Original language: French

(00:00) Le parc national de la Cross River représente un effort de conservation important pour les gorilles et d'autres espèces menacées. Cependant, les personnes qui vivent dans la région et aux alentours ont le sentiment que leurs besoins de subsistance ne sont pas pris en compte. (00:40)

(00:40) Comme il n'y a pas beaucoup d'alternatives dans la région, ils finissent par avoir recours à des pratiques telles que le braconnage ou la déforestation pour subvenir à leurs besoins. (01:20)

Translation into English

(00:00) The Cross River National Park is an important conservation effort for Gorillas and other endangered species. However, people who live in and around the area feel that their livelihood needs are not being taken into account. (00:40)

(00:40) Since there aren't many alternatives in the area, they end up having to rely on practices such as poaching or deforestation to support themselves. (01:20)

Note: Please respect the interviewee's phrasing. Use the exact same words you hear in the audio, don't shorten, summarize or substitute content.
