Free Tutors!

My name is Emily Lee. I am a high school student volunteer from Mission San Jose High School. I'm writing this email to you to introduce the "Young Mentors" program to you and your students. We have actually worked with some of the students from Azevada Elementary in the last couple of years and we would love to continue our program. "Young Mentors" is a volunteer program to tutor students primarily from low-income families who need academic help. As an officer of the "Young Mentors" Program, I have a small team of high school student volunteers from Mission San Jose who are ready to help some of your students. We can cover English, Math, History, and Science from 1st to 8th grade. The tutoring can take place in a public facility, like the public library, Starbucks etc. The tutoring can be one on one or one to a couple depending on the situational need. For more information about the program, please check the following link:

<http://www.worldfamilychildren.org/young-mentors.html>

To actually sign up the program, please fill the form at below:

<http://www.worldfamilychildren.org/parents-request-tutoring-service.html>

This program is sponsored by the World Family Children Foundation, a local nonprofit organization.
