Basic bio and history:

Leah came from a well off family; both her mother and father are influential individuals in today's society. Leah has never known struggle other than her mother's hospice clients. Her father was never active in her early life since work has taken over his free time; being the brilliant scientists that he is.

Leah, like her father, is full of wonder and never accepts an answer as complete; since there is always room for change. She has spent a good portion of her life watching her mother work while reading her father's discoveries and articles of his business practice.

Before the world became the way it is: Leah was supposed to be attending a banquet in celebration of her inheriting her father's company with her former Fiance Skylar, the two took separate cars to the banquet. Leah forgot her purse. The small metallic bag contained her phone and notes for the speech she prepared. Skylar was to go on ahead without her and Leah to follow after grabbing her things.

Leah rides in a baby blue Lexus LFA; she doesn't know squat about cars just that they look nice.
