EDITING GUIDELINES

Log all major changes in the #wiki-edit-log channel on our discord. If you cannot see the channel, ask for the wiki helper role.

If you do not have Discord, Pen is on reddit under the username Penpenplon. You may contact her there through DMs in regards to participation and any subsequent editing questions or editing logs you may have.

Before you begin editing please read a few pages within the category of pages you would like to edit and make note of how pages are laid out and how things are said so that you might keep consistency with other pages as you write.

If planning on taking on mass page edits please template out your idea on one or two pages first and see if it functions appropriately. Ask for guidance before undertaking something like this. Some things might not be appropriate to put on the wiki. The data you would like on the wiki might be best in a collapsed by default section, or it may need a reference section. We can also help if it is something like multiple tables of data, this information can be templated out and auto filled a majority of the time. This cuts down on labor and human errors like typos.

Attempt to not make any major spelling or grammatical mistakes in pages that you edit or create. Please double check the content often, including pages that you have not written as others may have made mistakes.

Long passages such as those about lore or intricate boss strategies do not have a place on any of the concise established pages. There is a plan to have lore and boss strategy pages made eventually, we can expedite the templating of these pages if you are interested in filling them out.

Please do not edit things like weapon tables or armor tables. If you find something that you think is a mistake please contact one of the wiki admins. You should not need to edit these tables at all.

A vast majority of pages which have not been created will need to have templates applied to them, do not just create them and start filling them out. If you do this your work will be deleted in order to establish a templated page as this is done automatically by a bot. These pages currently include: Boss/Enemy pages, Location pages, Lore pages, Covenant pages.

If you are not sure about something or need a page created so you can fill it out please ask first. If you need a preload or a template created, ask one of the wiki admins, as common users are unable to make them.

In terms of editing pre-established pages with tables, information on these tables is fairly sparse for a reason. A majority of tables will not contain all the information on an item to keep the pages as short and uncluttered as possible. The main information for items, weapons, etc belongs on its respective page, encapsulated within various infoboxes or the page content itself.

Please do not copy information directly from other wikis on to this new wiki. That is counter intuitive as we would like to make a better wiki alongside people who know this information. If you do not know the information, ask or do not fill it out. Please write things in your own words and try your best to make it distinct from the other established wikis and sources whenever possible. If you do not have sources for the information you would like to add, please ask us as we likely have a spreadsheet of datamined info that we can send you.

This previous point applies in reverse as well, please do not take the information that we have gathered and put it on other wikis. We know that this will happen eventually but we especially do not want things that we have created such as charts and graphs to be posted on other wikis like Fextralife and Fandom.
