Chiroptera was checked over by the nurses. After giving the antidote, and a few health potions, the emperor recovers quickly. Chiroptera stares as Monstera is shuffled off to the sidelines.

“Congratulations on your graduation, Monstera.” Chiroptera asks, "Who is next?"

Chiroptera looks over the crowd, then to the nurses packing up their tools.

“Peony!” Chiroptera chirps. “You’re on the list today aren’t you?”

“Huh?” Peony pauses.

The nurse watches as Chiroptera extracts a piece of paper from their belongings. The dragon carefully scans the list until it finds Peony. They flip the paper around to show the nurse their name.

“Since you’re here, why not get it out of the way?” Chiroptera chirps at Peony.

“Uhm. Er… Well.” Peony stammers.

The nurses and instructors scatter out of the arena. Leaving Chiroptera and peony standing alone. Chiroptera takes an offensive stance, ready for battle. Peony was taken by surprise by the sudden ambush, prompting her to retreat and voice her protest. Chiroptera narrow their eyes, muscles tense, and they leap forward at the feeling dragon. Peony raises her tail to defend herself, slapping the attacking dragon to the dirt. Chiroptera is sent somersaulting across the floor of the arena.

Chiroptera quickly recovers, rolling back onto their paws. The dragon opens their wings, sending a blast of wind at Peony. Peony braces herself against the forceful gust, her muscles straining as she pushes against the sharp whipping wind. As the wind subsides, she locks eyes with the dragon, sending Chiroptera a nasty glare.

Peony strikes back, unleashing a dazzling burst of shimmering, radiant breath. Chiroptera effortlessly dodges the attack with a graceful twirl. With the spin, Chiroptera's wings create a gust of wind. Peony's shimmering breath is scattered in the windy swirls, cascading around them like a mesmerizing tornado. As the shimmering breath dissipates, leaving sparkles on both of the dragons covered in glitter.

Onlookers gasp and murmur at the captivating golden swirls surrounding the two dragons. Chiroptera smirks at the crows, ignoring Peony. Peony takes advantage of this mistake, and launches herself forward, closing the distance between herself and Chiroptera. With a quick and fluid motion, she raises her clawed hand, its glint catching the sunlight. Before Chiroptera can react, Peony's hand descends, aiming for their chest with deadly precision. The dragon is not able to dodge in time, letting the slash drag across their scales. Chiroptera reels backwards as the new wound begins to bead with blood. Peony wastes no time and presses her advantage, lunging forward again at Chiroptera. Chiroptera is put on the defensive, dodging Peony’s clawed swipes. Peony is relentless in her assault as she aims for another vulnerable spot on Chiroptera's body. Chiroptera skillfully avoids the attack but sacrifices a wing, which leads to another slash across their body from Peony. The attack connects and Peony’s shreds Chiroptera’s leathery wing without issue. Chiroptera lets out a piercing screech as the wing is torn open. She quickly regains her composure and counters with a swift kick aimed at Peony's midsection. Peony is sent rolling backwards from the kick.

Chiroptera growls at Peony. Recoiling their now tattered wing. A clear hole has been torn through the membrane of the appendage. Eliciting gasps from the crowd, as the spectacle captures everyone's attention. Peony's eyes widen in horror as she witnesses the destruction inflicted upon Chiroptera's wing. She rushes forward, apologizes spilling fourth from her mouth.

“I’m so sorry!” Peony cries out.

Nurses rush forward from the sideline to Chiroptera. Quickly tending to the emperor’s wound. Peony is pushed away by the commotion, retreating back into the crowd to find Monstera.