Good morning, Cabin John Cougars! Happy Thursday! This is Mr. Morris with your morning announcements. Black History Month Moment:

To continue the recognition of Black History Month, we wanted to recognize some amazing achievements by African Americans that you may not have known about:

Althea Gibson, a sharecropper's daughter, entered the world of sports when segregation severely limited opportunities for African Americans. She eventually became the first black athlete to cross the color line of international tennis and golf.

On this date February 27th (link to website)

1814: Ludwig van Beethoven's Symphony No. 8 in F major premieres in Vienna.
