Hello handsome,

Isn’t it a beautiful day for us to celebrate? It’s your birthday and the day when you proposed to me 4 years ago. When we first met in high school, I never thought we would turn out such replicas of each other.

It was such an amazing time when we first started exploring each other, and it was in no time I knew I had found what I was looking for.

In these years when we turned from classmates to friends, friends to lovers, and lovers to soulmates, one thing that has remained constant is our spirit of loving and defending each other from the world, and trust me, I feel so secure and protected by your side that I dare to do anything in this world.

On this special day, I want to ask “ will you be my life partner?”

Looking forward to your answer.

Regards