

Undivided

presents:

I'm going back to school!

After summer break, it's time to go back to school.

My school's name is:

When I go to school, some things will be different. My teachers will help me learn what to do.

My teachers' names are:

There will be new friends in my classes.
I can see old friends too, some in my classes and some at lunch or after school. My friend's names are:

At school, I will follow a schedule.

School will begin at:

Lunch will begin at:

I will go home at:

At school, every class has a routine.
When to put away my backpack.
When to sit at my desk. When to work alone or in a group. When to read or take notes. My teacher will explain the routine to our class.

I can ask for help if I forget what to do.
I can raise my hand or talk to an adult.

At school, I learn new things.
Sometimes I understand right away.
Sometimes I don't.
When I don't understand something, I
can say:
"Can you say that again?"
"I need help, please."
"Can you show me another way?"

Going back to school means learning, growing, and having new experiences.

If I feel excited, nervous, or unsure about school, I can talk to:

The end

www.undivided.io

Life-changing support for families raising kids with disabilities