

Northelia Empire

Occupying the northern land of the Last Continent, Northelia is a gigantic empire that has merged a vast number of races and royal families. With snow and ice acting as a barrier that keeps foreign enemies from advancing from the south, the empire is home to a diverse range of races including giants, horned races, and beast races. The first people to immigrate to Northelia came from the north and were a part of the Armed Merchant Naval Troupe, who reigns over the Great Ice Ocean. Emperor Willard Warondo was a descendant of the first horned race that settled into the Last Continent, and he dedicated his entire life to building the empire.

Following the death of the first Emperor, his daughter Zera came out as a winner of the battle for the throne and inherited her father's crown. Intent on achieving the Last Continent's unification, Zera is determined to invade other lands including the Five Kingdoms of Fireland and Eldergran.

Zera the Hornless Empress

Zera the Hornless, the Empress of Northelia.

Zera is the daughter of Emperor Willard Warondo, the man who brought together the countries in the northern land and built Northelia. Even after the Emperor's death, Zera is able to hold down the empire's kingdoms and keep the empire united by using the cohesive power that she inherited from her father. Zera lost both of her horns, which are otherwise a unique characteristic of the horned races, as the result of her engagement in countless battles. As a descendant of a man whose origin can be traced back to the first people who immigrated to the land of Northelia, Zera intends to unify the Last Continent.

Yuki the Empress' Aide

A young girl who comes to the empire of Northelia from a foreign country. She was suspected of being a spy and arrested, but later became the Empress' servant after Zera, out of pure coincidence, deemed her skills useful. Yuki likes reading and is knowledgeable about war tactics and strategies. As she accompanies Zera on her conquest campaign, she gradually earns a name for herself as the empire's tactician.

Aiden the Sword Master

The head of the Silver family, a family that practices fortune-telling in the empire of Northelia. He is also the head of the Seven Warriors and people look up to him and extol him as the 'Sword Master'. Aiden is a hero who has brought countless victories for the empire since the days of the late Emperor. His loyalty is undoubted and even after the first Emperor's death, he is determined to loyally serve the new Empress and carry on his role as the empire's backbone.

Leon the Southern Conquest General

The son of the late Emperor's brother, and Zera's cousin. He is widely acknowledged as a reliable and capable man and thus has been appointed as the general that will lead the conquest of Eldergran in the south. Leon secretly considers Zera a rival and is aiming to seize the throne.

Quintica Chief of the Polar Night

Quintica is the 15th chief of the Polar Night Guild, an assassination organization of Northelia that takes orders directly from the Empress to gather intelligence and assassinate important figures. The subject of many songs and rumors, the guild works together with the empire of Northelia and targets those political figures who appear supportive of the empire's prosperity on the outside yet are secretly plotting a rebellion.

Oscar the Frozen Sea Admiral

He is the head of the Coolmoria family that originated from the pirates of the north. He is a naval battle hero who commands the Armed Merchant Naval Troupe, and people refer to him as the 'Demon of The Underworld'. After taking a liking to the nickname 'Admiral' that Yuki gave him, he has been telling everyone around him to call him by that moniker.

Fireland Union

The Fireland Union is comprised of five kingdoms that rule over the western land of the Last Continent. King Ezel II brought together kingdoms who were once enemies in order to gain an upper hand in the battle against the demon race, which had lasted since the people's immigration to the continent. Residents of the union include the many races that gathered during the first immigration such as the Steel race, whose bodies are made of metal, the Ore race, whose lives are dedicated to smithing and mining, and the Werewolf race, who can transform themselves into beasts. The union is also blessed with an abundant amount of mineral resources, and with the people's advanced smithing skills, the union continues to invent and produce new weapons with each passing day.

King Ezel II, the head of the Fireland Union, passed away after the union won the long battle against the demon race. Who succeeded the throne is none other than his son. The union has to face not only the death of their king but also the northern empire's conquest campaign and the attacks by the demons that survived their extermination, all at the same time. Faced with these pressing crises, the kings and queens of the five kingdoms agree to wield their weapons once again.

Ezel the King of Fire and Iron

Ezel the King of Fire and Iron is the son of King Ezel II and the head of the Fireland Union. Having inherited the will of his late father, he is also the current king of the Fireland Kingdom. The kingdoms and the people of the union trusted the late king so deeply that they were initially skeptical of the new king's ability. However, he has the makings of a ruler that will be just as wise as the previous king.

Falia the Queen of the Mountains

Despite her young age, Falia managed to gain the support of her loyal subjects and govern the Jeld Kingdom as a queen of the Ore race. Having the blood of gold-hoarding dragons in her veins, she possesses a secret art that enables her to transform into a dragon. Not wanting other rulers of the five kingdoms to take her lightly, Falia always makes sure to remain composed and brave. She can relate to what the Fireland King must be going through because she believes that she too is in the same shoes.

Dwight the King of Steel

Dwight is the king of Steelan, a kingdom where people with metal bodies, namely the Steel race, dwell in. A military man and a war veteran, Dwight's subordinates include the Knights of Steel who are praised for being the strongest warriors in all five kingdoms. His war experience has elevated him as one among several heroes of the great battle in the past. He has inspired many people who think of him as a righteous king who would not hesitate to take up arms in order to protect his people.

Dylan the Island King

The king of the island kingdom Teil and the head of the Rain family. He is also the younger brother of Ethan, the hero that destroyed the demon race, and he inherited the throne in place of Ethan after he got exiled. He respects the king of Fireland, but he also feels inferior and there may even be something akin to envy among the emotions he has toward the other king.

Leslie the Moon Queen

Leslie is the werewolf queen that rules over the Laurelland Kingdom, which territory covers the woodlands of the five kingdoms. She is also the head of the Underwood family. Together with the many beast and tree races, Leslie leads the kingdom that is known as 'the food cellar' of the five kingdoms. Her alienation in the past battle caused her to harbor hostility toward the demon race of Eldergran.

Ourn the Inventor

A genius scientist who never ceases to expand Fireland's arsenal by inventing weapons. He opened the door to a highly profitable market for Fireland by discovering a technique to create burning water out of a magical ore. He can be fussy and obstinate when it comes to weapon invention. He used to be a part of the Eldergran Magic Institute until he got banished for blowing up an entire town.

Eldergran Alliance

Eldergran is an armed alliance of various kingdoms that rule over the Last Continent's south-eastern land. Surrounded by dense and desolate woodlands, Eldergran is where the castles that belong to the spirit races and the once dominant demon race exist. The countries in the continent refer to self-governing and peculiar Eldergran as 'the Abominable Land' for it is home to not only the survivors of the demon clan's extermination but also exiles from the north and west as well as powerful figures of foreign origins.

Gideon has a royal bloodline and after Fireland banished him, he went to hide in Eldergran. He claimed to be a blood relative of Aran, the Pioneer King, to Miracera, a wise man and the founder of the Eldergran Magic Institute. Gideon plans to attack Fireland, the land that exiled him, and Northelia, his mother's nemesis. In order to do so, he gathers the demon race, the exiles, and the spirit races under his wing and formed the Eldergran Alliance.

Gideon the Bloodline of the Pioneer King

Gideon is the leader of the Eldergrun Alliance and is the grandchild of Aran, the Pioneer King who discovered the Last Continent. Fireland banished him and he lost his mother during an attack by Northelia. After which, he washed ashore in Eldergrun. Under the guidance of Miracera, the man he met in a land in the south, Gideon began to form the Eldergrun Alliance and made it his goal to unify the Last Continent.

Miracera the Master of the Magic Institute

A great wizard, the founder of the Eldergrun Magic Institute, and a master with countless disciples across the Last Continent. After Gideon told him that he was a blood relative of the Pioneer King, Miracera agreed to guide him toward the founding of the Eldergrun Alliance.

Ethan the Exiled Hero

The leader of the Gale Mercenary Troupe in Ballran. He was once a prince of one of the five kingdoms in Fireland and the Rain family. Although extolled for being the hero that defeated the Demon King during the great battle in the past, scheming princes and dukes caused him to bear the responsibility of a crime and be an exile. He meets Gideon in the Giant Castle of Ballran and agrees to cooperate with him.

Erebas the Demon King of Eldergran

The Demon King and the son of Galion. He was believed to have been defeated during the great battle in the past. He has been lying in wait in the Hidden Castle of Undaria together with the other demon survivors for a chance to rise again. Gideon's grandfather Aran might be his enemy, but he owes his life to him. He agrees to help Gideon under one condition: the revival of the demon race.

Elion the King of Spirits

As the king of spirits, Elion is the ruler of the Castle of Mist. He used to be a part of the demon race's camp during the battle of the past, but after the death of the Demon King Galion, he took Erebas and hid him in the Hidden Castle of Undaria.

He is willing to help Gideon as long as Gideon can promise to retrieve the 'gems' that the empire has stolen.

Inna the Queen of the Ruined Country

A swordswoman that came to Eldergran from a country far in the east. During her long journey, she befriended people from different races and established a diverse mercenary group. Her comrades trust her and give her the nickname 'Tycoon'. The group decided to lend a hand to the demon race's military forces under the condition of getting their own brand new country.
