

Who do you want to be

I want to be known in the world. I want to be a man who lives a life that is worth remembering. I want to be a hero not only for my loved ones and family but also for my entire family and Legacy.

Strong, capable, unshattered. I want to be the person you see for the first time and think, "Who is this Guy?"

A man who lives an exciting adventure in this life full of stories, challenges, achievements, and explorations

How much money do you want to make

To be honest, just saying a big number or "so much that I'm guaranteed freedom" still feels far away and not really motivating, so I frame it this way:

I want to make so much money that the idea of money is completely out of my mind. I don't even want to think about it. Whatever I do, the "payment process" is just something I have to do, but not something I really think about. I want to go through life without spending an ounce of energy thinking about how much something could cost or what money is. It's just there.

What things do you want?

- A beloved and supportive family.
- Brotherhood is striving toward higher goals. to be more precise 1-2 absolutely close brothers I can always count on. No matter what, we stand on the same side, fighting against any enemy—the kind of brothers you can call early in the morning, and you hear during the call that he's already put on his clothes and started the car engine.
- A network of people from all around the world, providing opportunities and security in any realm of human endeavor.
- A huge castle as my mansion, named after me, for my family, network, and brotherhood.

current life reflections| Who are your enemies

Of course, there's the overarching enemy, the "matrix," but to be closer and more personal here:

- Everyone who doesn't believe in me—"friends" and family members who said I'd never make it.
- Myself—my old or even current self is still the enemy I want to beat and overcome every day to reach my better future self.
- All the little "devils" known as cheap dopamine, hedonism, and laziness, seeking to distract and push me off my road to success.
-

What do you fear most

- A worthless life, going hand in hand with a meaningless and unimportant death.
- To be weak and incapable in times of hard challenges, knowing I can't do anything to protect myself and the loved ones around me.
- Mediocrity.
- To be honest, failure—in two ways: failing in life and failing in the tasks I have to do. However, while short-term failure is inevitable, it is overshadowed by the bigger fear of failing in life.

To make one of my favorite quotes: “There are many ways to die, but the only true death is to never live.”

What do you dont want people to say about you

- he is normal
- I told you would not make it
- he is weak
- He is something “special.”
- You are destined to fail
- you are boring

What do you want people say about you

- Who the fuck is this man?
- I never expected him to be so successful.
- He can literally solve any problem.
- Man, I've never met someone like him; you can't even imagine him as a person.
- You wouldn't believe what he's built and gone through, even if I told you.
- This guy is a beast in any realm I can imagine.

Looking back over the last year, what mistakes did you make? Where did you fail?

- still consuming cheap dopamine
- no higher purpose
- no specific goal
- not being consistent and driven
- Living like life controlled me, instead of controlling life
- hanging out with “friends” who don't benefit me
-

Current strengths

- super creative when it comes to marketing and funnels
- good problem solver
- quite a good conversationalist
- empathy
- having two clients with literally golden hordes (just have to pull it off)
- Loyalty, Honor, and respect amongst my brothers and people i look to

* What 3 skills do you lack now that you have to acquire as quickly as possible to hit the next level?*

- 1.) Writing extremely persuasive copy: This is crucial for delivering significant results. I can already create good strategies and funnels, but the quality of my copy is still a skill I need to improve.
- 2.) Running good and profitable ads: This ties into the quality of my skill, but it also involves the more technical and analytical side of things.
- 3.) Absolute and unshakable confidence in my skills and ability to build marketing empires: I have some confidence, but since I've never pulled off something truly "BIG," there's still a lack of confidence and belief in my outcomes