

Hey Jack,

Hope you're doing well! I came across your latest video on Bitcoin and I have to say, I was impressed. Your insights on the current market trends were really informative and helpful for viewers looking to make some money.

But, while checking out your website, I noticed something that could be holding your brand back from scaling and growing in the future. Your email sign-up form is tucked away and easily missed, which could lead to fewer sign-ups and ultimately, less revenue for your business.

But don't worry, I have a quick and easy solution that will not only increase your sign-ups but also help your brand reach new heights. By creating a popup with an enticing promise and intriguing bullet points, no reader will leave your website without signing up.

I understand that not everyone is comfortable creating pop-ups, so I took the liberty of creating an example for you. Check out this link [<https://shorturl.at/mxN08>] to see what I mean.

If you're interested in hearing more, I'd be happy to discuss another issue I noticed that could be causing potential customers to turn away from your website right now.

Best regards,
Patrick