

Katherine Atwill
Final Project Proposal

What is your project? What will you do?

I will make a video showing my development from a shy girl living in a small town into the proud queer New Yorker that I am today.

This video will explore LGBT issues, homesickness, and the central idea of identity vs. fitting in.

I will film in my apartment to show my current life, and I will film at Columbia University to show my life when I first arrive in New York.

I will have scripted narration as well as interviews with people I met at different points in my time in New York. I will submit the script for the video with the video itself. I expect the video to be about ten minutes long.

How will you share it with me and your classmates?

I will choose three one minute clips to show in class, and post the link to the entire video on the class website.

Demonstrate:

Speaking/Listening: I will be speaking in the video, and I will be speaking and listening to people as I interview them. I will also speak while presenting the video clips to the class.

Writing: I will also submit my script for the video

Reading: I will submit links to the how to guides I read to learn how to edit videos

Develop:

I will develop my speaking skills by narrating the video.

I will develop my writing skills by writing the script for the video.

I will develop my listening skills by watching other videos to get ideas.

I will develop my reading skills by reading how to guides of how to make videos.

Materials and Help:

Phone with a video camera, computer to edit the video and write the script, How To guides to teach me how to edit the video. I'll need help from my friends that I will interview to be in the video.
