The sound of rumbling across the island as the movement of a mass of dinosaurs moved through the tree's and down the dirt path that many had walked prior in the last years, near the pathway a large figure laid resting asleep but was moving around disturbed by the loud noise coming his way. Red eyes slowly opened as a growl left his jaws before his pale brown scales hit the light. There was no sleeping with this much noise but what was causing it. As Reaper finally knocked himself out of his sleep he was quickly caught off guard as pachies and large numbers of birds flew past him with the rumbling sound getting louder and closer to him.

“What in the hell is that sound..” Before Reaper could finish his sentence, large numbers of herbivores and carnivores came down the pathway in a line like a parade , the memory coming back to the large cryolophosaurus. It was the large parade that brought the various species of dinosaurs that got together and celebrated which Reaper never understood and typically ignored it but this time it had interrupted his sleep, with him sitting in the bush watching as many other dinosaur's passed by. Consisting of herbivores, carnivores and even flyers all walking side by side as they conversed with one another , it was a parade for sure but Reaper didn't know how he felt about it with sitting and watching being as close as he would ever get maybe one year he would join in on the fun.
