

EMS Conference Calgary: Mission Amid Global Crises

Friday, March 8, 2019

Ambrose University, Room RE 110

The 2019 Evangelical Missiological Society Theme is: Mission Amid Global Crises. Today perhaps more than ever before, global missionaries encounter numerous forms of crises and human suffering in the normal course of their work. Whether it's poverty in Africa, a Tsunami in Southeast Asia, human trafficking in India, or refugees in Europe and America, the likelihood that missionary efforts will intersect with some form of global crisis appears to be on the rise. What does this mean for mission theology and practice in the 21st century? How will these events shape the future of the church engaged in the missio Dei? These issues raise important missiological questions for the church which will be discussed at this year's EMS meeting.

Sandra Ryan (Assembly)

Sandra Ryan is an ordained pastor with a background in social development and emergency and disaster management. Sandra served for twenty-two years in ministry with The Salvation Army. Her first ministry appointment was in a Nisga'a Village in Northern British Columbia where she experienced the strength and beauty of real community. After serving in Russia for almost a decade during the turbulent post-Communist redevelopment, she returned to Canada where she lived and ministered in the Regent Park community during its revitalization. She has seen the power and potential of an engaged church in developing healthy communities. Presently, Sandra oversees the local and global outreach for The Peoples Church

Toronto. In this role she has the privilege of leading her international congregation to be gospel-centered,
