

August 2024 CTIPP CAN Reflection & Connection Activity: Community-Led, Trauma-Informed, Prevention-Oriented, Resilience-Building, & Healing-Centered Considerations for Strengthening Communities

1. What are you noticing/thinking about in terms of applying the information presented on the call to your community's unique context and constellations of needs?

2. What is already working well in your community that is aligned with the principles explored today?

3. What are your best hopes for your community's future? What do you want to see happen?

4. What strengths, resources, assets, and collaborative efforts do you notice are present in your community?

5. Where do you notice opportunities to build on/more robustly tap into these strengths, resources, and assets to support trauma-informed community engagement and change?

6. Based on what you know about your community's context and history, what is important to pay attention to when engaging the voices of lived experience and integrating community wisdom into change efforts?

7. Reflect on your own personal strengths, skills, values, and priorities. What role do you see as fitting for you/what contributions do you envision yourself making to advance trauma-informed transformation?

8. Share examples of successes or positive experiences related to trauma-informed community change that you have personally witnessed or learned about. What can be learned from these examples?
