts that I've had to ban from the Wiki and his non-apologies are anything to go by, it seems like it'll be a good long while before that happens.