

Hello to whomever this email reaches,

I hope you are doing well. I hope 2024 has been treating you well so far.

I will get right to my point. I came across your business and was impressed with the work you guys do. There are not many reliable apparel stores around your area. Anyways, I am a digital marketer and was wondering if you guys would like marketing done. The work I do is in efforts to scale businesses, get your businesses name out there, increase visibility, and most importantly, attract more customers to your business.

Checking out your website, I can tell you guys are serious about your business, and more importantly, that you are professionals. That being said, I envision great room for growth of this business.

And how about the sweetest part of this offer. I will scale your business, for free. Allow me to work on scaling your business for free for 3-4 weeks, and watch your sales grow. If and when my marketing gets your business more sales, we can discuss something more permanent.

Thank you for taking the time to consider my offer, I greatly appreciate it. And welcome to your business's future. Take care.
