Cityfound privacy policy

Last updated: October 28, 2026
Cityfound is a single-player city-building game for Android. It works entirely offline.

What we collect

Nothing. Cityfound does not collect, store, transmit or share any personal information. There are no accounts, ads, analytics, tracking or third-party services in the app, and the app does not use the internet.

Your saved cities

Your cities and settings are stored only on your device. If you have Android backup turned on, your phone may include your saved cities in your own Google backup so they can be restored to a new phone. That backup is handled by Android and your Google account, and we never see it.

Save files you export go to your phone's Downloads folder, and photos you take in Photo Mode go to your phone's Pictures/Cityfound folder. Where they go after that is up to you.

Permissions

Cityfound only asks to use vibration, for light touch feedback when you build.

Children

Cityfound does not collect information from anyone, including children.

Changes

If this policy ever changes, the new version will be posted at this same address with a new date.

Contact

Questions about this policy: IAreCleverPup@gmail.com