Minnesota Carlson

Key Career Info: Healthcare Management

About the Industry Area: A healthcare manager is usually one of the leaders of a healthcare administration team. These managers may also be called medical and health services managers, and there are generally a wide range of specializations and job titles within this field.

Career Overview

- Overview
- Certification, Licensing, and Special Requirements
- Industry Overview
- Primary Products
- Structure

Carlson School of Management Employment Data

- Employment Report

Student Involvement Opportunities

- Student Clubs (recommended - MILI student association, Health and Wellness Club, Carlson Marketing Network, Carlson Consulting club)
- Organizational Partnerships
- Alumni Community
- Student and Alumni Profiles
- Case Competitions
- Career Resources
- Full-Time MBA Blog

Recruiting Context

On-Campus

- Resumes - Cover Letters
- Career Guide
- Careers
- Career Services
- Recruiting is very heavy on fall semester side (both internship and full-time interviews are predominantly done in late September/early October)
- GBCC hosts many information sessions throughout the semester

How to Stand out in the Recruiting Process?

- Meet with employers and recruiters through on campus events such as the Corporate Reception, Info sessions, recruiter office hours, and student org presentations.
- Speak with recent alumni to learn about job responsibilities, their organization and the industry
- Show knowledge and preference for service line

Professional Groups

- Resources & Associations
- Unions and Associations
- Professional Organizations for Healthcare Management
- American Association of Healthcare Administrative Management

Additional Resources

- Health Care Manager - Guide
- 5 Entry Level Jobs That Start Healthcare Management Careers
- Healthcare Management Career and Job Outlook
- Top Healthcare Management Careers of the Future