

Week 14 Assignments

Educational Design Studio, Spring 2017

1. PROJECT WORK

We are officially in the prototype & testing phase of the project. To support you this week,

- Guest Speakers on Tuesday (4/18). Our final guest speaker has designed and implemented educational designs in context. Consider engaging with them about what they learned when testing and implementing their designs.

Bharat Anand is a faculty member at Harvard University who was one of the founders of HBx. Our intention with the presentation timing is to leave the last 40 minutes for studio time/direct interaction with the presenters.

- Preparation for Friday (4/21) & Tuesday (4/25). Friday and Tuesday will be open studio days with scaffolding around implementation and communication. Tuesday, Tim & Gillian will be joining us for the entire time. On Friday we will be requesting information about what you might like reviewed by Tim &/or Gillian (and/or us) on Tuesday (e.g., resource documents, syllabi, handouts, client presentation). If you would like something reviewed before Tuesday, please plan to send it to us/Tim/Gillian by FRIDAY!

2. No reading this week!

3. DESIGN & LEARNING JOURNEY REFLECTION:

We are closing in on the end of the semester. If you have not submitted a mid-semester reflection, consider doing so this week so you can write a distinct end of term reflection in a couple of weeks.

For your open reflections (2), if anything strikes you as you are working on the project or you want to reflect on from class, from another class, from the world outside of Olin, feel free to write about it. If you finish a reflection, place it in your individual google drive folder.

Remember that you may choose to focus in on a particular “territory” (i.e, you as a designer, teammate or student), or you may choose to look more broadly at your whole self. This is your reflection, so please explore an area that is meaningful to you.
