CEE is offering a May 21 noon workshop on a topic relevant to Janine Wilson's presentation topic: Syllabus Design for Equity

"This workshop's focus is to critically reflect as well as practice crafting syllabi with an eye towards equity. By critically examining and practicing syllabus design, participants will gain the knowledge and tools to make impactful as well as equitable learning experiences."

Interesting...I had quite a few students request that I form groups for our collaborative exam

12:26:31 From Miriam Markum to Everyone:

Which classroom was the instructor-selected groups in, and which for the self-selected groups? The space alone can have a large impact on engagement.

12:27:57 From Mark Verbitsky to Everyone:

I think it was the same classroom, splitting the class in half for Tuesdays and Thursdays.

I had my microbiology students debunk vaccine-related misconceptions on their worksheets. Later, on the course evals, some said what they learned by de-bunking prompted them to convince family to get vaccinated! This work can have big impacts.
