

Six steps towards migrant justice – suggested social media and website copy

Six steps towards migrant justice - text

1. Rights - We should all be able to thrive, no matter where we're from or the colour of our skin
2. Safety - We must welcome people who seek sanctuary in the UK
3. Dignity - We must all be able to live with dignity and feel safe in our homes and workplaces
4. Justice - We should all be able to defend our rights and hold the government accountable
5. Privacy - We should all be able to pursue health, justice and support knowing that our personal data will be kept safe, and our privacy respected
6. Community - We all have a right to participate in our communities, and find care and belonging

Digital tiles for the six steps are here: Canva

Suggested social media copy

- We're proud to stand behind these six steps towards migrant justice. Together, we can work towards a fairer society in which everyone's rights are respected.
- For too long, our media and politicians have used people who move as political footballs. Enough is enough

We demand justice, now. Read and share the six steps towards migrant justice.

- We're joining dozens of other organisations to demand justice for people who move. Our vision is of a society where everyone can thrive, no matter where we're from or the colour of our skin – these are the six steps to get there

- We all need rights, safety, dignity, justice, privacy and community – that includes people who move to the UK and make it their home. Read the six steps towards migrant justice, and a fairer society for us all.

Suggested website copy

The rights of people who move have been under attack for too long. Our media and our politicians want to make us forget one simple truth: that people move. We always have and always will. We should be welcomed and supported when we do.

We all need rights. We all need safety. We all need dignity. We all need justice. We all need privacy. We all need community.

These are the six steps towards achieving justice for people who move, and a fairer society for us all. These basic principles have been jointly drafted by 45 organisations that work with people who move on a daily basis, and with allied organisations. We see how deeply the hostile policies and statements targeting migrants impact people and their communities. We're proud to stand behind these six steps towards migrant justice, and a fairer society for all of us.