The Clever Rabbit and the Hungry Lion

One day, in a big forest, there was a hungry lion. He was the king of the jungle and wanted to eat all the animals. The animals were scared, so they made a plan. Every day, one animal would go to the lion as his food. There were 10 animals in the jungle, so in 10 days, all of them would be eaten.

One day, it was the rabbit's turn. The rabbit was small but very clever. He walked slowly to the lion's cave. When the lion saw him, he was angry. "Why are you late?" the lion roared. The rabbit said, "I saw another lion on my way. He said he is the real king!" The lion was confused because he thought he was the only lion in the jungle.

The lion became very angry. "Where is he?" he asked. The rabbit took him to a deep well and said, "Look inside!" The lion looked into the well and saw his own reflection. He thought it was another lion and jumped in to fight. The well was more than 7 meters deep, and the lion could not climb out.

The lion fell into the deep well and could not come out. The rabbit ran back to the other animals and told them the good news. All the animals were happy and thanked the clever rabbit for saving them. Now, they could live peacefully without fear.

The following text is for questions no. 13 to 15.

Coconut Trees

Coconut trees are tall palm trees that grow in tropical regions, especially along coastal areas. They can grow up to 30 meters tall and have long, narrow leaves. The trunk of a coconut tree is smooth and grey, and the tree produces coconuts that grow in clusters at the top. These trees need warm weather, sunlight, and plenty of water to grow well.

Coconuts are very useful. The fruit can be eaten, and its water is a refreshing drink. The flesh inside the coconut is used in many foods and drinks. The leaves of the tree can be used for making baskets and mats, while the shell is sometimes used to make bowls. Coconut trees are important to people in many tropical countries for their various uses.

Scientifically, coconut trees belong to the Arecaceae family, and their scientific name is Cocos nucifera. The coconut's hard outer shell is called the "husk," and it protects the seed inside. Studies have shown that coconut water contains natural electrolytes, which make it a popular drink for hydration.

A mature coconut tree can produce up to 75 coconuts per year, depending on the tree's age and health. The coconut's water contains about 250 milliliters of liquid on average, and a fully grown coconut weighs around 1 to 2 kilograms. Coconut trees have a lifespan of about 60 to 70 years.

13. The text is likely written by a ….

    c. writer
    d. scientist

14. How many coconuts can be produced on average by a coconut tree in two years?
    a. 150
    b. 125
    c. 100
    d. 75

15. What is the benefit of coconut for people?
    a. It makes trees grow taller
    b. It reduces the number of other trees
    c. It changes the weather
    d. It gives food and materials for different uses

The following text is for questions no. 16 to 18.

Air Pollution

Air pollution is a natural phenomenon that can be caused by human activities. It occurs when harmful substances like smoke, dust, and chemicals enter the air. These pollutants can come from factories, cars, and burning fossil fuels. Over time, air pollution can affect the health of people and animals and damage the environment.

The effects of air pollution are seen in many places around the world. It can lead to smog, which makes it hard to breathe, and contribute to global warming by trapping heat in the Earth's atmosphere. Scientists and governments are working together to reduce air pollution by creating cleaner energy sources and setting limits on emissions from vehicles and factories.

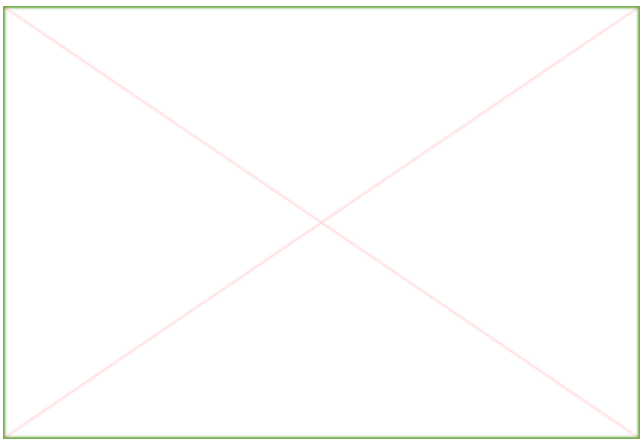

One solution to air pollution is using renewable energy sources, such as wind and solar power, instead of fossil fuels. Another solution is planting more trees, which can absorb carbon dioxide and clean the air. Reducing the number of cars on the road by promoting public transportation or electric vehicles can also help reduce air pollution.

16. After reading the text, readers should NOT ....

The following text is for questions no. 26 to 27.

The cheetah is the fastest land animal, able to run at speeds of 60 to 70 miles per hour (97 to 113 kilometers per hour) in short bursts. With their slim body, long legs, and flexible spine, cheetahs are built for speed. Their sharp claws and special pads help them grip the ground when running fast. However, they can only run at top speed for 20 to 30 seconds, so they rely on a quick and surprise attack to catch their prey.

Cheetahs mainly hunt animals like gazelles and impalas. They use their excellent eyesight to spot prey during the day and chase it down. After a fast chase, they need to rest and recover because it takes a lot of energy. Cheetah populations are at risk due to habitat loss, hunting, and human conflict. Efforts are being made to protect cheetahs and their environment.

26. Pay attention the following statements.
    1) Cheetahs can maintain their top speed for several minutes.
    2) Cheetahs use their excellent eyesight to spot prey during the day.
    3) Cheetahs primarily hunt at night.
    4) Cheetahs can run at speeds of 60 to 70 miles per hour in short bursts.

    Based on the text above, we can conclude that statements ….
    a. 1, 2 and 3 are correct
    b. 1 and 3 are correct
    c. 2 and 4 are correct
    d. 4 is correct

27. Pay attention the following statements.

Firework
By Katy Perry

Do you ever feel like a plastic bag
Drifting through the wind, wanting to start again?
Do you ever feel, feel so paper thin
Like a house of cards, one blow from cavin' in?
Do you ever feel already buried deep?
Six feet under screams, but no one seems to hear a thing
Do you know that there's still a chance for you?
'Cause there's a spark in you

You don't have to feel like a waste of space
You're original, cannot be replaced
If you only knew what the future holds
After a hurricane comes a rainbow
Maybe a reason why all the doors are closed
So you could open one that leads you to the perfect road
Like a lightning bolt, your heart will glow
And when it's time, you'll know

You just gotta ignite the light
And let it shine
Just own the night
Like the Fourth of July

'Cause baby, you're a firework
Come on, show 'em what you're worth
Make 'em go, "Oh, oh, oh"
As you shoot across the sky

C. Essay

Write the correct answer of the following questions.

36. Read the text and answer the questions correctly.

> Once upon a time, an ant and a grasshopper lived in a sunny field. The ant worked hard every day, collecting food for the winter. But the grasshopper spent his time singing, dancing, and having fun.
> One day, winter came, and the grasshopper had no food. He went to the ant and asked for help, but the ant refused. The ant reminded him that he had wasted his time in the summer instead of preparing for winter. The grasshopper felt sorry for his mistake.
> As the winter continued, the ant stayed warm and had plenty to eat, while the grasshopper was cold and hungry. Finally, the ant felt sorry for the grasshopper and shared some food. The grasshopper thanked the ant and promised to work hard in the future.
> From then on, the grasshopper learned that there is a time for work and a time for play. He understood that he needed to prepare for the future and not just rely on others. The ant and the grasshopper became good friends and worked together to get ready for the next winter.

    a. What did the grasshopper always do before he had no food?
    b. What is the moral value of the story?

37. Read the text and answer the questions correctly.

Once upon a time, a kind prince named Raden lived in a kingdom. He married a beautiful princess named Dewi. They were very happy, but the queen, Raden's mother, did not like Dewi. She wanted her son to marry someone else.

One day, while Raden was away, the queen put a spell on Dewi and turned her into a golden snail. She then threw the snail into the river. The poor snail floated away with the water.

A kind old woman who lived by the river found the golden snail. She took it home and kept it in a jar. Every day, something magical happened—when the old woman was away, someone cooked food and cleaned her house. She was very surprised and wanted to know who was helping her.

One day, she pretended to leave but stayed and watched. She saw the golden snail turn into a beautiful woman—Dewi! The old woman broke the spell, and Dewi became human again.

Meanwhile, Raden had been looking for his wife everywhere. He finally found Dewi at the old woman's house. They were very happy to be together again. Raden took Dewi back to the palace, and the queen was punished for her evil deeds. Raden and Dewi lived happily ever after.

a. What is the main idea of the second paragraph?
b. What might have happened if the old woman had not found the golden snail?

38. Read the text and answer the questions correctly.

Sunflowers (Helianthus annuus) are bright yellow flowers that can grow tall and turn toward the sun, a process called heliotropism. They originally came from North America but are now grown all over the world. Sunflowers need plenty of sunlight and well-drained soil to grow well. People plant them for their beauty and their many uses.

Sunflower seeds are very useful. People eat them as snacks or use them to make sunflower oil, which is a healthy cooking oil. After the oil is taken out, the leftover part of the seed is used as animal feed. Because of this, sunflowers are an important crop for farmers.

Besides farming, sunflowers help the environment. Their roots prevent soil from washing away, and they can clean up harmful substances from the ground. Sunflowers also attract bees and butterflies, which are important for nature. Because of their many benefits, sunflowers are both a beautiful and valuable plant.

a. Why can sunflowers help clean the soil?
b. "They originally came from North America but are now grown all over the world".
   The word "They" refers to ….

39. Read the text and answer the questions correctly.

A volcanic eruption occurs when magma from beneath the Earth's surface breaks through the crust, releasing ash, gas, and lava. This happens when pressure builds up in a volcano, causing it to erupt. Volcanic eruptions can be very powerful and destructive, with the potential to cause damage to nearby areas, including towns and cities. They are most common in regions near tectonic plate boundaries, such as the Pacific Ring of Fire.

The effects of volcanic eruptions can be widespread. Lava flows can destroy everything in their path, including homes and crops. Ash clouds can travel long distances, blocking sunlight and causing health problems for people. Volcanic eruptions can also trigger landslides and tsunamis, especially if the eruption occurs under the ocean. The aftermath can include disrupted air travel and damage to the environment.

Despite their dangers, scientists study volcanoes to better understand how eruptions happen and to predict future activity. Early warning systems have been developed to help protect people living near active volcanoes. By being prepared and following safety guidelines, communities can reduce the impact of volcanic eruptions and stay safe.

a. What should readers do to prevent damage from volcanic eruptions?
b. What are the effects of volcanic eruptions mentioned in the text?
