Abstract

An English abstract in one paragraph, single-spaced with italic font, between 150-250 words. The abstract should not include the following: (1) the reasons why this research is essential; (2) the objectives of the research, emphasizing the position of the research to explain what it is about to the reader; (3) a brief description of the research methods accompanied by an analysis; and (4) the results of the research and its contribution to Islamic education. The research contributions, especially those significant to Islamic education, should be highlighted to attract readers' interest based on the research results. Researchers may also write about the implications of the research in addition to the contributions mentioned above, while considering the space limitations of the abstract.

Keywords

Just mention specific concepts (words or phrases), 3-5 concepts, and words that are conceptual and not too general, using italics with capital letters at the beginning of each keyword. Example: Education; Multicultural Islam; Religious tolerance; Globalization

Email: email penulis 1, email penulis 2, email penulis 3.

Introduction

Type your text here using Cambria 12pt font, 1.15 spacing, and in a single column. The Introduction contains the background of the problem in the research or research gap, and the position of the research among other studies on related themes to produce research novelty. You should also discuss the relationship between your research and that of other researchers; review the literature, especially the most relevant and recent academic works published in different journals, or find the state of the art. In addition, researchers also need to emphasize the focus of their research.

In the Introduction, you must answer at least two questions: (1) why your research is essential to answer; and (2) how your research relates to previous research, and how your research contributes to the development of future research.

Method

Type your text here using Cambria 12pt font, 1.15 spacing, and in a single column. The method section includes the type of research, research time and location, target/objective, research subjects, procedures, instruments, data analysis techniques, and other matters related to the research method. Target/objective, research subjects, procedures, data and instruments, data collection techniques, data analysis techniques, and other matters related to the research method.

If the article is a review, the author may explain the methods used to obtain the review materials and how they were analyzed. In this subsection, there is no need to define the techniques used in detail; a brief and operational explanation is sufficient so that the methods used are easy to understand.

Results

Type your text here using Cambria 12pt font, 1.15 spacing, and in one column. This subchapter contains the results of the research in the form of data analysis based on the research questions. Each research result must be discussed. The discussion includes interpreting the data or research results, accompanied by comparative theories and/or similar research results.

If the data or research results are in the form of interview descriptions, please include direct quotes from the interview as follows, with a cultural figure from Tengger Village:

> Local culture impacts the spiritual patterns and quality of the community, resulting in harmony, peace, and mutual cooperation (Interview 1, 2022).

Please translate the interview results and include comparative theories from similar or cross-disciplinary research in the same field.

If you need tables, images, or other illustrations, please include them directly in this article, but they must be translated beforehand or afterward. Example of a table:

Table 1. Character education values

Value	Description
Jujur	The ability to convey things as they are without embellishment

One of the values considered necessary to be used as a guideline in life is honesty. Honesty is the ability to convey things as they are without making excuses. The following are some examples:

In this Section, it is possible to add other sections as needed. Sections may consist of several sub-sections, typed in bold and italics, as in the following example:

1. Sub-section as Part of its Parent Section

You do not need to add special rules for typing the body text under the subsection. The body text here is typed like any other body text.

2. Other Sub-sections

Although you may need another subheading under this subsection, it is not recommended. If you do so, the other subheading will be indented into the paragraph as the previous paragraph with bold letters. Example:

Tolerance Values

When adding a subheading from the previous subheading, please use lowercase letters. For example:

a. Mutual Respect (Without Bold)

The following is the paragraph description format If you need a description, then write it inside the.

Discussion

Type your text here using Cambria 12pt font, 1.15 spacing, and in a single column. The discussion section aims to: (1) answer the problem formulation and research or study questions; (2) shows how the findings were obtained or found; (3) interpret the findings; (4) linking research findings or studies with established knowledge structures; and (5) bring up new theories or modifications to existing theories, by comparing the results of previous studies that have been published in reputable journals. In answering the formulation of the problem or research questions, the results of the study must be concluded explicitly regarding previous research. Interpretation of research findings or studies can be done using empirical logic based on existing theories or previous research results in reputable journals both international and national, while findings in the form of reality in the field are integrated or linked to the results of previous studies or with existing theories. For this purpose, the author is required to refer to international journals (Scopus) and national journals (Sinta).

Conclusion

Type your text here using Cambria 12pt font, 1.15 spacing, and in a single column. Briefly describe your research findings or summarize your results in a paragraph, rather than in subchapters or research conclusions. Provide your comments here as a closing statement. This can be the conclusion of your discussion, analysis, and recommendations for further research projects. In this section, you may also acknowledge the individuals and organizations supporting your research.
