

So we're still working very hard to, in terms of education, we have an elementary school here that is challenging, because people in the neighborhood are challenging, so we work to support the education component, you know that the school does, by providing the services that families need in the community, if a child is well-fed, can sleep at night without hearing gunshots, or arguing, or worrying where their parents are, a child is prepared to learn, they're going to do much better.