

To,

Dear [name of boyfriend],

I know it is very soon to say this but [boyfriend's name] I think it is time that we should break up. It breaks my heart into a million pieces to say this to you but I don't think there is any other option.

You see when I told my mother about you, first she said it is okay I can do whatever I want but now maybe after she had a talk with my father she is totally against our relationship. My father even said to me that if I wish to continue our relationship he will never ever see my face again. I think all of this happened just because you are of a different caste and religion and I think my family members didn't like it.

We looked so cute together and made such a cute couple but I am afraid this had to end. It was such a beautiful journey with you and I will remember all the things we did together like watching movies, going to the soccer game, and many more things like this.

We also didn't have that flame that every couple should have and I think what happens to us happens for the best. Maybe our destiny is somewhere else and God is just showing us the path. Please don't get me wrong but there I can do it and there is nothing on my hand. I am so sorry for your time loss. I didn't do it intentionally.

You know how much I love my parents and respect each and every single decision they take for me, so I cannot let them down by continuing this relationship. Once again I am so sorry [boyfriend's name] but it's over for me. But if you ever need any help please feel free to contact me, I'm always there to help you out.

Yours kindly,

[Sender's name]
