

Letter Appealing to the President and Cabinet of Singapore for the Clemency of Nagaenthran K Dharmalingam on Death Row

Dear President Halimah Yacob,

We are social service professionals and trainees, psychologists, counsellors and healthcare workers and trainees in Singapore. We are deeply concerned about the imminent execution of Nagaenthran K Dharmalingam on November 10, 2021. We join human rights activists, the Malaysian Prime Minister, the over 200 family members and friends of prisoners who have lived on death row, and the more than 65,000 signatories of this change.org petition, to call for the commutation of Nagaenthran's death sentence to time served, and release him to his family.

Nagaenthran, a Malaysian national, was only 21 when he was arrested for transporting 42.72g of diamorphine in 2009. He was sentenced to death and has been on death row for over a decade now. We understand that he had been coerced into doing so when he had sought to borrow RM500 for his father's heart operation from someone known as 'King'. Nagaenthran testified that he had refused to transport drugs, following which the man had assaulted him and threatened to murder his girlfriend.

In addition, at his forensic psychiatric evaluation, Nagaenthran was also found to have mild ADHD, several cognitive impairments, and an IQ of 69, indicating a mild intellectual disability. We understand that there were no procedural accommodations during his investigations and court proceedings. His family members also attest to how Nagaenthran's mental and cognitive health has severely deteriorated during his 12 years on death row. They shared how he had been highly disoriented and does not fully or consistently comprehend that he is about to be executed.

We do not believe it is just to execute a person with psychosocial and intellectual disabilities, conditions which may have worsened after the distress caused from the trauma of awaiting death row. Despite disagreements in Singapore over the extent of Nagaenthran's disability, Nagaenthran remains recognized, internationally, as an intellectually disabled person. Under the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities \(CRPD\), Singapore has the obligation to withhold his execution.

Brain development, which impacts ability to make calculated choices, also does not fully mature till 25 years of age. As Nagaenthran was only 21 at the time of arrest, we must consider his young age when weighing his culpability for his actions and what a proportional response to a young person's wrongdoing is, especially since this was his first offence.

As social service professionals and healthcare workers, we are privy to the marginalisation, vulnerabilities, and disadvantages faced by communities of a lower socioeconomic status. We also strongly believe there is inalienable and intrinsic value and dignity that all human beings have. The death penalty is a violation of the right to life. Whilst we all have different life circumstances, we should at least be equal in this regard. Many individuals who have willingly or unwillingly found themselves embroiled in the drug trade come from these communities and lead onerous and stressful lives. There are various environmental factors associated with living in poverty that can have severe effects on a person's upbringing. These include inadequate nutrition, food insecurity, job insecurity, inadequate child care, lack of access to health care, unsafe neighborhoods, and more.

Living in poverty offers limited options that can be difficult, unsafe, and sometimes compromising. Nagaenthran started working odd jobs as a schoolboy to support his family. Coming from a background of limited social and financial capital, Nagaenthran had limited options to support his father's medical expenses. As social workers, we know many people who have no choice but to rely on informal loans to afford basic needs like healthcare, because these systems and services remain inaccessible to many who live in poverty. The thought processes and actions he carried out to avoid being charged, while framed by the authorities as manipulative, deliberate, and criminal, seem more to be understandable attempts to escape certain harm caused to him in what must have been a terrifying situation for someone in his condition.

Nagaenthran is from a poor, minority community, in a country where Indians face much discrimination. We believe that people in disenfranchised communities - whether in Singapore or Malaysia - urgently need greater access to resources, welfare, care, community, opportunities for healing, mutual aid and the transformation of structural and systemic forces that produce poverty and extreme inequality in the first place. Harsh and final punishments like the death sentence do not consider how inequality and marginalisation can drive someone to actions which are criminalised.

If we are concerned about health, safety and well-being in our communities, if we want to keep children and families free from the trauma of drug-related harm, we need to address the underlying causes of these drug-related harms. It is contradictory that while so many healthcare and social service workers dedicate our efforts to caring for and saving lives, the state takes the life of some members of the very communities we strive to serve and protect.

We hope that the outcome of this case can be a message to our country that we can act to protect our citizens without dehumanizing those we deem criminal. This, in turn, will lead to a more comprehensive attitude in dealing with the drug problem that is more in line with the humane values that are present in our national pledge: the pursuit of justice and equality for all.
