History 📖

Coco was born to her house cat parents, Nettle and Thorn. Right from the beginning she hated being locked up in her home all the time. She constantly tried to escape and get outside and when she did she'd be gone for hours only to come back and be scolded by not only her owners but by her parents as well. Her parents were very stern and got mad very easily. Coco hated house life. So, she formulated a plan. It was a messy one but in the end it worked out just fine. On a gloomy night, she escaped through a hole in the screen window she had made during previous outings. It may have been gloomy and cloudy but it was hot so her owners left the windows open, seemingly unaware of the hole she made. She raced into the nearby forest and just kept running. The feeling of being on her own and just running through the forest was thrilling to her. For days she wandered around. She would stick with some cats here and there and learned quickly how to hunt and fight a bit so she can fend for herself as a small, 8 month old molly. She also heard rumors from loners that wandered the area of her previous human home that her parents went searching for her and under unknown circumstances, Her mother ended up going missing and her father died. Coco was saddened, it was directly her fault her parents met these fates but at the same time, she felt free. She couldn't turn back especially not after meeting this new band of cats that will come to be known as Hidden Colony. This group of cats seemed promising and interesting, so, she agreed to stick with them. She'll never admit it, but she's glad she found them.

Now being an outrider, Coco still keeps up her fierce personality, if anything, it has worsened now. She is independent and strong, not taking anything from anyone. She sticks with her colony and has a dislike like the other colonies due to her adoration for her own. She is a great outrider and walks with her head held high knowing that she is.

Trivia 📖

- She's based off of a cute pic of a cat I found on Pinterest where I thought the cat looked a bit grumpy, and she's based off of my mom's dog, Coco!
- She adores Hidden Colony but that's a secret she'll take to the grave
- Her favorite flower is roses
