Personality and interests

Likes:

Health nut (won't drink sodas, eat junk food - except to sample new things)

Like most Deltans, she loves new pleasant sensory experiences.

Unusual Abilities

Deltan senses - which are well beyond human sensitivity. She can read micro expressions well enough to serve as a lie detector.

Time sensitivity

Pain healing - this allows her to ease pain, not heal damage

Pheromones (though her nanoskin prevents these from being released)

Skills / Training:

Krav Maga and Aikido

Vulcan Martial Arts (yes, she CAN do a nerve pinch)

Kendo

Fencing

Yoga

Biofeedback training

Vulcan mental discipline training, basic

Psychology

Anthropology

Archaeology, minor

Special Note: Trained Empath, capable of mind melding like a Vulcan with unusual therapy uses. Lacks the range of a Betazed without Tidbit.

Other

Has a pet ichthydragon named Tidbit, about 12 inches long from nose to base of tail (fully grown). Very rare, will not breed in captivity. Edit discovered the egg when she was young. An ichthydragon is triphibious. They have a camouflage ability comparable to Predator, but with the ability to become luminescent. They are perfect mimics, though they don't do voices. They will often mimic the most frightening sound they know when they feel threatened. Their strongest attack is a weak acid spittle that might briefly blind someone. (They use this to stun bugs.) They are natural thieves and will go after anything shiny - or food.

Career and Backstory

Edi joined Starfleet when it was born in 2161. By that time she was nearly 200 years old and had already been enlisted in Terran exploration services under several names. She had developed a fascination with Terrans since they had begun to explore the stars. She always passed herself off as human though - until the Federation finally encountered El Aurian refugees.

She spent five years 2265-70 as a xeno archaeologist aboard NCC 1701 under the command of James T Kirk. (She had originally met him at the Academy.)

Her last tour was aboard the USS Icarus, a sovereign class vessel. She was present for the initial encounter with Rhand.
