

Swan Lovejoy | She/Her

Originally named 'Opal Winterburn', Swan is wolf-cow (wucow) intersex lady, now in her late-20s. She's on the shorter side, around 5'5", combining with her already tubby weight to accentuate her roundness. She often wears outfits like skirts and jeans, with sweaters and tanktops accompanying them respectively. Jewelry really isn't her thing, but she doesn't mind small things like earrings and necklaces.

As an adventurer in a modern setting, she's very much a jack of all trades, master of none. She prefers the use of her sword and revolver over magic, however, due to past experiences.

Swan is a smart girl, and has a kind heart. If she sees someone in need, she'll go to help immediately, but she doesn't always think things through, regardless of the situation. The girl has book smarts; not street smarts. She's easily fooled, which tends to get her into sticky predicaments. But through determination and grit, she usually comes out on top!

... Usually.

Opal Winterburn | She/Her

Swan has a lot of energy and power hidden within her. After being corrupted by dark magic, a split personality was born within the wucow, and eventually stole some of Swan's latent power to create her own body.

From this, Opal was born, a close replica of Swan, but with some small differences. Whereas Swan is short and fat (while being proud of that), Opal is taller and chubby, easily having more than half a foot over her other half. While both girls are wucows, Opal seems to have inherited more of the bovine genes, giving her an udder, and less sharp teeth.

She's, in a word, a bitch. Manipulative to the end, her goal is to have people under her thumb to do her bidding. Whether it be to give her rides, buy her food and clothes, or for even just regular sexual favors, Opal is not afraid to use her almost supernatural charisma to charm people over to her side.

Opal prefers magic to regular melee combat, wanting to keep herself away from any chance of danger.

Casey Autumn & Yuria | She/Her, They/Them

Casey is a mad scientist, with both those words being under massive air quotes. A better term would be 'stressed inventor'. Underfunded and understaffed, her personal labs, Autumnatics, are constantly coming up with new things to get investors and scientists interested in her and give her the funding she needs!

Her speciality comes in the form of gadgets. They're made to do certain things to help out everyday life, but oftentimes, they just lead to some embarrassing side effects. If she had an employee or two, this probably wouldn't happen... And since she's the only one working there, she often has to test everything on herself...

But thankfully, her robot AI assistant, Yuria, is there to help. Built to cover her shortcomings, Yuria specializes in proofing code, running simulations, and general secretarial work around the office. They also keep tabs on Casey's health, as she's prone to neglecting her own needs in the name of innovation.

Kuzlo Kurva | She/Her

A reckless youth, Kuzlo was born unable to wield magic, despite spending decades trying to learn. Duped by an evil court wizard to do his bidding in return for his knowledge, she was taken advantage of, only to kill the horrid man upon learning of his deception. When confronted with incredible odds, the depths of space called to her, selecting her as their champion, and gifted her all the cursed knowledge they held; officially dubbing her their Warlock of the Stars.

Now, forced to do their bidding, Kuzlo adventures to do good in the world to make up for her past, while fighting the whispers her Eldritch lords pipe into her brain.

She's a bit of a flirt, and can often get in over her head. She's often at her best when working in a team, as she's liable to get in way over her head on her own.
