

Creating an OpenReview Account and Profile

To create an Open Review account, go to <https://openreview.net/login>
Then click on “New User”.

The screenshot shows the OpenReview.net login page. At the top is a dark red header with the OpenReview.net logo, a search bar, and a 'Login' link. Below the header is a light green banner with the text 'Please login to access /profile/edit'. The main content area is white and features two columns. The left column is titled 'Login' and contains fields for 'Email' and 'Password', a 'Login to OpenReview' button, and links for 'Forgot your password?' and 'Didn't receive email confirmation?'. The right column is titled 'New User?' and contains a 'Sign Up' button. At the bottom is a light green footer with links for 'About OpenReview', 'Contact', and 'Frequently Asked Questions'.

Gender

This information helps conferences better understand their gender diversity. (Optional)

Emails

Enter all email addresses associated with your current and historical institutional affiliations, your previous publications, and any other related systems, such as TPMS, CMT, and ArXiv. Email addresses associated with your old affiliations (including previous employers) should not be deleted. This information is crucial for deduplicating users and ensuring that you see your reviewing assignments. OpenReview will only send messages to the address marked as "Preferred".

It is very important that you fill in the following information, which the ACL Rolling Review uses to match papers to reviewers and action editors, as well as to detect potential conflicts of interest.

Note: If you already have an OpenReview profile, login into your OpenReview account, and go to Profile/Edit Profile and make sure ALL fields below are filled. You might also want to reimport more recent papers of yours from your DBLP profile, if you have not done so recently.

What to fill in the OpenReview profile for paper matching and Conflict of Interest (COI) handling:

- 1) Personal links: please include the following:
 - a) Semantic Scholar URL
 - b) DBLP URL and then click ADD DBLP papers to profile. This is important as only imported papers will be used to calculate affinity scores and to match reviewers and action editors to papers. You can import all your papers or you can select just those that best represent your expertise.
Note: Your Google Scholar is NOT used for matching; only Semantic Scholar and the imported DBLP papers.
- 2) Education and Career
- 3) Advisor and Relationship
- 4) Expertise: Please include meaningful keywords about your area of expertise such as dialog, information extraction, deep learning, etc. Generic terms such as NLP are fine, but not very helpful. Thus, make sure you also add some more specific ones.

Retrieving papers from DBLP requires a "Persistent DBLP URL." Unfortunately, DBLP does not provide this URL by default. You must obtain the persistent URL for your home page from DBLP by following the steps below:

1. Visit your DBLP home page: <https://dblp.org/pers/hd/s/Stent:Amanda>
2. Hover over the share icon () to the right of your name in the page heading
3. Copy the URL labeled "persistent URL" in the hover menu
