

CALL FOR PROPOSALS
for membership status
in the Selye János Doctoral College
& Semmelweis Ignác College for Advanced Studies

We are pleased to announce that the Selye János Doctoral College and the Semmelweis Ignác College for Advanced Studies are once again opening an application period for new members. We welcome both undergraduate and postgraduate students committed to science to join our community.

What we are looking for:

- Enthusiastic students who wish to participate in the College's upcoming RDI (research-development-innovation) projects.
- Those who would like to be actively involved in our grassroots science projects.
- Those who envision their future in an academic environment and are open to close collaboration with like-minded peers.

What we offer:

- An informal but highly qualified scientific community of young researchers.
- A platform that provides extracurricular courses and training for professional development.
- Opportunities to contribute to innovative projects and to build the academic community.

You can apply if you are:

- Currently undergraduate and postgraduate students.
- Interested in RDI projects.
- Committed to be an active participant in the activities of the College.

Application procedure:

Candidates should submit an application with references, relevant professional experiences and previous scientific projects.

Applications must be submitted by 26 January 2024 at the following website:

<https://semmelweis.hu/selye/en/habilitation/>

The second round of recruitment, consisting of a personal interview, is expected to take place on 2 February 2024.

For any questions or further information, please consult the following link:

<https://semmelweis.hu/selye/en/contact-us/>

Feel free to join us! Our mission is to build a community of young researchers to contribute to the future of science!