

Forest Horror

It was a cold, misty morning, as I woke up I looked out my bedroom window thinking it would be a good day to go for a morning walk with some friends. slowly I put my hiking jacket and my boots on and started to walk outside to the forest. The forest wasn't far from my house so I could just walk there. I got to the large forest, It was dark and gloomy. I could hear the leaves crunching and crackling underneath my feet as I walked. My friends sent me a message saying they aren't far away. A few minutes passed and I started to get worried about where they were.

I started to slowly start to wander around the forest thinking to myself "what if they are somewhere else in the forest" but I don't seem to see anyone. The forest is dark and misty so I struggle to see anyone or anything. I started feeling many tiny raindrops dripping on my head from the top of the trees, I slowly looked up to see if there was a storm coming. The sky was dark with dark massive grey clouds, this wasn't a good sign. Quickly I ran as fast as I could to try and find the exit of the forest so I could get home but I couldn't find it. I ran many different ways but I was just starting to get lost. I looked into the distance and saw what looked like a large-sized hole in a tree. I ran as fast as I could to the tree but I just couldn't fit.

I kept running and looking around and I saw this large size Hutt in the distance so I ran as quickly as I could over to it. It was raining quite hard now so I tried to get inside the Hutt as quickly as possible. I managed to fit into the Hutt with lots of space. I started to get quite tired so I decided to have a rest. I started falling asleep but then I heard leaves crunching from footsteps.

I opened my eyes and I saw big brown boots at the entrance of my Hutt. It was a middle-aged man wearing a black coat, black pants, and brown boots. He had his face covered with a black mask and started reaching in the Hutt to grab me. I was leaning back but then the Hutt started to fall apart behind me. I got out of the hut from the broken pieces. The creepy man came up behind me and grabbed me. I started to freak out thinking "what is he doing to me" He takes me to some van and throws me inside of it. When I get inside I can see my friends are also in this van. I start to get worried about where we are going. I look out the window to see we are at the top of a cliff. The man starts to speed up and drives off the cliff.
