

Milestone 12: Set a date for round 2

I am so excited to see that you're moving forward with round 2 of your summit. Know that it will be significantly easier next time around and you're going to see your results grow each and every time.

What I want you to double-check here is that you take what you learned last time and apply it. If you haven't gone through our post-summit reflections, be sure to do that. From there, you can make any shifts you need to make for this round.

Your next milestone will be reached when you create your timeline for round 2. Even if it's a year from now, go ahead and do that to get it on your calendar. And, you might have noticed, that is milestone #1, so we've come full circle and you'll start again at the beginning.

What I want you to know here is that this time will be way easier and less time-intensive for you, but that doesn't mean you should rush the process. Still, give yourself and your speakers that 90-day timeline. You won't regret it.

I want you to celebrate reaching this final milestone by setting even bigger goals for yourself next time. And great work!