- Multi-Faceted Cowardice

Background: Charl grew up in a large human city, the bastard child of a Jinx halfling prostitute. There was always something about him that was a bit, off from the other halflings. He was terrified to leave the city, he never understood how to use a sling, and he is just strange. Despite his affinity for animals (Cats follow him sometimes) He hates nature.

Because of his appearance and smell most looking at him assume him to be homeless, this is actually not true. He lives above a tavern in a small apartment he shares with another halfling who might actually be his father (It's Complicated). He works in the tavern killing rats and keeping the place clean. He spends his free time ranging, mostly in the sewers. He is often accompanied by a 3 legged goat with a 4th mechanical leg, her name is Hans Wermhat. Years ago he won an archery contest and got quite a bit of gold from it, after paying tribute to his god on his way home he "found" this 3 legged goat, then he used his prize money to pay/threaten a Gnome into making a mechanical leg for the goat. They have been inseparable ever since.

Family:

Worships: Cayden Cailean

- (Mother devoutly worships Desna) A source of friction at times between the two Has his own handmade Placard of Wisdom

Personal Goals: He has heard about Belts that turn into snakes, staffs that turn into snakes, even a ring that can summon snakes. He thinks if he had those it would make rat catching much easier then he could earn more money.

Secondarily: He would like to buy his mother a house of her own, she lives in a house with a bunch of other ladies and often has to rent her room out for a few hours at a time to strange men. Charl feels like she should have her own house.
