

I'll be really honest with everyone reading, I never thought that one day I would have to do anything like this. At the time of writing, I am still processing a lot of information and the betrayal and abuse I had been facing for the past year or so. I would like to apologize in advance if it looks a bit messy, but I feel like it's important that I share what I have been through.

I'm Hari — formerly known as Frizzz, a Welcome Home creator within the fandom — and I am a former friend of Murciè, otherwise known as BloodBatz. His current name is Killian, so I will be referring to him as this for the rest of the document.

By no means is this letter here to discredit his experience with Java, I am not in a place to dictate if what he went through was grooming or not. This is something that he gets to choose.

This is a separate situation, although the Java and Bug drama still plays a small part in it. I simply ask you not to use this as an excuse to discredit his story.

That being said, if you read this document, it means that I had no other choice than to share it. I had cut off Killian, and blocked him — but as far as I'm aware, he went to other people about me, and apparently even used an alternate Discord account to DM a friend of mine and try to guilt-trip them. So, if I share this, it means that he is not respecting mine and/or other people's choice to be left alone, and that he is still actively trying to get to me or to other people, and that some of us are feeling unsafe.

Trigger warning — mentions of NSFW, mentions of emotional abuse and heavy manipulation, mentions of self-harm as well as other sensitive topics. If you feel uncomfortable reading, feel free to close the document.

My involvement in the Java and Bug situation:

I will keep this short. When the allegations first came out through the WHexposer account, I went to Killian and offered him my support almost immediately. I ended up helping him put his statement in document format, so he wouldn't get too stressed out about it. I took his testimony, his screenshots, and tried to put it all into a Google Doc. I then gave him full ownership, and retracted myself. I did notice he changed around some statements here and there, but I chose to pay it no mind as it was his recalling of the events, not mine.

My overall involvement stops there, the most I had done outside of that was publicly express my dislike of Java and Bug. The rest stayed private, as I gave him my support on Discord and tried consoling him as best as I could, as a friend should.

The situation would go on to drag though. Contradictions arose, people fought, the Exposer account turned into a witch-hunt... It was messy, I was stressed out, and when faced with criticism and attacks towards myself, I had to leave Twitter for a few months. Nevertheless, I still offered Killian my time and support, and tried as hard as I could to be there for him.

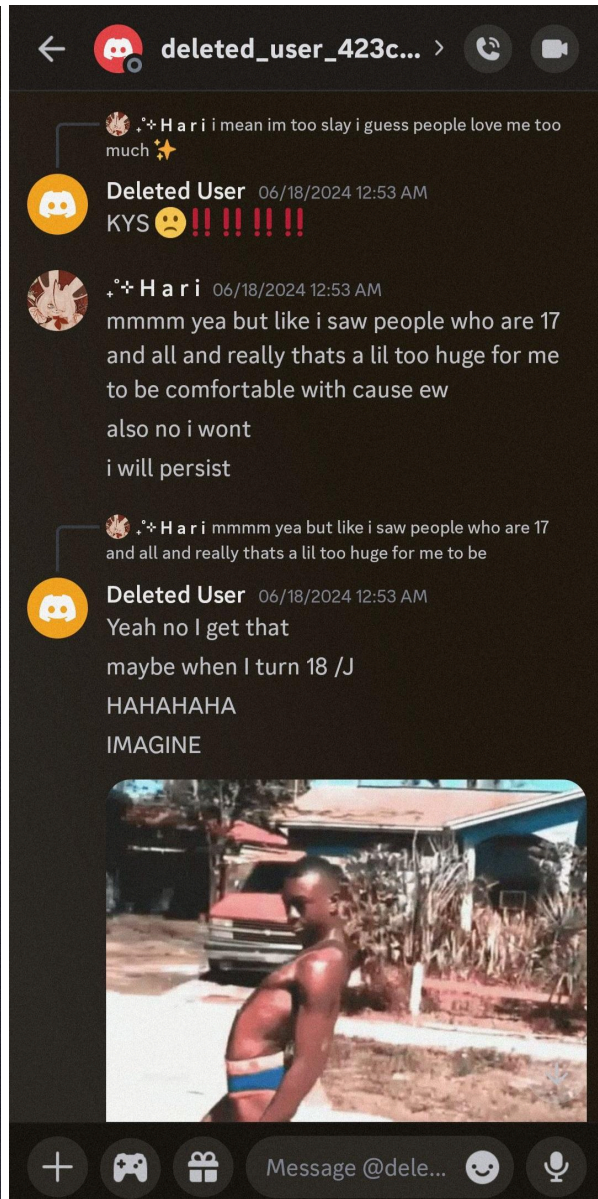

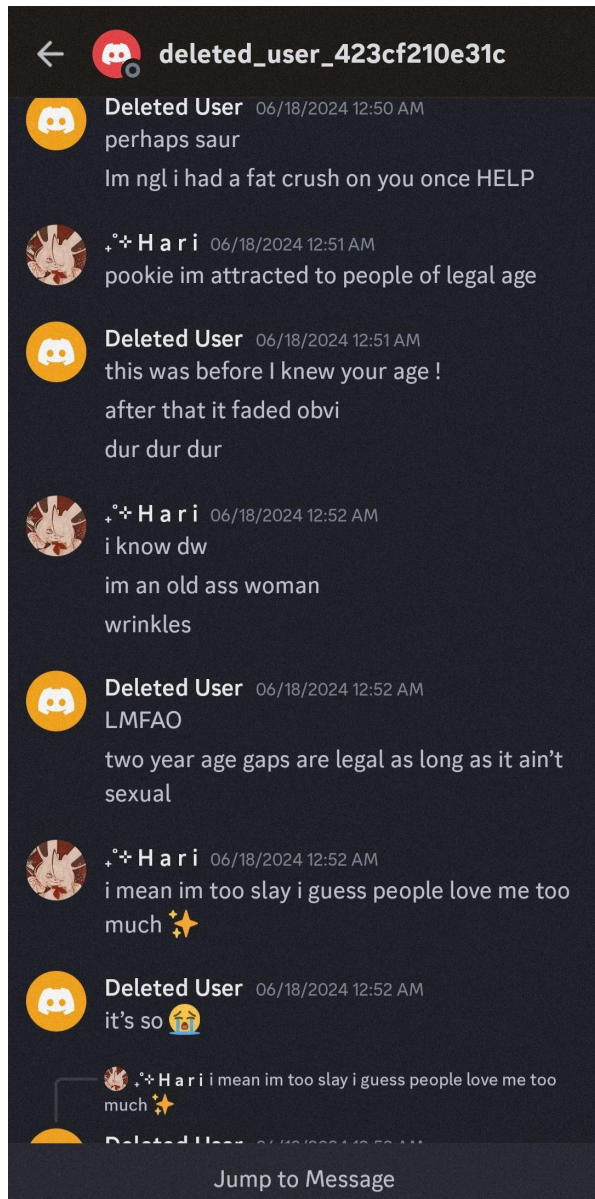

But, now we're here. And that's because throughout the year I had been his friend, I was faced with constant emotional abuse, and learned things I wish I never knew about him and his actions. Upon learning those things, a lot of the behavior I was forced to endure flashed in my mind, and I realized the extent of what I had gone through, what he made me go through. I was simply in denial.

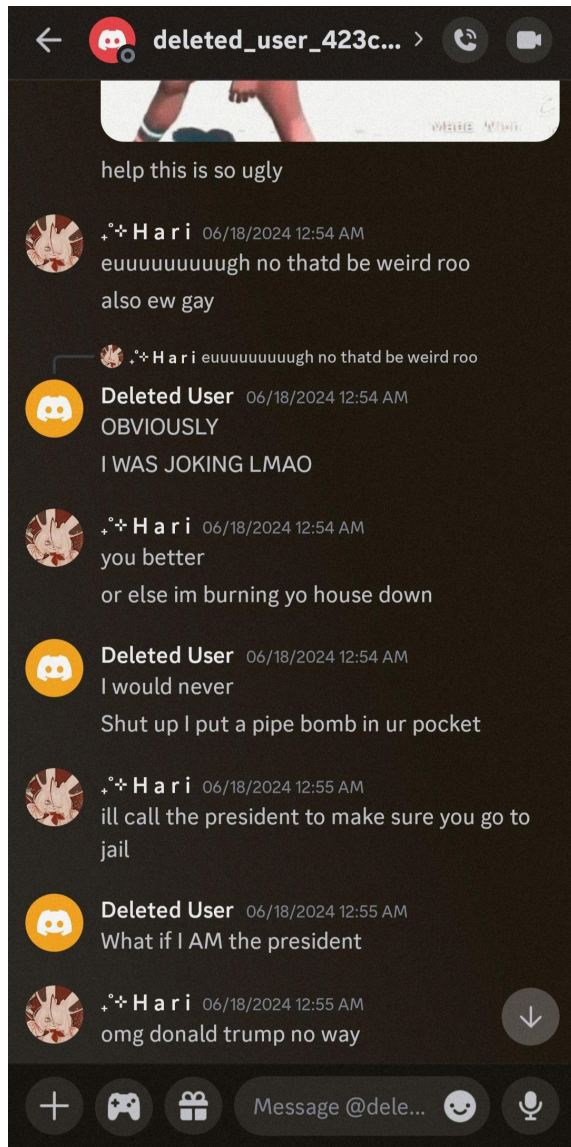

Coercion:

I'm not even sure what to call this. I am the oldest one in the situation, as I was 19-20 and he was 17-18 when all of this happened. I don't think I can call this grooming due to my age, but I also feel like sexual harassment is too strong to describe this. I think the more appropriate term is coercion, like he was testing the waters to see what I would be willing to do or not, while simultaneously trying to force it upon me, no matter if I said no in the past.

Before the Java and Bug situation blew up, I was one of the people he had reached out to follow his NSFW account. I knew he was 17 at the time, so I refused, and immediately started worrying. I reached out to a server I was in called the Mod Hub to consult other adults about the situation, as I was at a loss — I didn't know how to change his mind or what to say, and I had a gut feeling that another adult may have enabled this behavior. Former Mod Hub members who were present that day could vouch if they remember. I know it was really long ago, but many people saw it. This was the first instance where Killian brought up NSFW with me, and a desire for me to interact with said content.

Later on, the Java and Bug situation came out. I believe this instance was after I helped him make his response, and he had been calling the two of them groomers for engaging in NSFW talk with him as two 19 year olds while he was 17. He was still 17 and I was 19 when this happened. He started telling me what I had assumed to be an innocent anecdote about him having a crush on me once. Overall, I teased him about it, but I was very clear that, as an adult, I would only date other adults as it is what felt right to me. He tried to argue that 17 and 19 weren't a bad age gap, that it wouldn't be problematic as long as it wasn't sexual, and I could sense a bit of forcefulness coming out of these messages, so I declined once more. He made a joke that maybe I would accept to date him once he turned 18, to which I said no again.

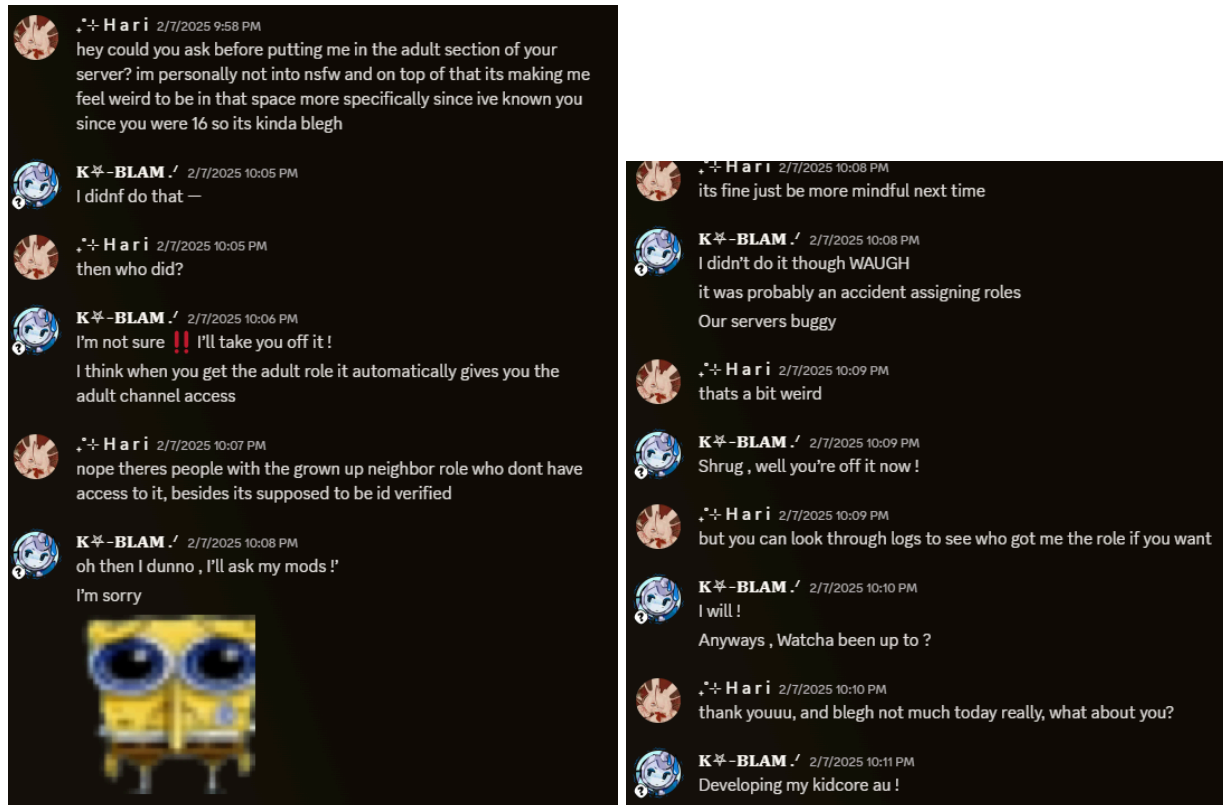

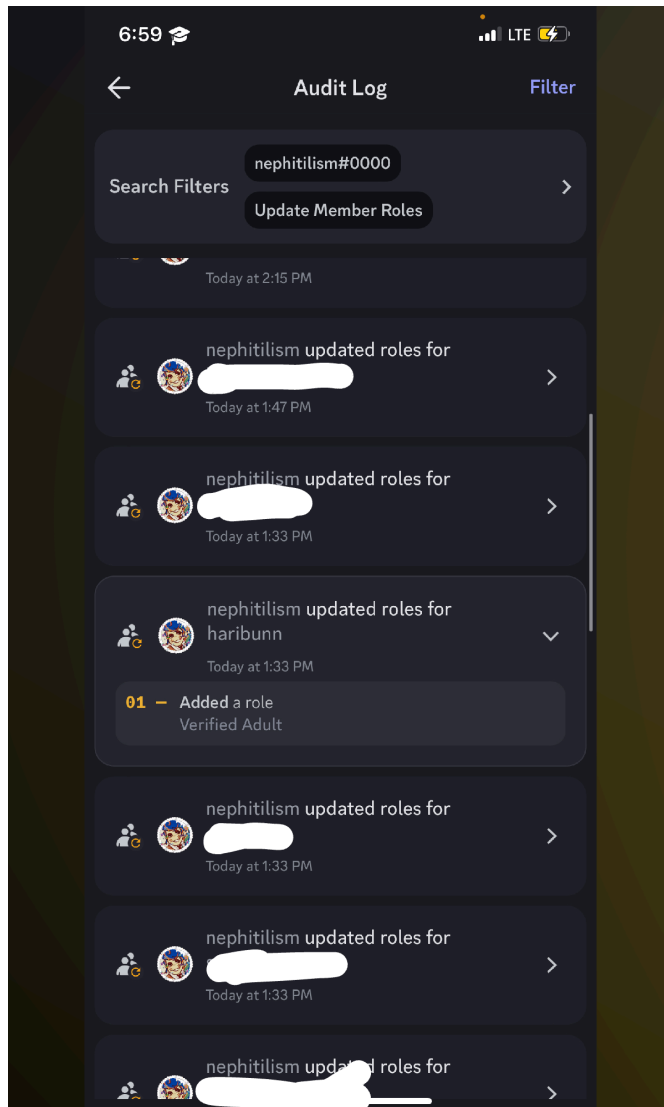

At the time, I did not realize that this was probably not a joke, even if I had something in the back of my head telling me so. I'm a little slow, so that's probably why. But the reason I now know that it was possibly not even a joke was that later on, after he turned 18, he made a new Discord server in which he added an NSFW section. To access the section, one needed to first select a role saying they wanted to join, and then an ID verification was necessary. I, again, did not want to get in there, so I did none of that.

However, one day I noticed that without even asking for it, I was added to it. This was without my consent. I immediately reached out to Killian about it, asking him why I was even in there at all. He suggested that the adult role immediately gives you access to it, which is false since I had the adult role selected before and it didn't show anything. The NSFW section stated that you needed another role and an ID verification on top of that, so he tried telling me that it could be that the server is very buggy or that another mod may have given me the role.

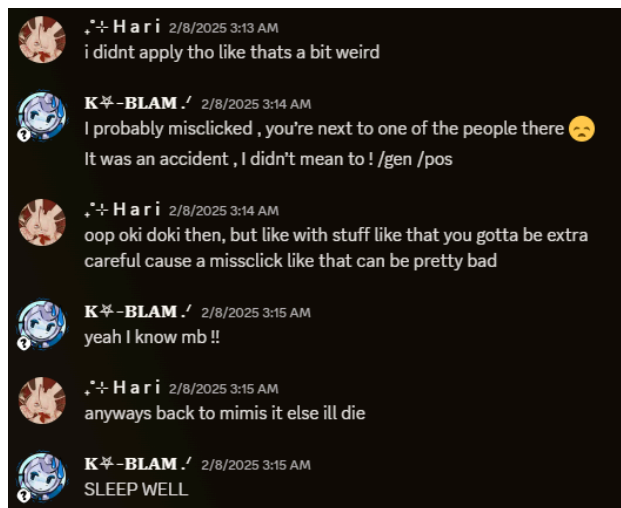

I asked to see the audit logs of the server to see who may have given me the role as it was concerning to have a moderator potentially do that, he said he would look and show me but never did, and simply assured me that he wasn't the one that put me in there. I was removed from the section shortly after.

I waited to receive the logs, but he never sent them to me, so I reached out to the admin of the server and asked directly for them. There, I had proof that Killian lied to me, and that he did indeed add me to the NSFW section without my consent. That not only made me feel betrayed, but also violated to an extent — I was forced into a sexual space without my consent.

Upon confronting him, he told me he didn't mean to, that it was an accident etc., but I do believe, as so do other people, that it was voluntary: it would explain why he avoided giving me the audit logs when I asked him to, and the excuse he gave me was extremely weak as, like I said before, I had not applied for the NSFW section. His reasoning changed as I disproved his claims, before I showed him the logs and after, so it leads me to believe he actively lied to me and tried to, once more, involve me in a sexual space I did not want to partake in.

UPDATE - The former creator of the server (Killian did not make it, it was someone else) just told me that the NSFW system did not work like that at all. The verification system was automated by a bot, meaning there was no need nor reason for Killian to add the NSFW role manually to anyone.

It's so horrid to hear, specially with all the weird behavior he had towards you with the sexual shit-

Like, I was the person who made the server that he owned, I made the system for the NSFW shit, and the way he spoke about how he added the nsfw role to you is flat out not how the NSFW system even worked

Okay, so the server had a bot called Appy. I set the bot up for both the verification and NSFW ID verification. When would you make an application for the bot, talk in the bot dm's and it would make a message for the staff to see the application. When it's sent inside the log channel, there are options for you to accept or decline it. When you accept it on this server, it will give you the role fully. You didn't need to go to the person and give the role manually; the bot did all the work for you. I set it up to make it easier for staff to give these roles out.

Blam/Killian never spoke about the issue between you two in the staff chat, never asked the staff who did it, or anything either.

This is why I have a new perspective on the time that he told me about the crush he had on me — it explained why he was being a bit too insistent for it to be a simple joke even after the Java drama, and that situation where I felt violated made the memory resurface once more. My belief that none of this was a mistake and was in fact intentional is only strengthened by the fact that I now know the extent of his lies, not only towards me but towards other people.

I will say this once more. I don't know what to call these experiences. He repeatedly tried to get me to follow his NSFW accounts or see his NSFW art, even going as far as to get me into one of those spaces without my consent, and I think he tried to push romantic advances onto me in what I believe to be a coercive way, as despite my stance being clear, he would still push reasons as to why it could potentially work. He pushed my boundaries on that aspect too many times, and was already lying to me a lot, involving me in things I did not want.

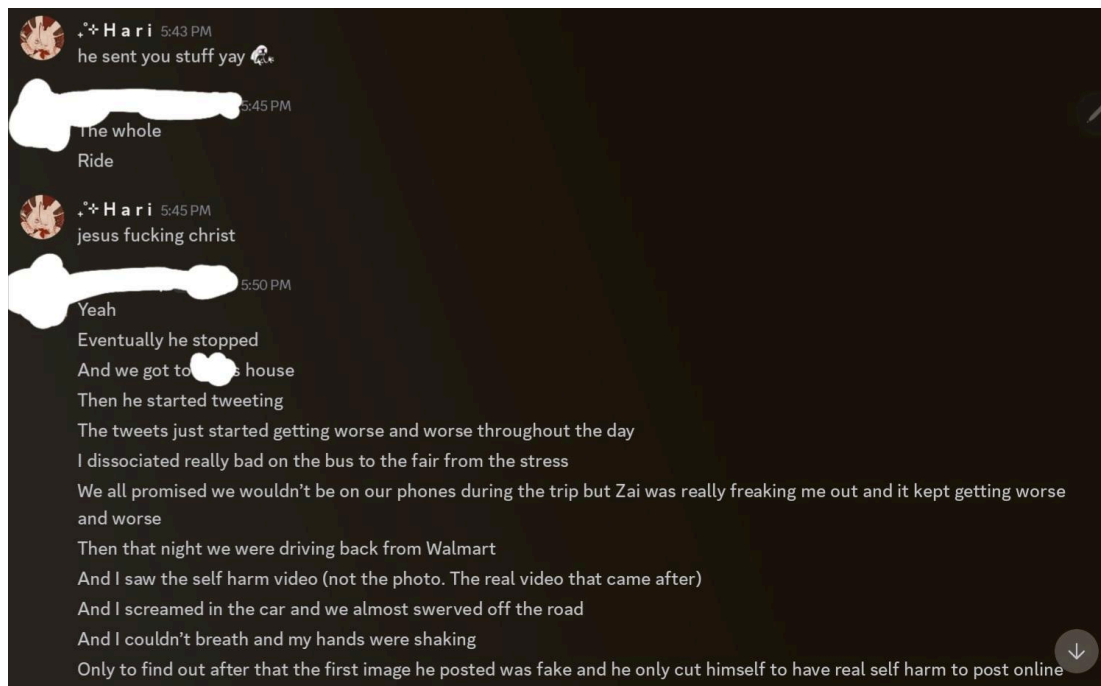

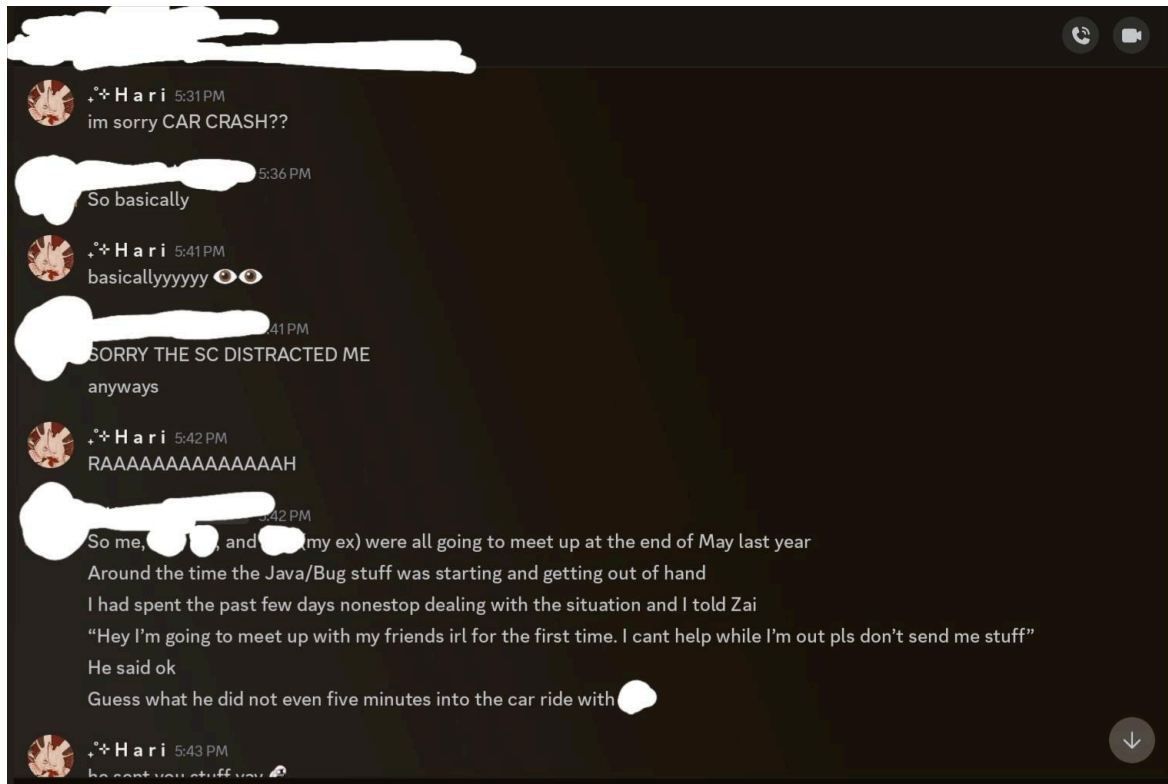

That type of behavior was over the past year I had been his friend, and I now just realise that the more things went on, the more it escalated: from just asking me to follow his NSFW accounts, to full on shoving me in one of those spaces without my consent.

It was forced onto me, without me being able to say or do anything about it before being exposed to such content.

Emotional abuse:

Killian would often turn to me to vent heavily all throughout our friendship. I had been subjected to a lot of stress when handling these episodes, and it made me realize that the core reason as to why I would let myself get into these situations was because I was terrified of what he could do to himself, or what he could do to me if I did not comply.

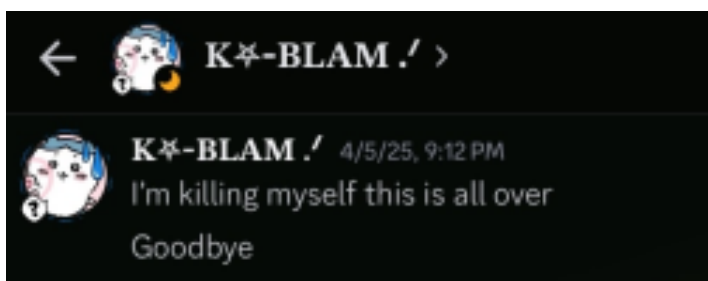

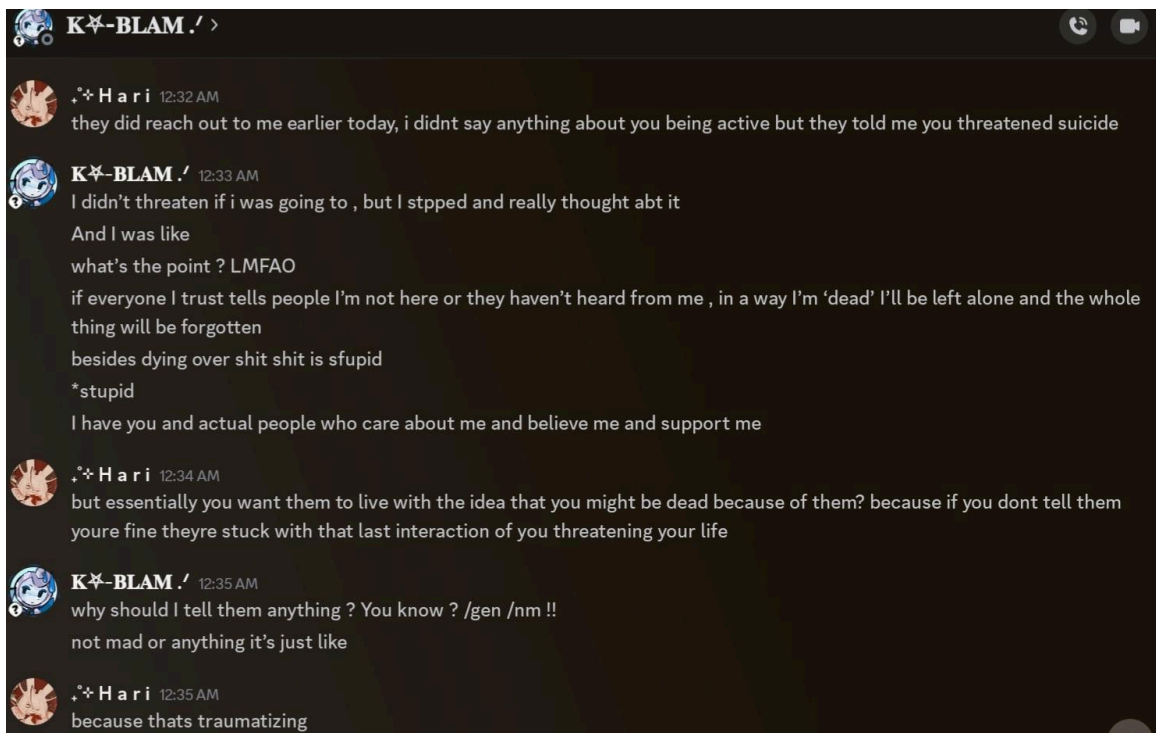

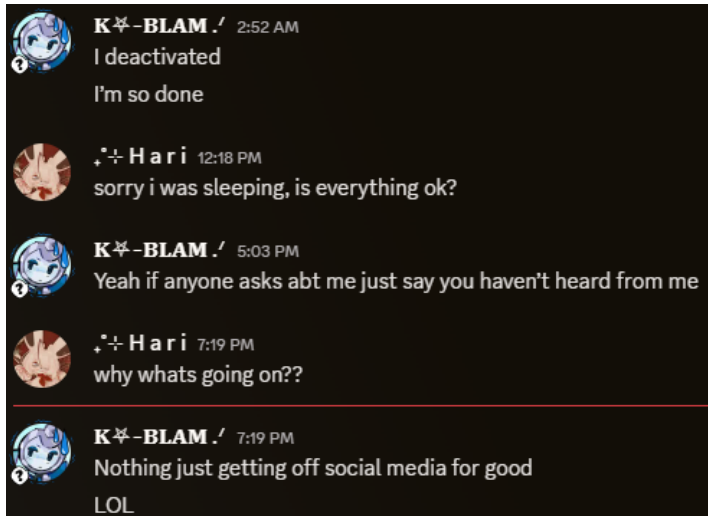

One of the examples I can give you is during the period where WHexposer was still around, it was public, so if you were there, you will most likely remember. He had a really bad episode where he would tell people on his main account to die, and he even went as far as to post a picture that was presented to be of his arm covered in cuts and bleeding profusely. It was found out later that it was faked, as someone Google reverse-searched the image and found its origin somewhere else on the Internet. Here is the testimony of one of my friends regarding what happened:

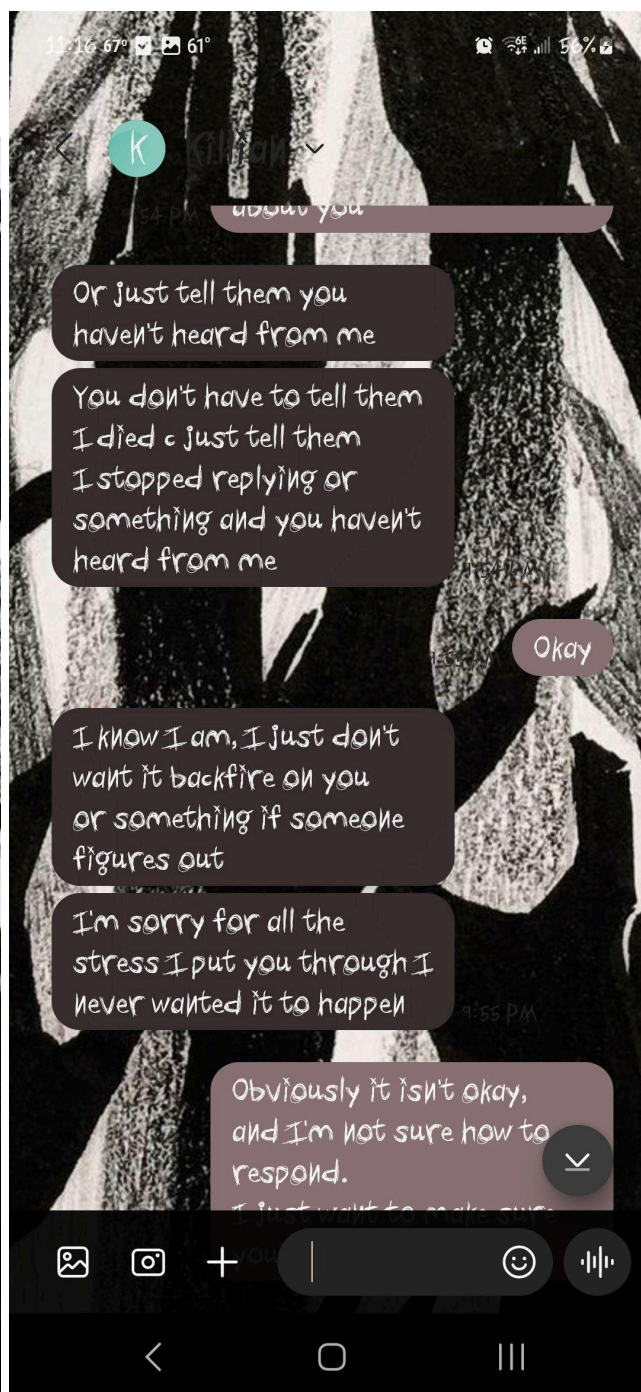

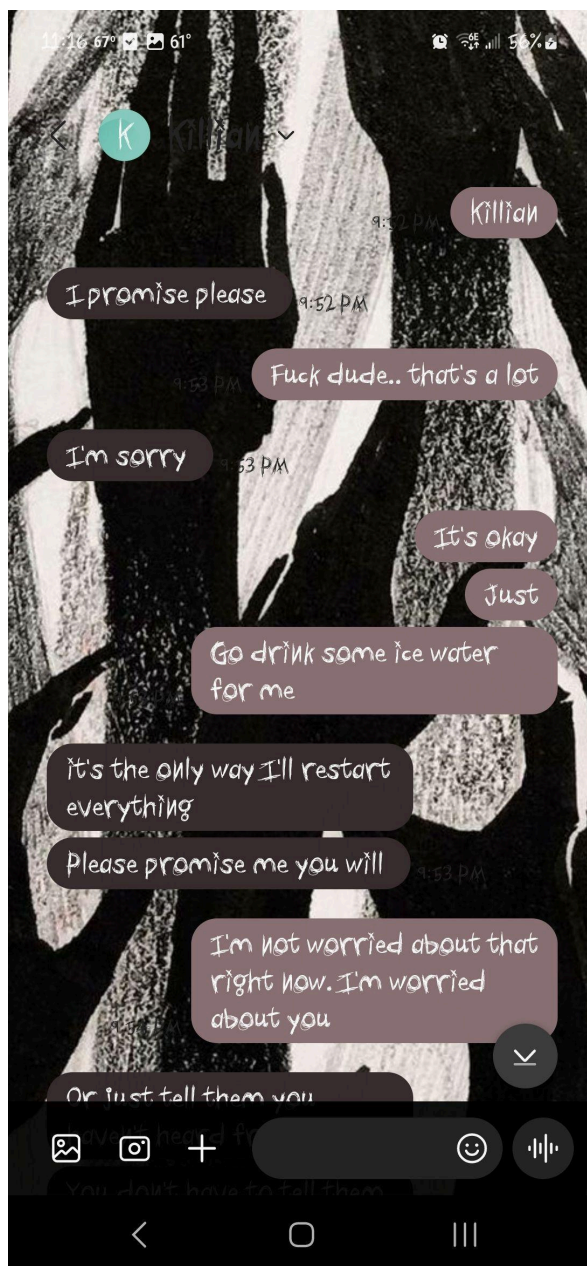

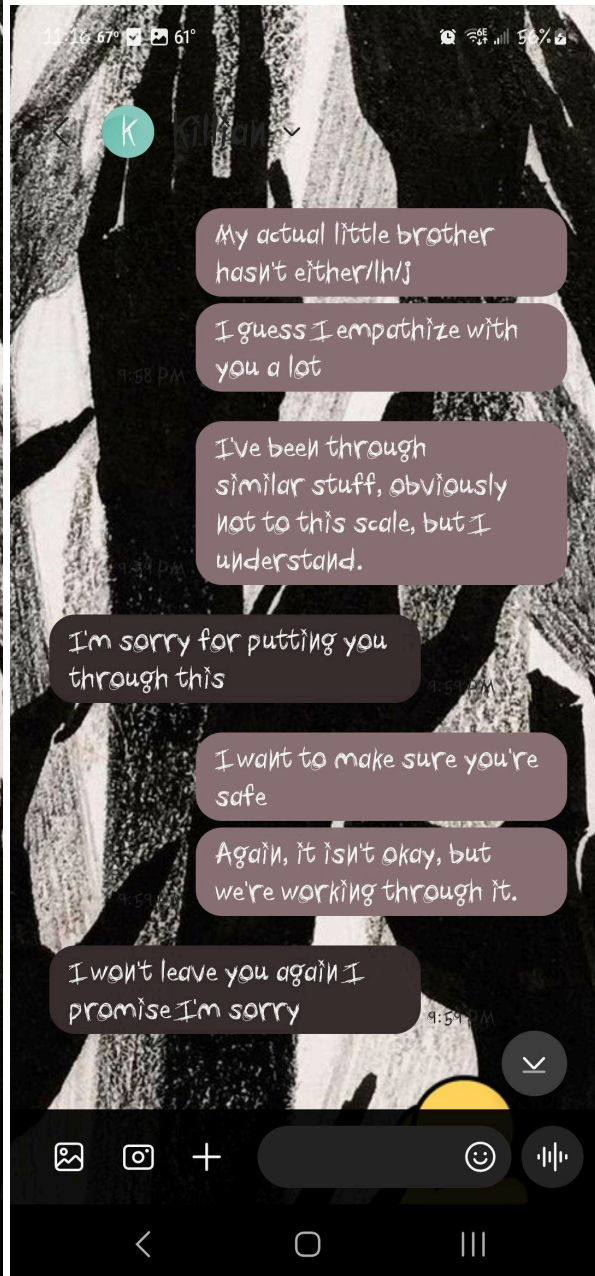

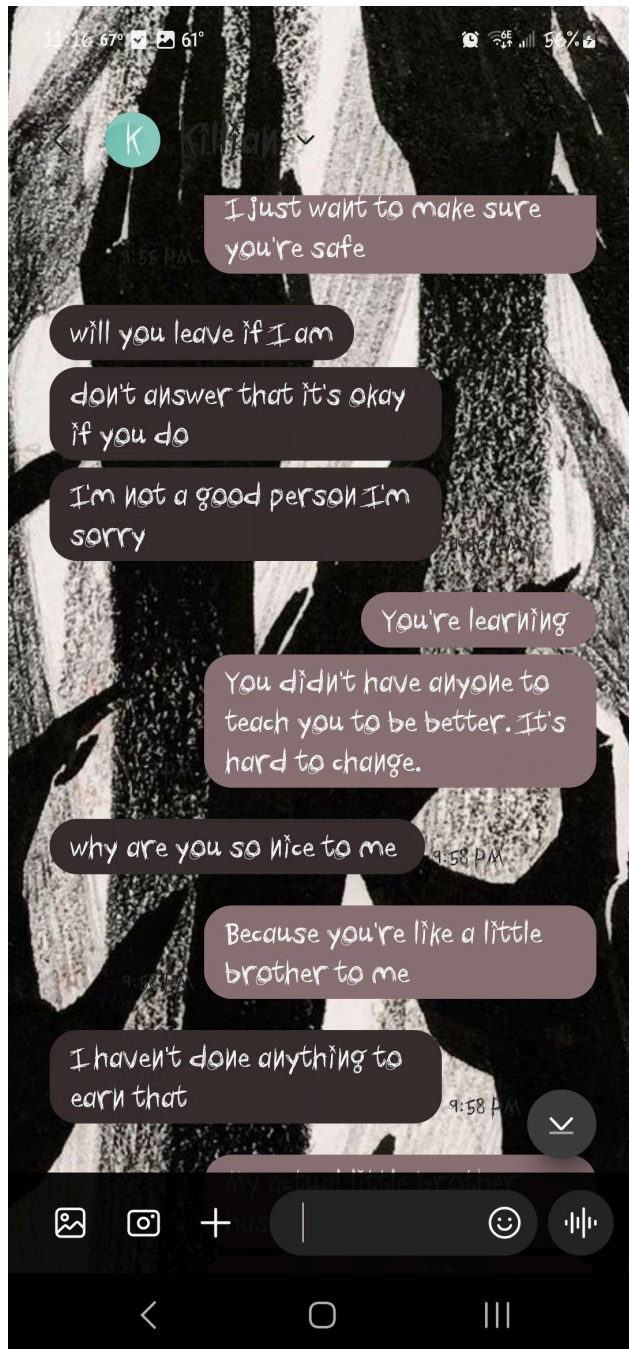

Another example I can give you is something that happened more recently, in private on Discord. As of May 5th, 2025, another user got in an argument with Killian, which led to him threatening his own life to them. He went to a friend of mine, and told them to "tell [the user] I am dead."

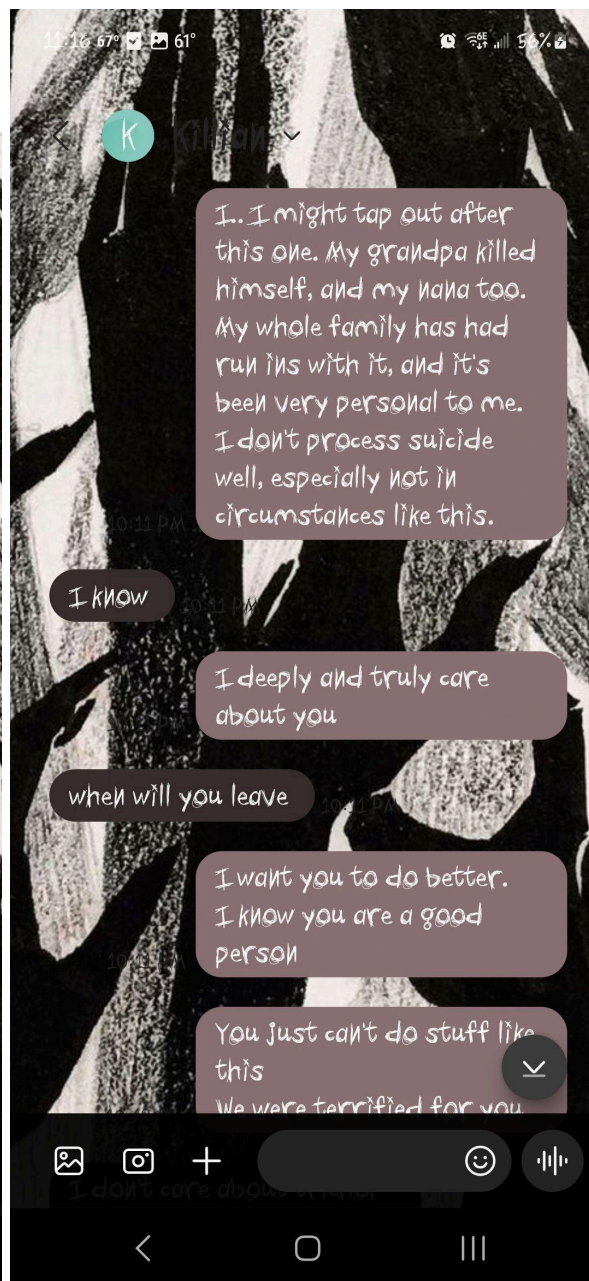

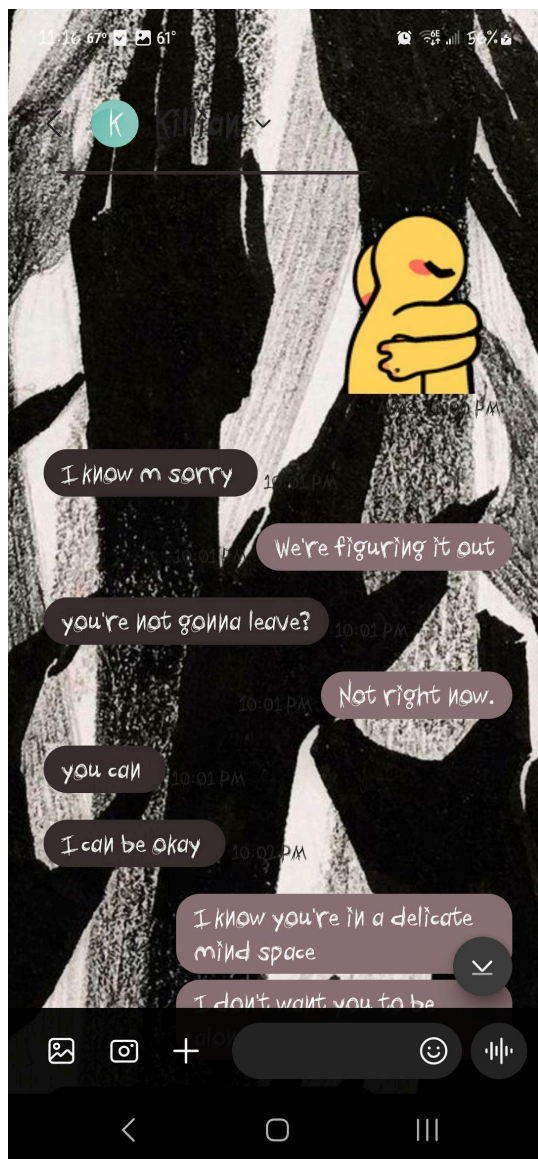

For me, it was nearly 3am, so I was already asleep and dodged the beginning of a vent. The next day, I was made aware by the user and my friend of the situation, and the two of them were extremely shaken, for valid reasons.

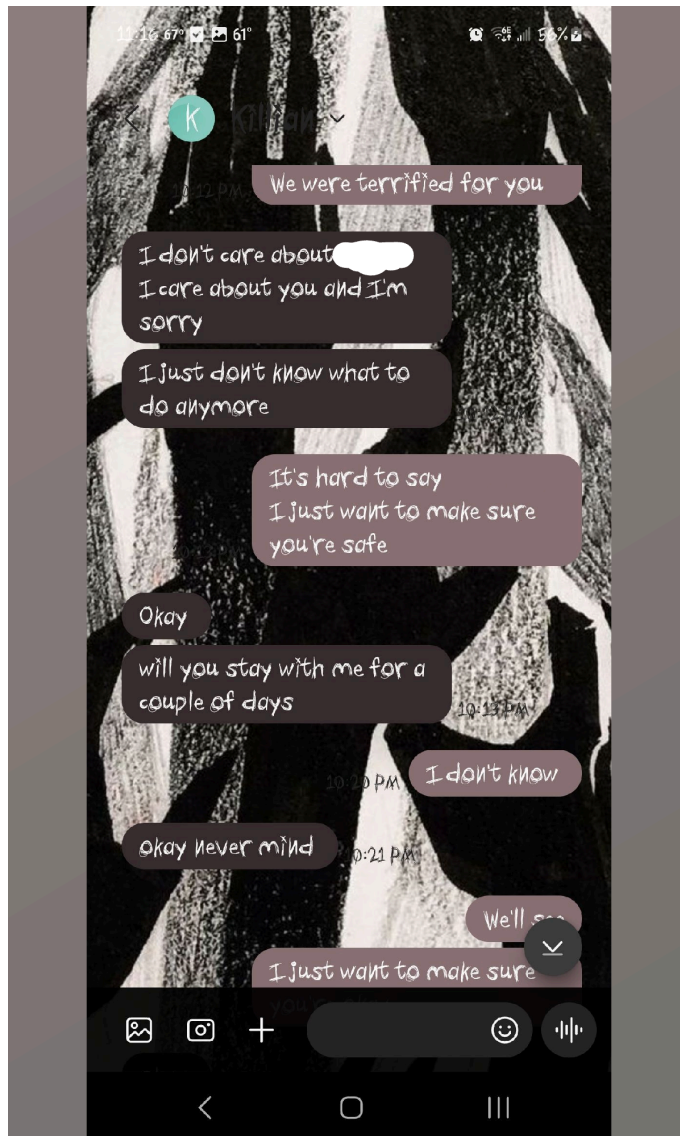

I ended up messaging him, and he did give me a response. Essentially, combining what I know and messages between Killian and another friend of mine, he tried to fake his death, telling the user he was killing himself because of their argument, and tried to get my friend to lie on his behalf to ensure the user got the blame for it and felt every ounce of guilt. He tried to pin his potential death on someone setting boundaries with him, which is absolutely terrifying regardless of how bad the argument was or how shitty the person is.

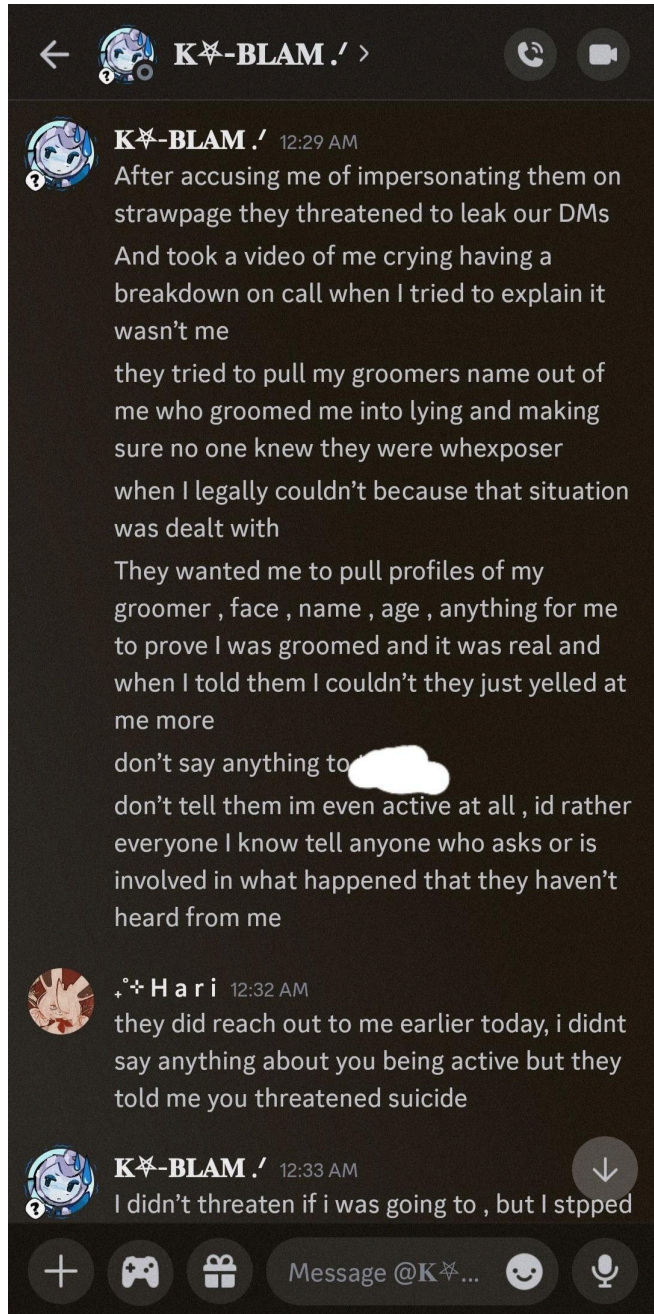

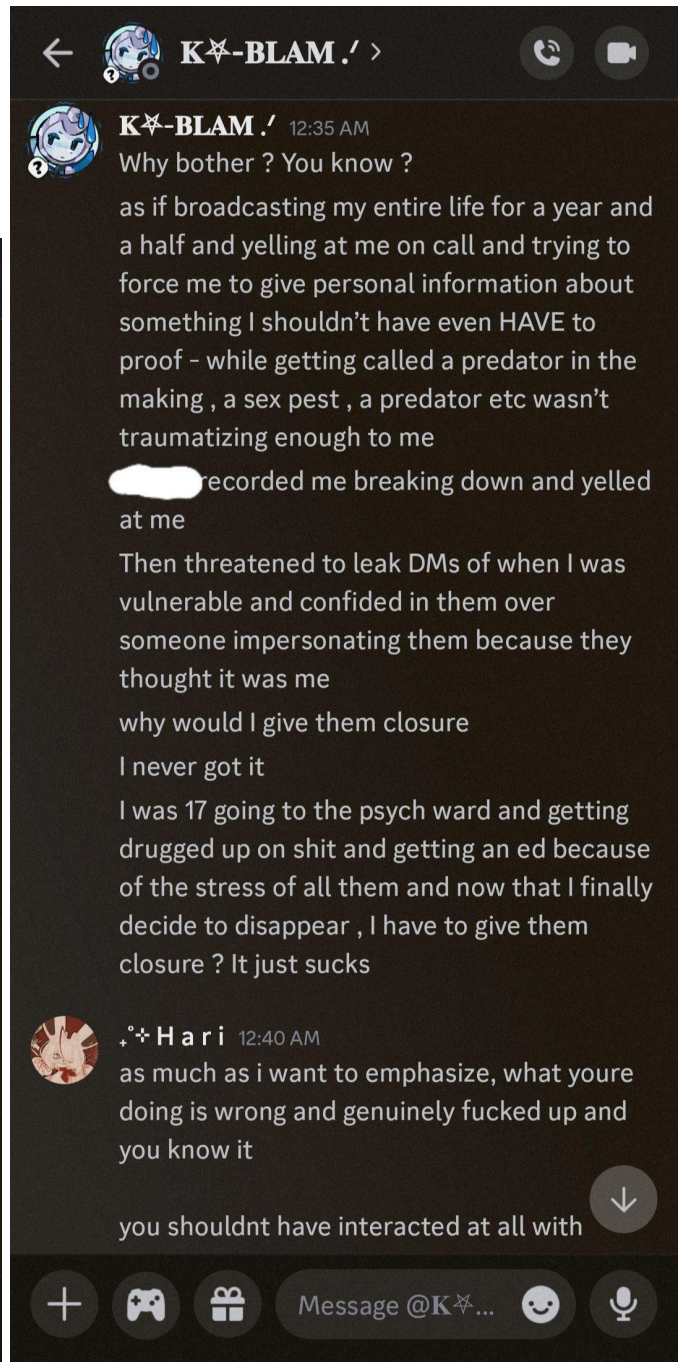

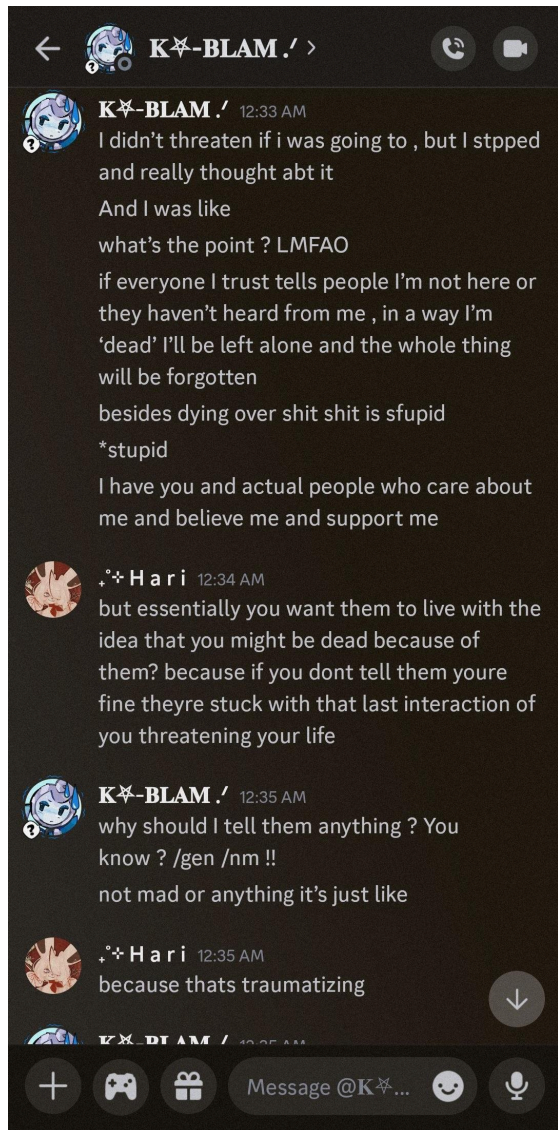

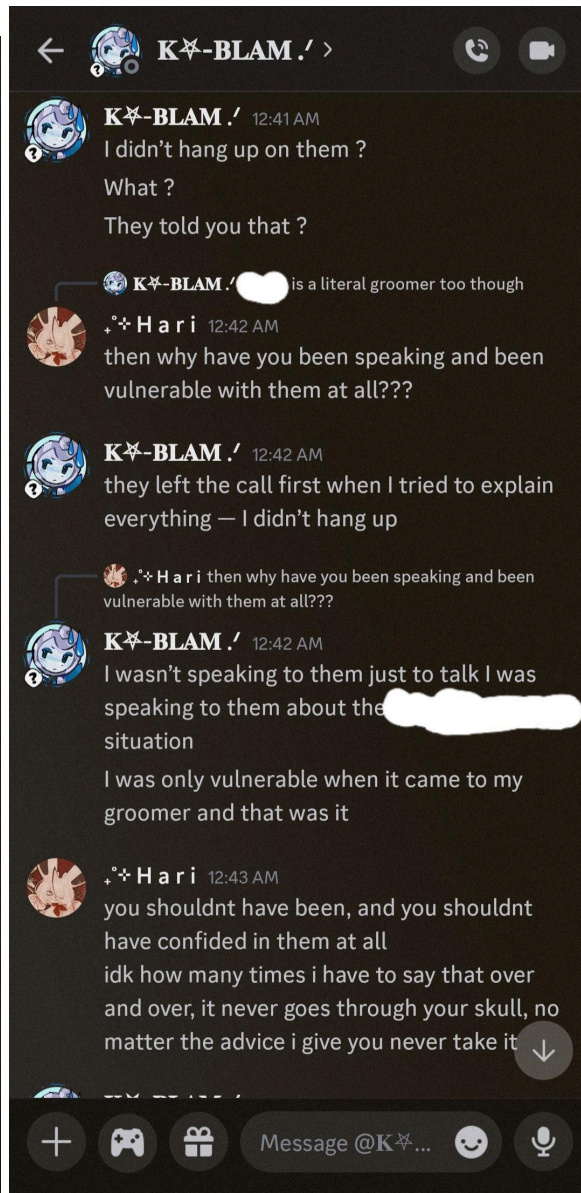

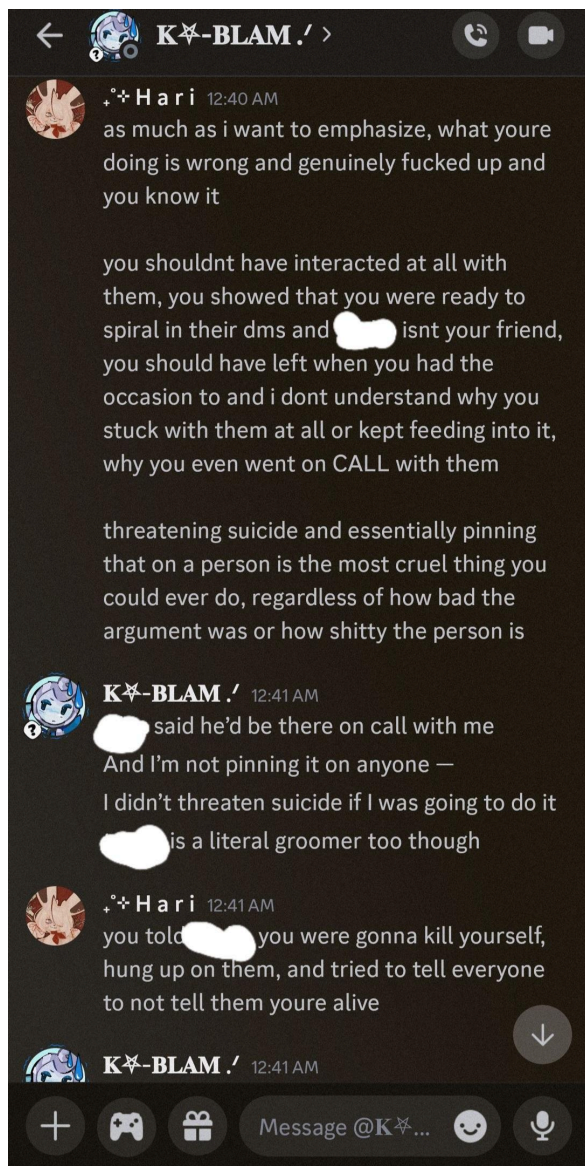

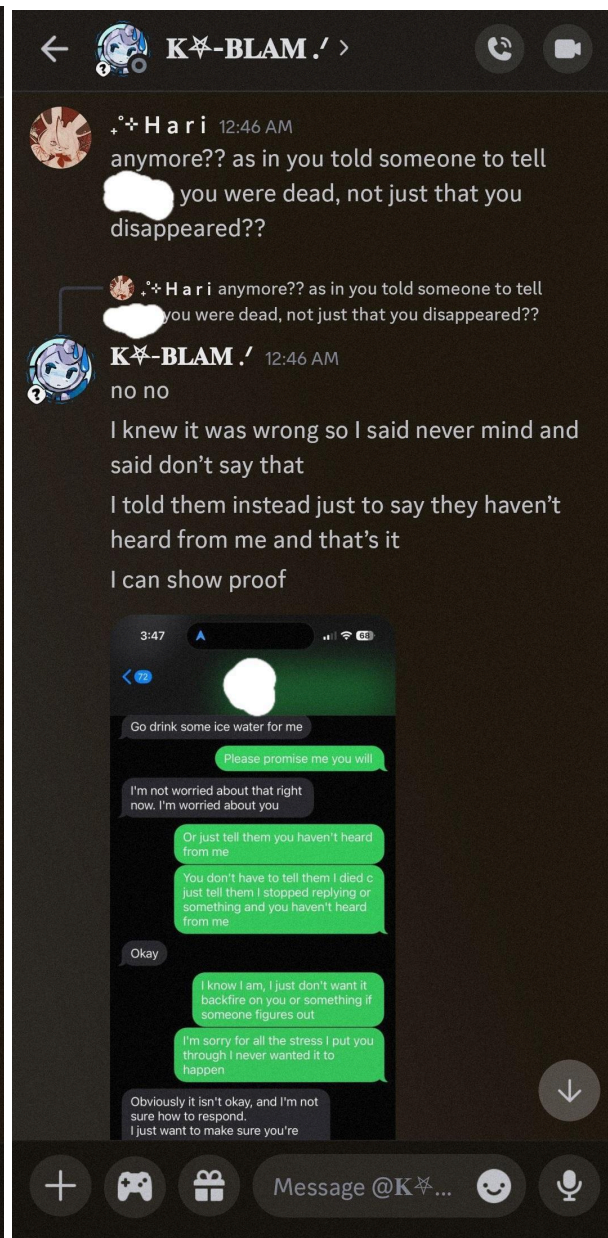

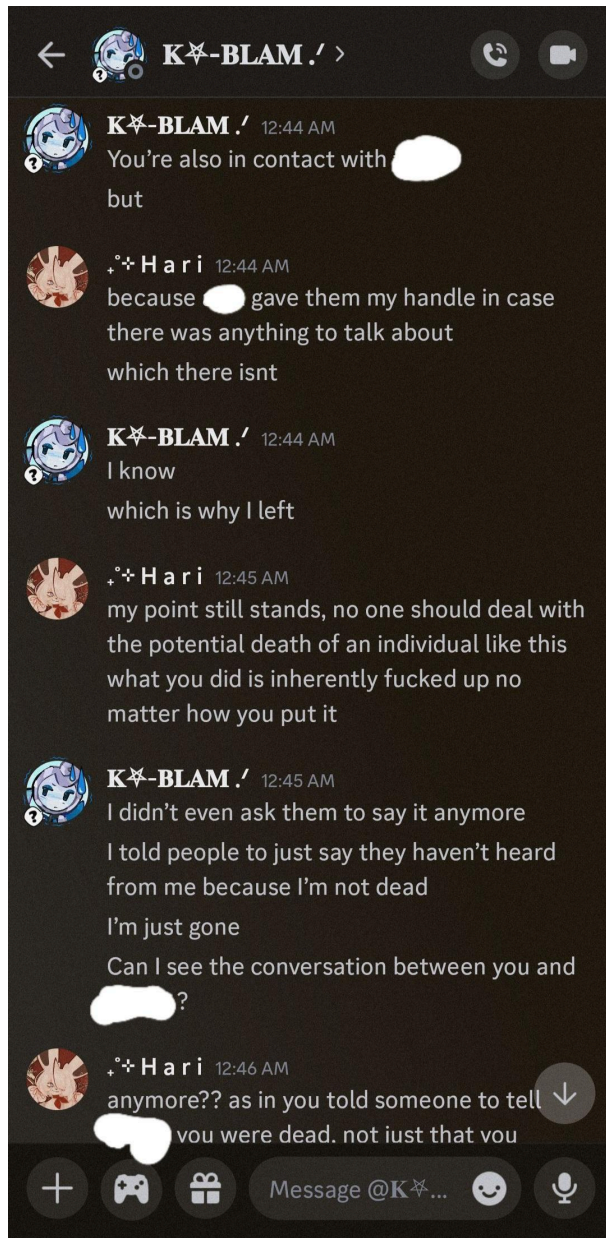

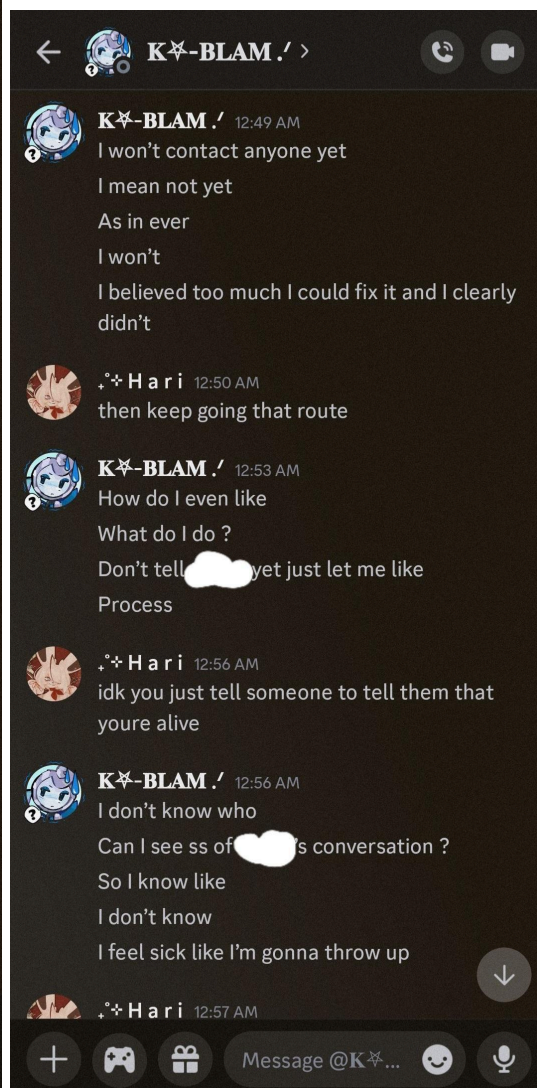

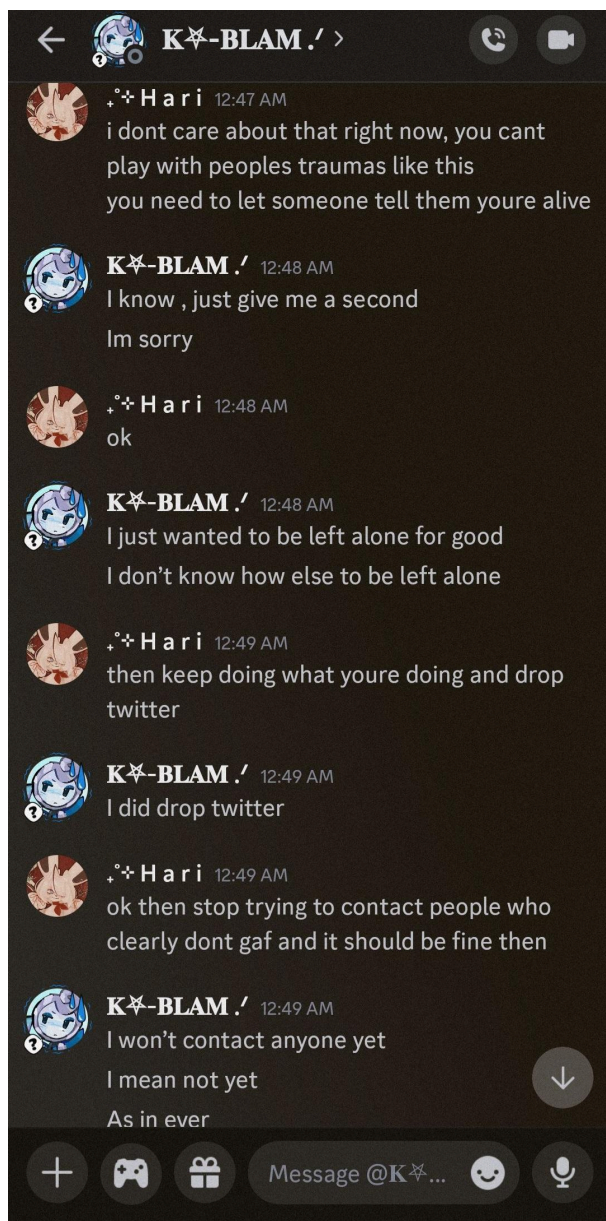

When I learned the full extent of everything, I tried to reason with him. I firmly believe that — no matter how bad the person is, no matter how bad the argument was — no one should ever have to deal with something as traumatic as potentially being the one that caused a person's death. Despite my best efforts to make him understand that, as well as expressing my frustrations with him, he still did not care and even told another individual that what he was doing was "valid". I am convinced that if it wasn't for my friend telling the user Killian was alive, he would have never given them that information at all — causing them in turn to be left with the idea he was dead regardless of what others would say.

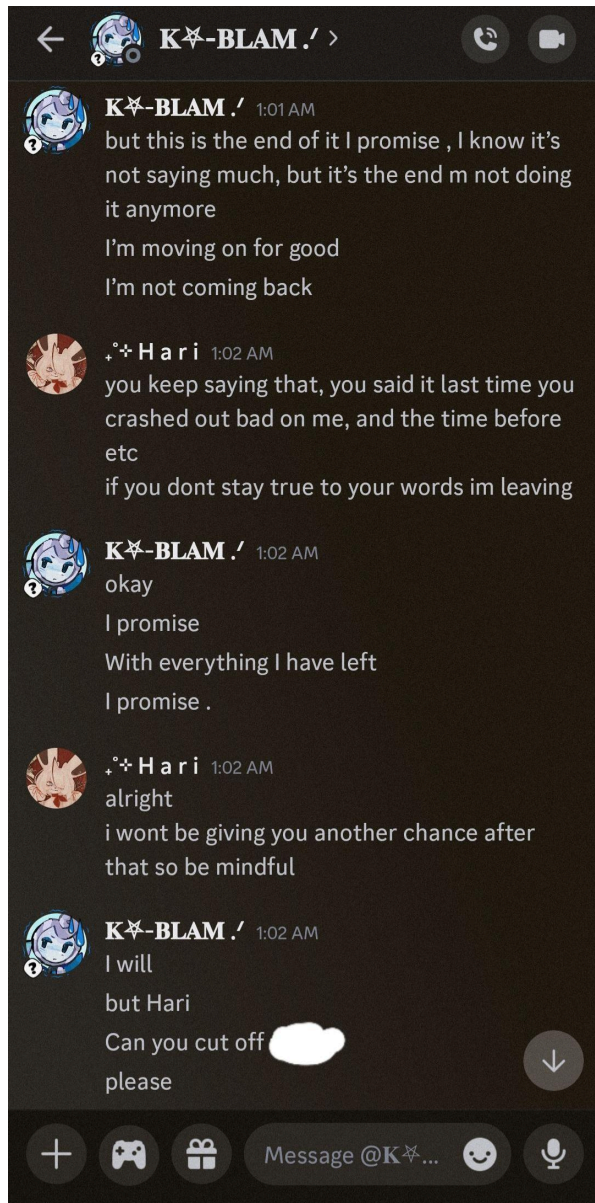

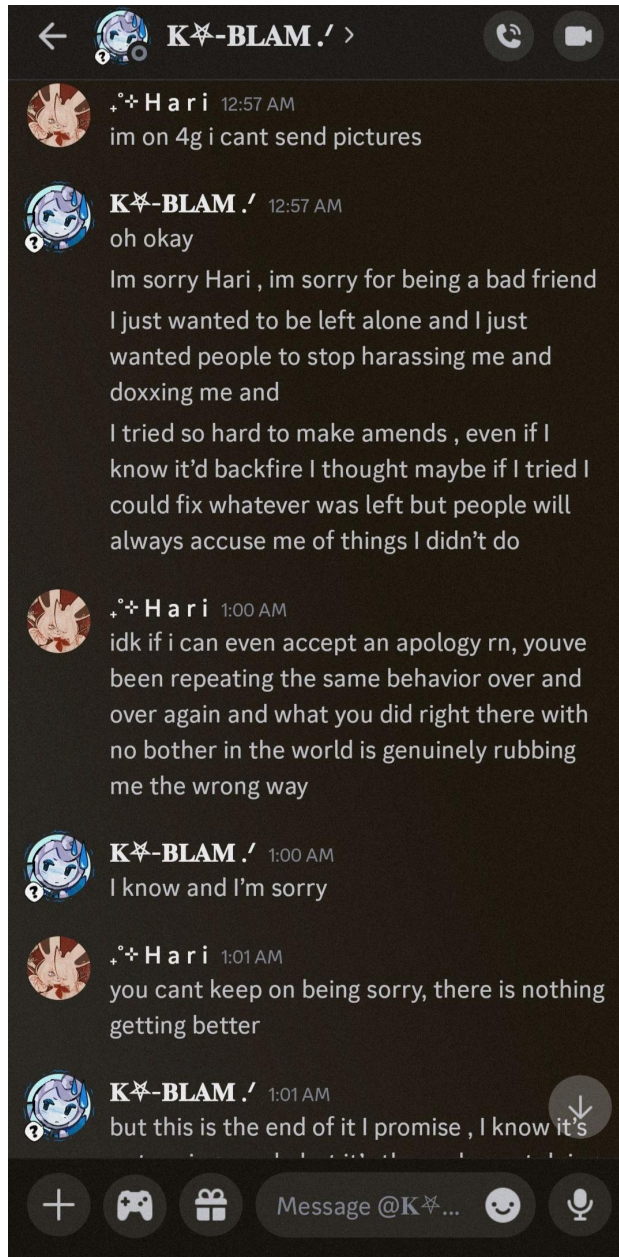

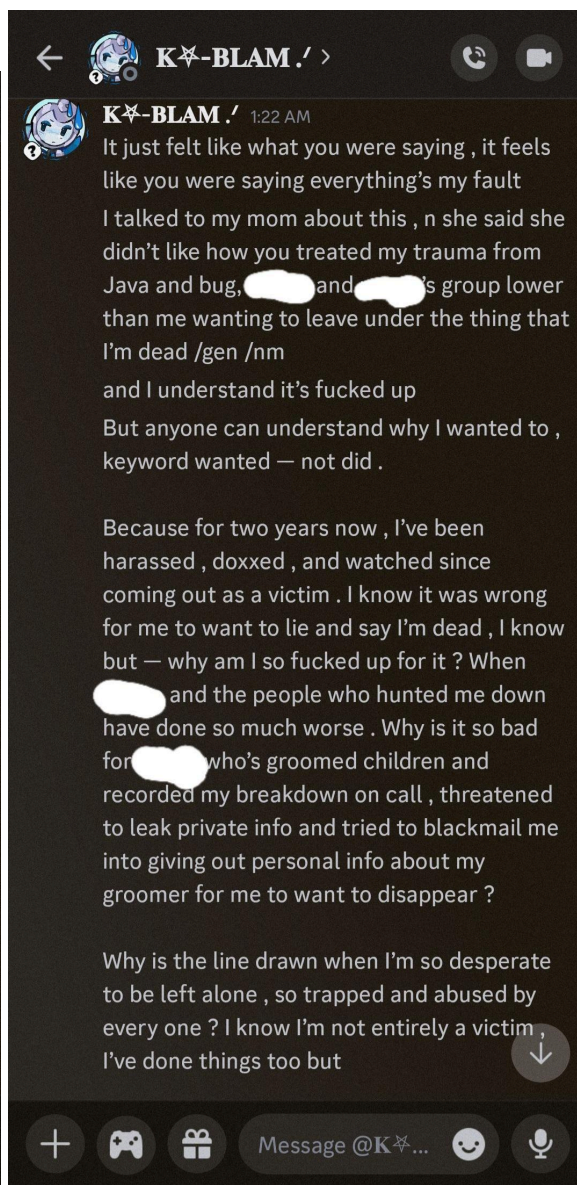

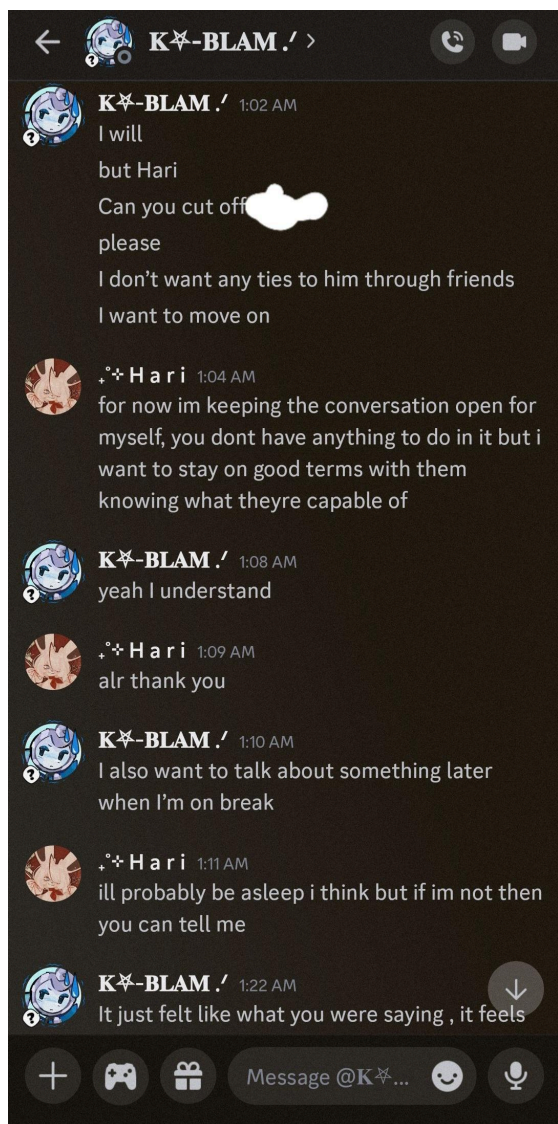

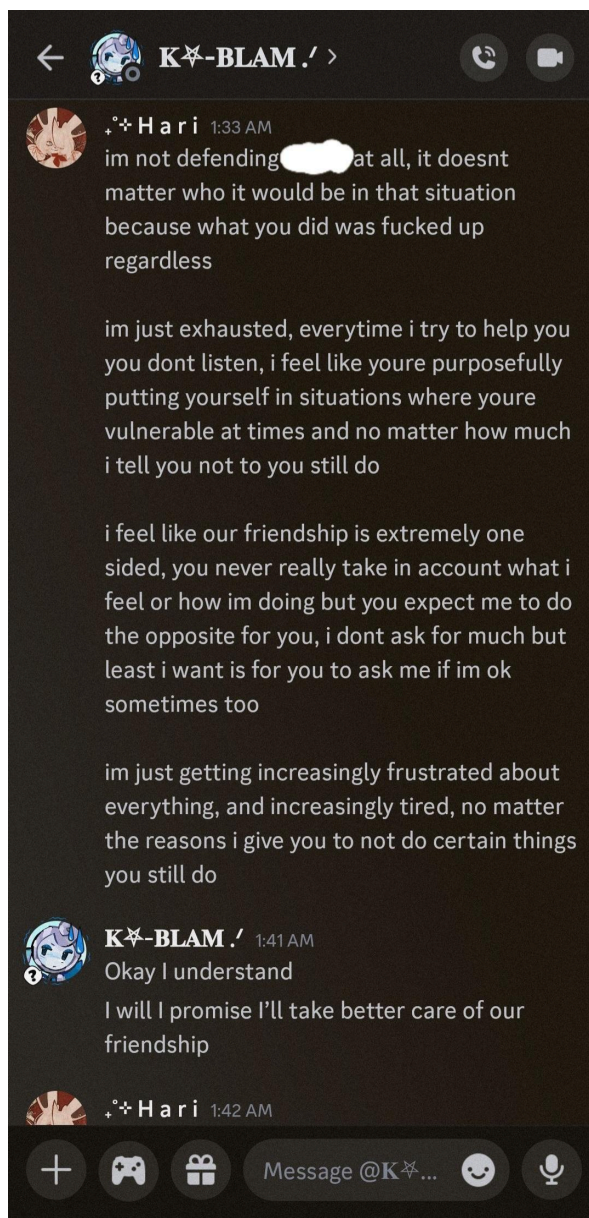

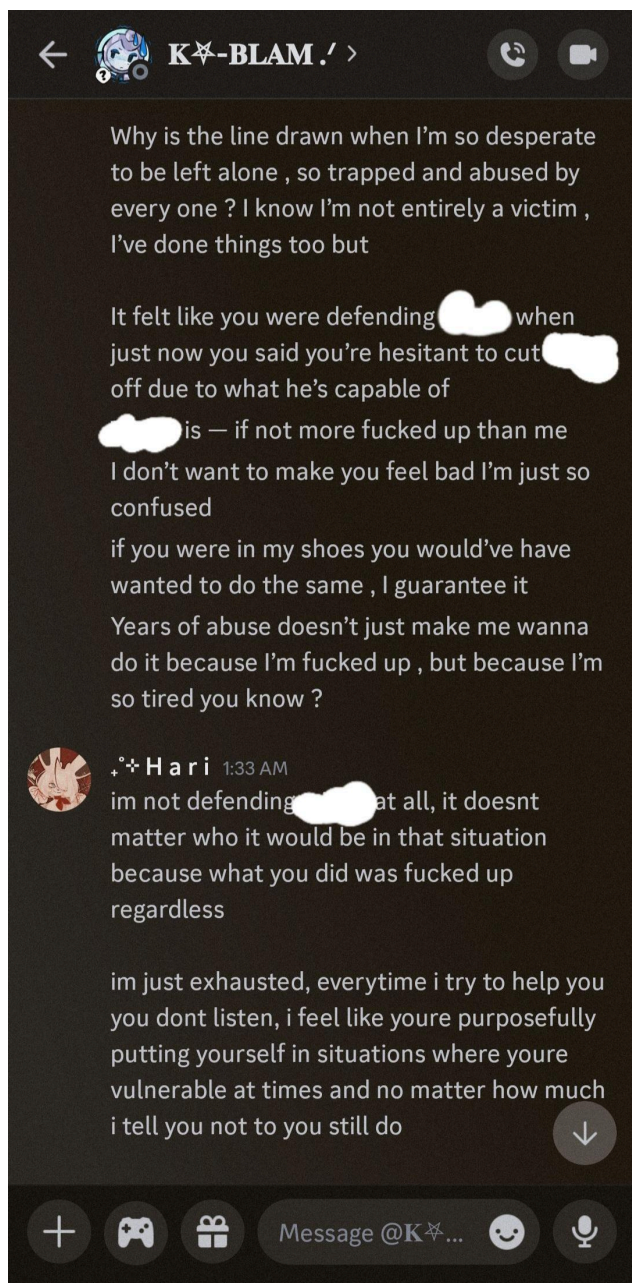

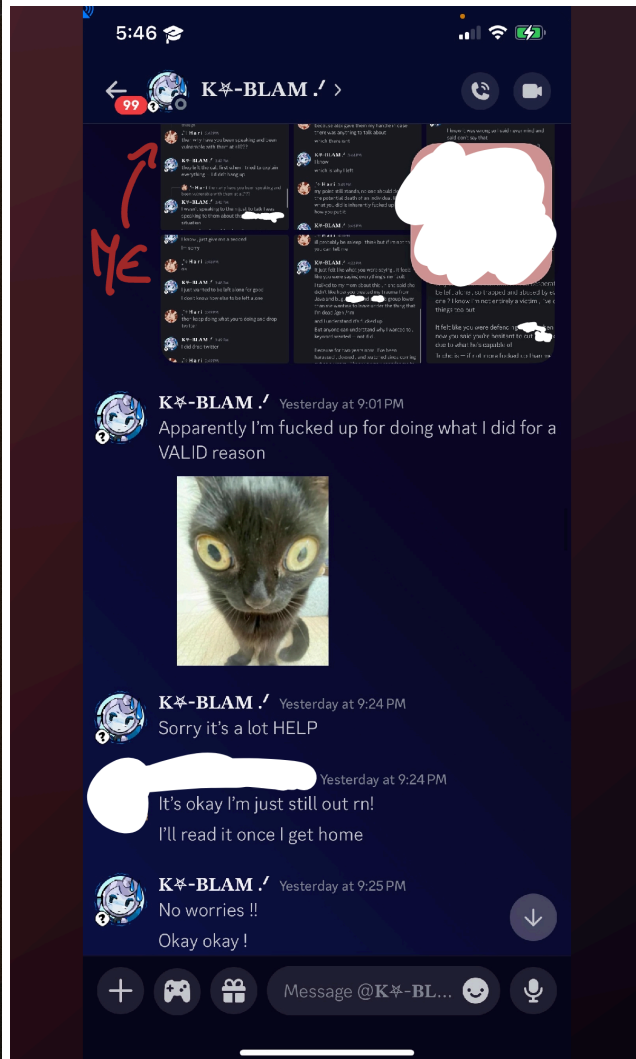

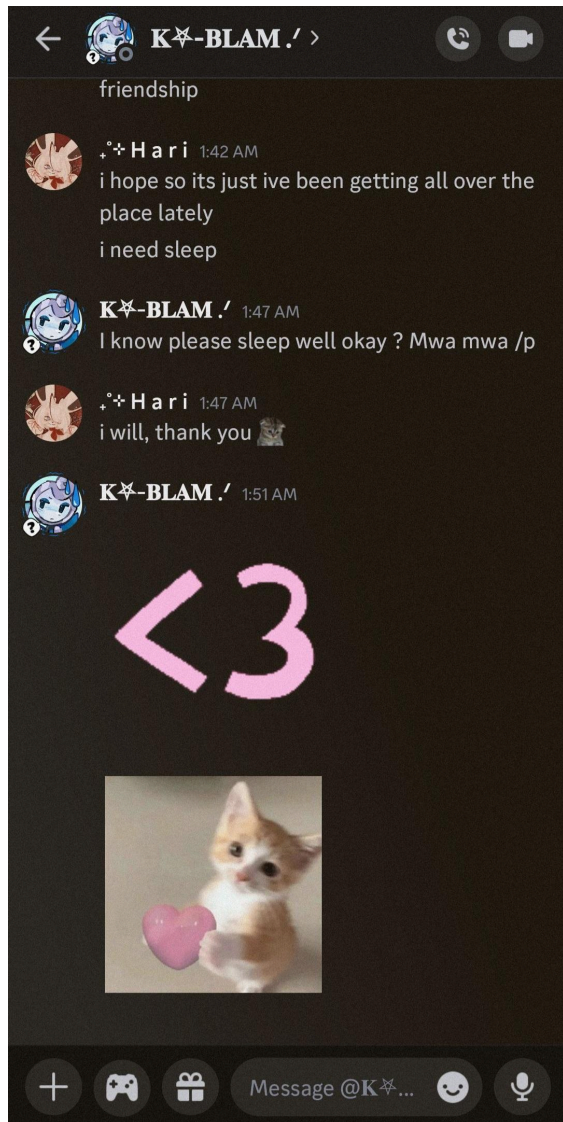

Outside of threats like these, I feel like I need to talk about the heavy venting I and others had to deal with. On multiple occasions, no matter how late it may be for me, he would start spiraling in my DMs, forcing me to stay up to console him. Every time, he sounded extremely distressed, so I felt like I had no other choice than to stay by his side, or he could put himself in danger.

I did eventually learn by talking to a few friends we had in common that he would actually copy and paste the messages he would send during his spiral episodes, and send it to other people at the same time. That means that during those times I stayed up for him, he was actually spiraling to other people and subjecting them to how bad some of these episodes could get.

One of the instances I know is during an extremely bad breakdown, he ended up blocking me and telling me I was a spy. I learned via two other friends we shared that he did the exact same thing at the exact same time and said exactly the same things to them.

No matter the advice I tried to give him, no matter how many times I tried to encourage him to drop Twitter because it would lead him to spiraling, no matter what I did or said, his behavior would just repeat over and over and over again, and I was the one to handle his state afterwards. Even when I tried setting boundaries, explaining that it wasn't the first time he's acted like this with me — even if it wasn't nearly as bad as that time — he wouldn't acknowledge it. I know now that I'm not the only one that went through this either, and that I wasn't the only one subjected to these episodes.

Part of me believes this is nothing but a game for him, to see how many people can go through stress for him, to see how many of them are willing to spend their time giving him all their undivided attention. And if one of us didn't comply, or spoke against it, he was very capable to either guilt-trip us with the whole "we don't have to be friends anymore" bit, or threaten the most drastic actions if that could mean we would feel guilty afterwards and stay by his side. The fact that I wasn't the only one subjected to this makes me unbelievably sad, because I know that all of us who ended up roped into these spirals did our best to help him, so for me to learn that he was most likely fooling us is a hard pill to swallow.

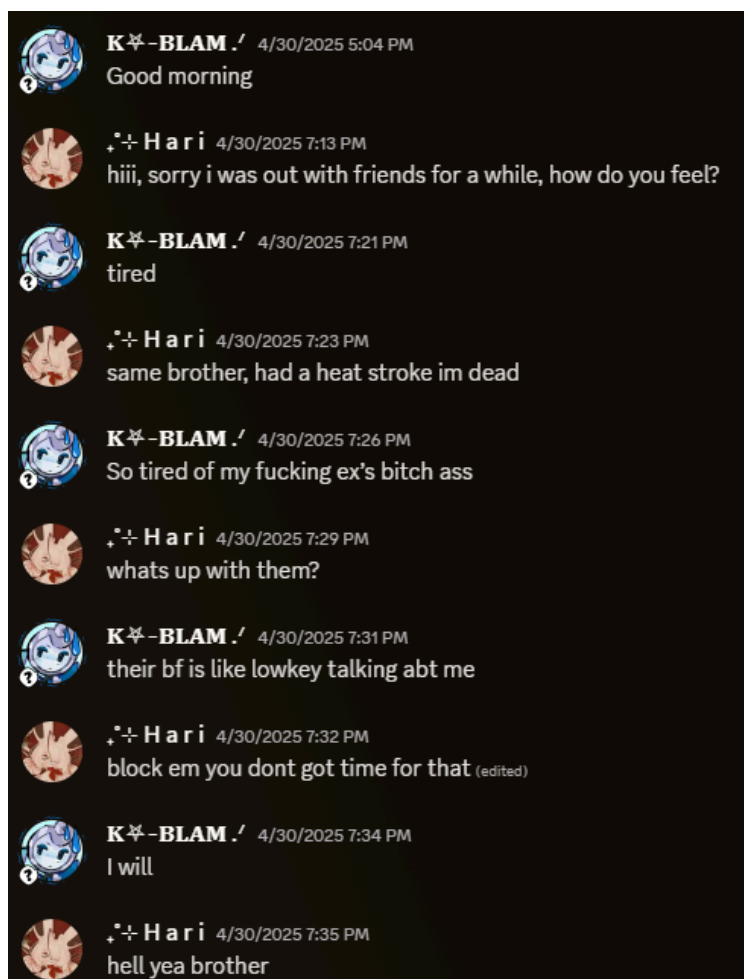

We were all trapped in a vicious cycle where we had to give him our time and attention if that meant we could help him, when in reality he never even wanted to be helped at all. All he wanted was to leech off of our sympathy for him.

There is no amount of trauma that could justify this type of behavior, no amount of torment that could ever justify pinning your death on another person.

Another small thing I would like to point out is just how one-sided our entire friendship was overall. One of the best examples I could give you happened a few days ago: a heat wave hit Europe, and due to the temperatures being so high and the sun being too harsh, I ended up having what I believe to be a heat stroke (I was dizzy, nearly fainted, had nausea, no appetite for a few days, my mind was cloudy etc...)

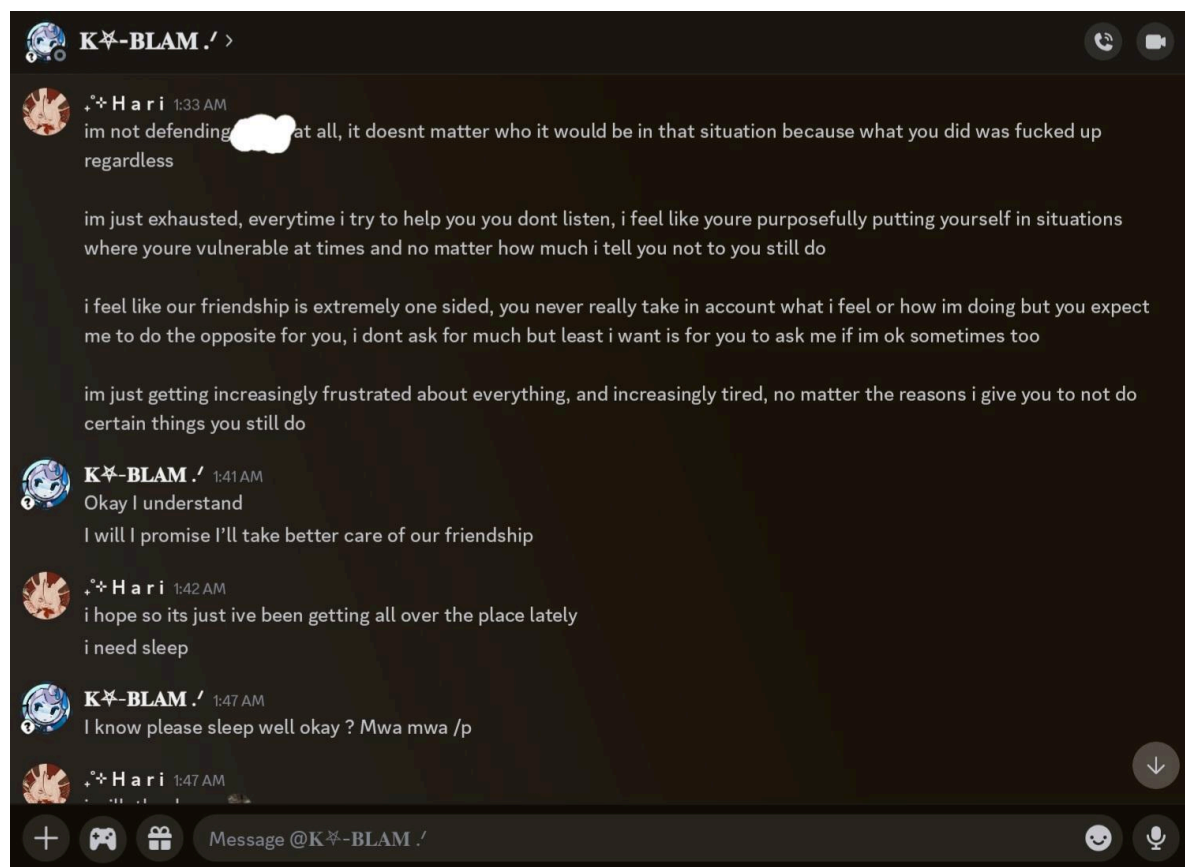

He told me good morning that day, so I said hi back and asked him how he felt because he had yet another episode the night before. I then tell him about my heat stroke, and he doesn't even ask how I'm doing before going on a rant about his ex.

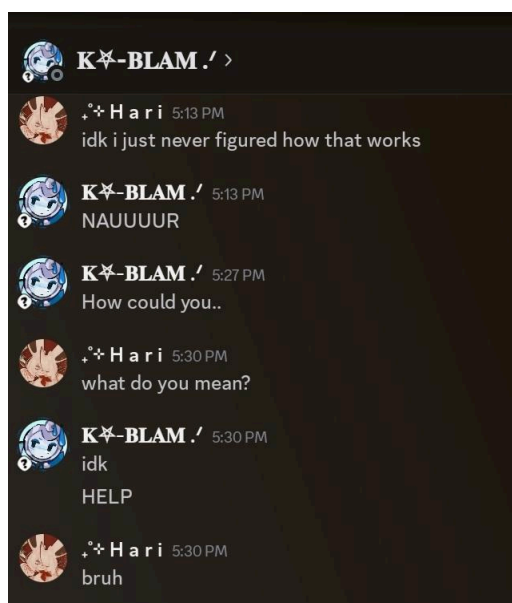

Heat strokes are dangerous, they can sometimes lead to death. The fact that my health was overlooked here made me feel like I was less important than his ex being an asshole.

Our interactions always revolved around him. I never got to talk about myself much, because everything is drowned out in his feelings, his drama, his hobbies. Even when I outright said I had a heat stroke, he didn't even stop to check on me, he never did.

Something that happened as I am writing this letter is that I did ask him to take my feelings into consideration from now on, as I felt I was being neglected in that friendship. The day after, I believe he tried triggering my anxiety out of the blue, as a "joke". I have no idea why he did that at all. He did tell me that his response was delayed due to his school's signal, but seeing the time that passed between the two messages and how his response was fairly vague when I asked what he meant, I do believe it was a lie.

Cutting him off:

A ton of people asked me to cut him off ever since the spy incident, and those requests grew even stronger once they knew of the whole “me being shoved into a sexual space without my consent” thing. So many of them were telling me that what he was doing was toxic and that he was obviously lying to me. So, ever since then, I kept thinking about leaving. For some reason though, I just couldn’t — He kept coming back, tugging at my sympathy, telling me that I was his “ride or die”. Every time I tried distancing myself, it just wouldn’t work.

Eventually though, I got desperate. After he threatened to take his own life again, and tried to essentially traumatize another person, I got way too disturbed. I latched onto any excuses I could find to get away, which included me finding his EDTwt account.

He tried to tell me that it was a recovery account, that he was only trying to help other ED accounts to recover hence why he was still interacting with some of that community — I don’t know if I believe that, but by that point I had made a decision. I needed to get out, no matter what.

I was shaking, I had no space to talk at all, he bombarded me with messages and didn’t leave me time to process what he was saying before adding more and more to it. One of the many messages I couldn’t process properly was him urging me to cut all contact with multiple people — not just the user he threatened his life on, everyone. He wanted us to “start over”, telling me it would be “just us”, and when I showed this to other people to better process what was happening, they all essentially told me the same things: it’s an abuser thing to say, it was an attempt at manipulation, isolation and alienation.

 alright im sorry but i need to talk to you

As stated at the beginning of the document, he also used a different Discord account to reach out to my friend — who had blocked him and expressed not wanting any contact with him anymore due to the whole suicide threat — and tried to pretend to be someone else, an “old friend”.

I know him enough to recognize the speech pattern, and for a person who wasn’t involved at all and is an “old friend” Killian doesn’t talk to a lot, they seemed to know way too much about what happened, while conveniently avoiding any proof to show this is indeed a different person. We can also see that they switch from “we haven’t talked so I can’t show proof” to “he reached out to me on Insta”. Someone who I also believe to be Killian later on went on that same friend’s Straw Page to insult them.

And as of the moment I'm writing this, he is currently using an alt to harass said friend on Twitter. The reason I think it is indeed him is because the message includes references to private texts between Killian and that friend, threats of legal action which he has used in the past, or mention Killian has that person still unblocked in case they wanted to reach out again.

UPDATE - I had confirmation that this account was his old NSFW account. This is indeed Killian threatening my friend.

11:02 PM

Also, that alt that you thought was Blam is his old NSFW account, I'm following it and he follows me back on the account

I would also like to address the elephant in the room real quick: the user I had been in contact with, the one who was on the other hand of the suicide threat, had really awful allegations about themselves, which includes grooming. I only left the conversation open with them for informational reasons, and did not develop a friendship with them — contact was kept mainly because they allegedly had information on another situation, but I also ended up receiving concerning conversations between them and Killian. I had learned that Killian had insisted on getting in touch with them, regardless of the allegations which he knew of, and tried befriending them on multiple instances, which also includes the heavy venting mentioned beforehand.

He kept talking to this user despite me telling him to drop all contact, and in those conversations, he would tell them about personal issues like his ex partner, confide in them about creating a new “Exposer” account and a past grooming experience, asked to play Roblox with them, expressed he would want to get back in contact with Java and Bug — most likely using them as a bridge between him and the two — and even would age regress at certain points — something he never did with anyone else, which makes it rather disturbing in this instance due to the user’s known family issues. Due to me receiving way too many screenshots, I only could insert a handful to illustrate what I’m referring to.

At no point did that user ever express any want or need to be friends with Killian, in fact quite the opposite — they made it very clear in some of their messages that they did not want to stay in contact with him. Despite this, Killian tried to push a friendship of the same type as the one he and I had.

Killian was definitely on edge for sure, but they ended things on neutral terms.

To be clear, i do not like nor respect you.
You are an asshole for forcing this conversation.
You have 5 messages.

K*-BLAM ./ 29/4/25, 4:31 PM

Hi , I'm sorry for calling you an asshole stakes have been high and I've been paranoid as fuck trying to figure out who this random fuckass person is threatening me in my DMs . /gen

You don't need to dm me then if that's the case . I didn't mean to force this , it's nothing I wanted forced I really just needed to talk to you about this . I'm sorry if my desperation came off as force , I didn't mean it to be like that , okay ? I'm just scared . I'm fucking scared and I'm terrified about what's going on .

I don't know what's going on or what's happening and I want to be able to resolve this situation as much as I can even if you hate me , I'm just so tired and I really understand that you are too and you have so much on your plate as well and I'm sorry for being a burden on it as well .

I don't know what to do or who to listen to anymore or who to turn to I'm completely lost . I know we've had our clashes and I know we've said and done things to each other that are unforgivable and quite frankly too much for either of us — that is something I will admit on my end . I shouldn't have been so abrasive and hurtful towards you , i know you were trying to help me and even though it didn't come off that way I panicked and spiraled , you were pushing and trying to get me to understand the weight and gravity of the whole J&B situation I was just scared

Everyone has either left me or ghosted me and for right reasons or wrong I never wanted this to happen . If there's anything I can do for you let me know , I'm desperate to fix what I can , I'm so tired I'm so so tired and I'm not sure if I can keep this up anymore

Like I said , we've wronged each other , whether or not we did it for the 'right' reasons . I'm prepared and ready to forgive and fix whatever there is available , and if not , then I'll leave it alone . I'm just scared . I don't want to be watched anymore I want to be normal again .

Hi , Java — Bug . I know you don't want to hear from me at all or see me . Which is totally fine . I would have rather done this in person rather in text to make sure you know how serious and sincere I am . I was lied to , manipulated and abused by people I thought would take care of me and in turn I followed those blindly into leading myself into sabotaging my friendship with you two . I wish I could take it all back and force myself to accept my own individuality but the past has happened and all I can do is live with it . We did each other wrong in enabling each other , I apologize for the harassment you all received in the wake of what happened . I was naive , believing and clinging onto every word uttered to me . I wish at the end of this we could all reconcile and slowly get to know each other the proper way like how I plan with [redacted] but of course the past had destroyed that and my younger self that was manipulated destroyed that bridge on its own . If there was a sliver of a chance to redeem myself, and show you both that I have changed and become someone better , I would take it in a heartbeat .

You two were the greatest friends I had and you all made me feel accepted . I realize now how much I lost and how much you all lost as well — in the pursuit of wanting validation , I lost two people who really saw me through and through . I forgive you for your mistakes and I hope you can forgive mine , you two are people just like me and you made mistakes . You deserve a second chance , just as I hope I have tried to gain . I hope in the wake of this , I can make a post in the future detailing our coexistence and reconciliation to quiet the people who continuously hurl insult after insult to each other . We weren't perfect but your guys's friendship was the closest to home i had ever received .

A lot of the time I remember having fun and drawing on magma with you all and calling about our oc's , Samuel and Tina and Millie and I remember how fun it was . I really miss those , and I hope at least for the little time we spent together there was at least some positive memories . I'm always open to reconcile , I know this is not my first message to try and reach out but this time this will be the last and hopefully meaningful to finally try and put everything to rest .

If you want to talk , I don't mind , [redacted] can be there too for your own comfort , the offers always there . I was a kid who's mind was polluted with so many peoples opinions that I forgot my own autonomy . If there's a sliver of a chance I can redeem myself I'd be happy to do it . Thank you for reading this , I hope this comes off as meaningful as I wish it to be .

Is this good

wanna talk abt it? /nf

K*-BLAM ./ 30/4/25, 4:04 PM

I want to be given a second chance I hate this I hate everyone

Every friendship I've had has either gone to shit it was one sided and I find out they were talking shit about me or they ghosted me . The adults that I believed were making the right decisions for me isolated me from everyone I could've been with now . I hate this . I hate how gullible I was and I hate them . I hate everyone who told me what to do during the J&B situation and I hate that I was so naive and young that I believed it

My friend groups are gone , I'm alone and the only friends I have we don't talk much and if we do it's just about drama that's happening or them warning me about X Y and Z . Every single thing I've had has been taken away from me and all for what ? For two adults who made a mistake ? For me who made a mistake ?

whexposer made me feel pressured to respond when he posted those first ever threads about me being groomed . I wanted so badly to be friends with Java I wanted to be friends with them in secret because they were someone I cared about so much . Everyone who felt 'bad' for me or 'pity' made me feel like I had to mold into the victim mold , like I needed to play a part I never auditioned for .

K*-BLAM ./ 30/4/25, 4:11 PM

Now the two people I loved sm as friends are gone and they hate me and I'm left alone with the remnants of the past and people who still see me as nothing but a victim . I was manipulated and pushed so severely into the wrong path that I corrupted myself and had to be hospitalized for it . It's at times like these I really don't want to be alive mainly because of how controlled I was — how I let people control me . How I treated those close to me just because people told me to cut them off

Apologies won't work , won't matter and won't fix anything and neither will me getting better because someone will ALWAYS remind me of the past I can't do anything about . Whether it's online or irl . I want the chance to be remembered as someone better , to be given a chance to make things right and be given the chance to work towards being friends again and show I'm not that controlled manipulated 17 year old anymore — I've truly grown .

It's my fault for being gullible and it's my fault for what happened . I lost everyone and it was all due to my own actions influenced by adults taking advantage of me . The real monsters not Java and bug .

I just get realizations of the fact I don't even know who I really am anymore , I feel out of place and hollow and I don't think that part of me will ever heal because the people who did this to me made sure it would last .

My friends are gone , the monsters gone and I'm still here .

the thing people will ever know me as is "The Java and Bug grooming victim" or Java and bug's victim . Etc↓
Not for my art , not for my talent , not for me . But because I was a victim .

Message @K*-BLAM ./

This is what eventually led to the call where Killian threatened his life to that user. Later on, he would also use the "old friend's" account to contact the user.

I would like to state that I was aware Killian had reached out to that person, and I tried to discourage him from keeping contact, reiterating that that person had allegations about themselves. He did not listen, and actually tried befriending them behind my back. Once the user cut off Killian, he immediately reverted to calling them a groomer as seen in my conversation with him before, and this is something that he would even send in my friend's Straw Page.

I find it concerning that despite knowing of the allegations, despite knowing of my disapproval, he still tried to get involved with them in some capacity, only to immediately change their stance on them when he realized there was no way he could get what he wanted.

I am overall flabbergasted at his behavior, and the fact that he latched onto attacking my friend for things like these. After I tried cutting him off, somebody else reached out to me about it and told me he tried latching onto them now, to which they promptly blocked him due to being another victim of his emotional abuse.

I don't know what he will try to do now, I'm anxious for my friends and for myself and I seriously just want him to stop. He promised he would change and be better no matter what, yet he is showing no intentions of doing that, and seems to only want to get back at people for cutting him off.

Closing Thoughts:

I do hope that I did well enough of a job to explain everything. Ultimately, it's not just my experience, it's the experience of multiple people at once, all taken advantage of in some way shape or form by Killian.

I will be honest to anyone reading this: I'm terrified. I see the extent of his actions to get back at people for wanting to cut contact with him, I see what he's saying and how he's trying to threaten others and it makes me physically sick.

I don't know if I could be viewed as petty or overly dramatic for some of the things I said, but I now firmly believe that Killian is an abuser.

The emotional abuse is way too much for some of us to handle, the constant blaming, the aggressions at times — me and some of my friends made our stance clear that we did not want to be reached out to anymore, and here I see that he is actively latching onto one of us because of the consequences of his actions.

I pray that none of this happens to anyone else, I hope for Killian to finally get help after the constant turmoil he has inflicted on me and others.

I feel awful now, for giving him the benefit of the doubt so many times, for letting him manipulate me the way he did when he was hurting me and others right under my nose. I feel stupid that I left myself in that situation for so long, for being in denial for so long. But now I see. And I see it clearly.

He doesn't have anyone to latch onto anymore, no DMs to spiral in anymore: not mine, not those of my friends, so he goes the only other route he knows: the route of lies and threats, anything to get under anyone's skin.

I am baffled at his attitude, and deeply disgusted. Even if I still haven't processed everything properly, even if I'm still second-guessing myself on the whole "coercion" section or other aspects, I have had enough opinions to understand the gravity of what was happening to me.

I thank you from the bottom of my heart for reading what I had to say, genuinely. I hope none of you ever feels the way I felt: anxious, drained, sick at the idea to answer some texts. I hope your hands never tremble above your keyboard the way mine did.

Here is an additional document - from the side of the friend I mentioned being harassed:

My experience with Killian p.1 & 2

[UPDATE] Response to Killian's document -

Link to the doc in question

Archived original document

This is a direct message to Killian.

[The section I have mentioned below has since been removed]

I would like to first address the first section of the document: your story. I did not read it, this is not something that you should say to people online, this is something that belongs in a therapist's office. Your personal story does not have anything to do in a situation where you have hurt others.

Trauma dumping serves no purpose in that situation, and although I'm sorry this happened to you, this has no reason to be in your document at all. People do not need to have an in depth explanation of why you are the way you are.

Coercion part -

Despite your words, I do not believe your crush on me "immediately went away". You purposefully omitted the part where you said 17 and 19 was legal, and did not bring it up in your response. If it truly was a joke, how come you didn't put a tone tag in this message? How come that you don't address the reason you gave for it to work in your response at all?

This is an issue that I am seeing all throughout your document — you omit, and you don't address. And although this was mostly a speculation on my end — albeit one backed by the opinion of multiple other people — I am still going to believe you did indeed make a move on me that day despite what had happened with Java and Bug, and that you simply don't want to admit it.

Later in your statement, you used updates I have put in my document. That means you saw the creator of your old server explain to me how the NSFW verification system worked, but you omitted it in favor of the “it was just an accident” narrative. You did not make that server, they did, and they know how it worked. You cannot use this narrative further, it was disproven. I simply ask you to be honest with me for once, but you seem set on not doing that at all.

Emotional abuse part -

Although I appreciate the acknowledgement of the damage the self-harm episode did, there is another thing that strikes me in your statement: you are lying about not pushing to befriend Tricho, and you are lying about them accepting to be your friend at all. Me censoring Tricho’s name throughout my statement was not an act of protection, it was simply that the main subject of this letter was you, not them.

Tricho, at no point in the message you showcased as them being fine befriending you again, said that they would be your friend. What they did say was that you needed a ton of healing, and that they will keep their distance until you are more stable, this was not an invitation for friendship. You are once more omitting that you tried to use them to get back in contact with Java and Bug as well.

I will not be commenting on the call you had with them as I was not there, but what I will comment on is the blatant lie about the suicide threat. The only reason this did not work was because Alex told Tricho you were still alive, to which you expressed disappointment — even when I told you to tell them a day after this happened, you were hesitant. You never planned on telling them you were alive, and if it wasn’t for Alex, they would have never gotten this information at all. No matter what you say here, you did try to fake your death to them — you just couldn’t because your cover was already blown.

This was two days after you initially made the threat, where you call Alex a snitch for telling Tricho you were still around, you cannot justify this as being an episode anymore because you most definitely tried to keep this up for as long as you possibly could.

Your BPD is not an excuse to threaten suicide to an individual regardless of context, and seeing how you would talk about it by saying “God forbid a guy have hobbies”, I doubt you had any intentions of actually owning up to it.

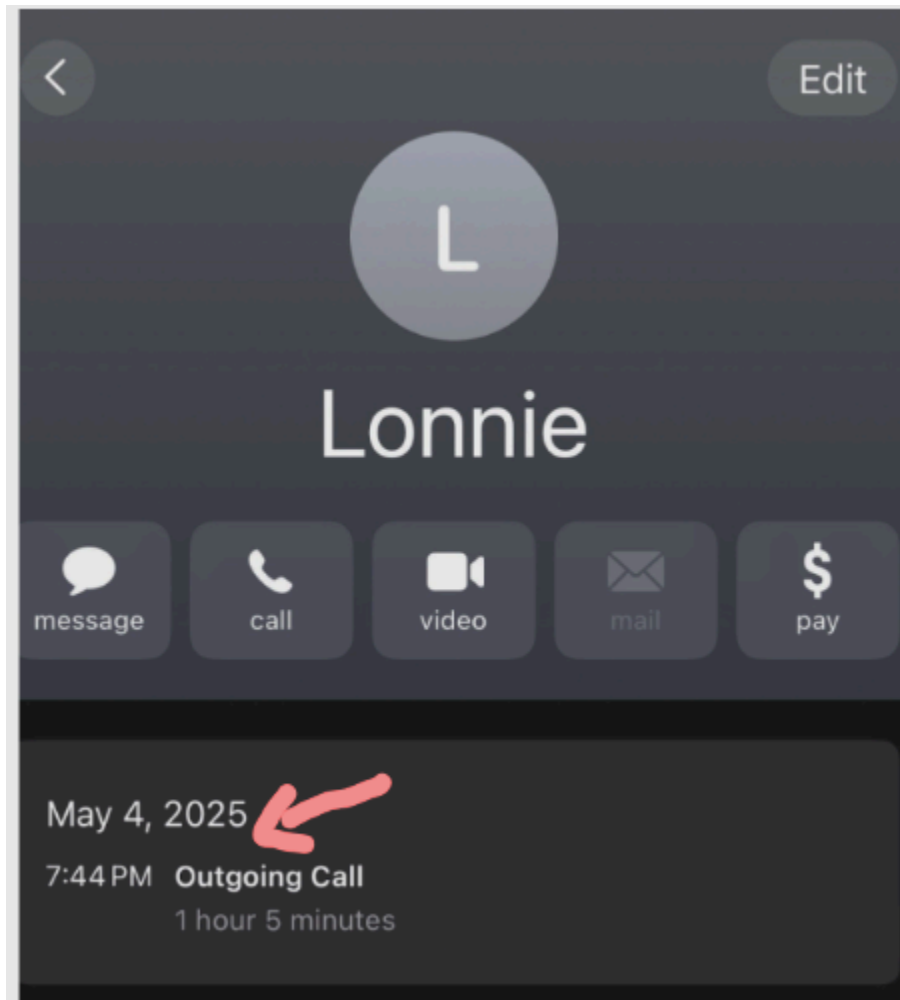

Finally, I would like to say that no, I never was “watching you”, neither was I a “spy”. I was your friend whom you wronged, and you don't seem to acknowledge that in the slightest, because everything is always other people's fault, isn't it?

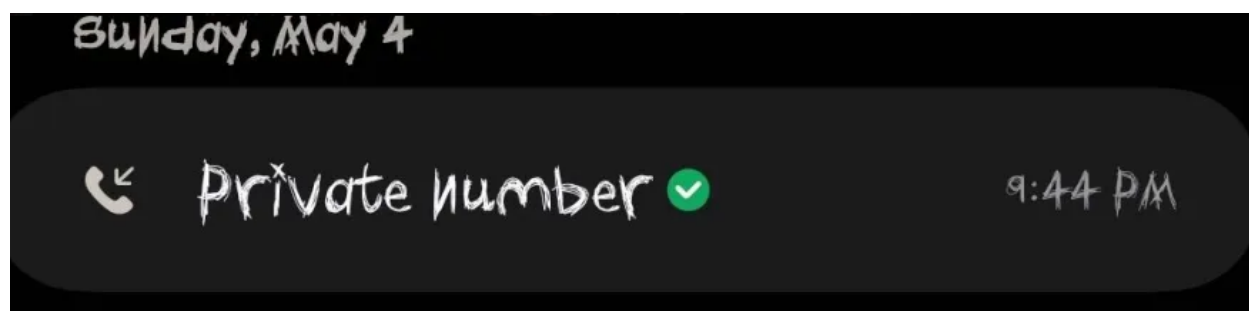

Cutting him off part -

I already said what I had to say regarding the fallout, what I will not tolerate is you lying again.

You said you called Lonnie after you explained the situation to them, after the suicide threat you made.

You called Alex on May 4th, at 7:44 PM PST (it was 9:44 PM CST for Alex, you are in PST). Mind telling me how you could have called Lonnie on May 4th at the exact same time then?

I can tell when you lie, and I know you can fake receipts. You're not fooling me anymore, and I know damn well that you did not give "Lonnie" access to your old NSFW account. You had no reason to. You threatened Alex, stop trying to hide yourself behind names and individuals that don't exist.

Final thoughts -

I'm disgusted with you. You call me a liar and "unreliable", yet you fabricate evidence to back yourself up. You put me in a sexual space without my consent, and you still lie despite me having evidence — you trying to fake your death is not valid regardless of the reason — you lied about threatening Alex, about Lonnie, about everything.

I do not want an apology from you, especially seeing that you tried to shove one down my throat so many times only to repeat your behavior again. You didn't take any accountability for your actions, and tried to lie your way out of it. You truly never have and never will change.
