

Assemble Your Group Checklist - Real World Conversations

Provided by: Kenzie Carson

LEARNING OUTCOMES:

- Students will get an example of what conversations may look like working through the Assemble your Group Checklist
- Students will practice mock conversations with their peers to become more familiar with this process.

MATERIALS NEEDED: This slide deck. You have multiple options with this lesson, you could run through the slides if you're running low on time or print them out as scripts and you and another instructor act out each part of the checklist.

INTRODUCTION:

This lesson is intended to give examples of what these bullet point prompts can look like in real conversations with your touring partners.

PRACTICE/ACTIVITY:

- Run through the slide deck

OR

- Print content of slide deck and have two instructors act out the the examples
- Split groups into 2-4
- Have students refer to Pg 2 for the prompts, each student takes a prompt and facilitates the conversation for that prompt. Ex student #1 has "Compatible Goals" What are some questions you will need to ask your partners to see if you have compatible goals?
- Can put these questions up on the whiteboard to help students come up with questions or ideas of how to have these conversations
 - What are your goals for today?
 - Given the avalanche forecast, what type of terrain are you comfortable with today?
 - Are you comfortable with honoring the most conservative voice once we're in the mountains? And maintaining a pace where everyone can be included in conversations?
 - Given our objective and the conditions, what is the optimal number of folks for this tour?
 - How are you doing physically and mentally today? Anything that may be distracting for you?
