

Buying a house is impossible for the new generation, right? WRONG!

We all heard it. Far too many times.

That the house market is super inflated; that the millennials will rent forever and that it is basically easier to get a medical degree, sooner and probably cheaper!

Landlords rejoice, as it seems every month there is a new reason to raise the rent or look for new tenants.

Every day seems to bring more news about the real estate praises reaching all time high.

While you feel like your savings in comparison are closer to rock bottom.

Time to prove them WRONG.
