TRAVEL INSURANCE
1	When you go on holiday, it always is a good idea to take out travel insurance. This is
2	just in case something goes wrongly along the way. You could lose your luggage, you
3	could be robbed, or even become ill and need expensive medical treatment. For millions
4	of holiday makers, travel insurance is just a precaution which will help it have an
5	enjoyable and worry-free holiday. But for other, travel insurance is a way of earning
6	money by making false claims against insurance companies. For example, some people
7	pretend that they have had expensive equipment stole and then claim large sums in
8	compensation. Such claims cost insurance companies a total of £ 50 million per year, but
9	the cheats' luck is about to run out. Thanks to a new computer system, companies will be
10	able to tell at a glance if someone has made a claim within the last three years. Honest
11	travelers will no longer have to pay through the nose to other people's dishonesty.

III. Read the text and choose the best answer to each question that follows. Write A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet. (5 pts)

As Philadelphia grew from a small town into a city in the first half of the eighteenth century, it became an increasingly important marketing center for a vast and growing agricultural hinterland. Market days saw the crowded city even more crowded, as farmers from within a radius of 24 or more kilometers brought their sheep, cows, pigs, vegetables, cider, and other products for direct sale to the townspeople.

The High Street Market was continuously enlarged throughout the period until 1736, when it reached from Front Street to Third. By 1745 New Market was opened on Second Street between Pine and Cedar. The next year the Callowhill Market began operation.

Along with market days, the institution of twice-yearly fairs persisted in Philadelphia even after similar trading days had been discontinued in other colonial cities. The fairs provided a means of bringing handmade goods from outlying places to would-be buyers in the city. Linens and stockings from Germantown, for example, were popular items.

Auctions were another popular form of occasional trade. Because of the competition, retail merchants opposed these as well as the fairs. Although governmental attempts to eradicate fairs and auctions were less than successful, the ordinary course of economic development was on the merchants' side, as increasing business specialization became the order of the day. Export merchants became differentiated from their importing counterparts, and specialty shops began to appear in addition to general stores selling a variety of goods.

71. What does the passage mainly discuss?

- A. Philadelphia's agriculture importance.
- B. Philadelphia's development as a marketing center.
- C. The sale of imported goods in Philadelphia.
- D. The administration of the city of Philadelphia.

72. The word "hinterland" in line 2 is closest in meaning to _____.
 A. tradition B. association C. production D. region
73. According to the passage, fairs in Philadelphia were held _____.
 A. on the same day as market says B. as often as possible
 C. a couple of times a year D. whenever the government allowed it
74. The word "eradicate" in line 14 is closest in meaning to _____.
 A. eliminate B. exploit C. organize D. operate
75. What does the author mean by stating in line 15 that "economic development was on the merchants' side"?
 A. Merchants had a strong impact on economic expansion.
 B. Economic forces allowed merchants to prosper.
 C. Merchants had to work together to achieve economic independence.
 D. Specialty shops near large markets were more likely to be economically successful.
