

Chapter 2: What Makes An Effective Teacher	Name: Sophia Tonoyan
Journal Entry #2
What qualities do you think are important for an effective teacher? Which of these qualities do you think you have? Which do you think you need to work on? What factors are motivating you to become an effective teacher?
Examine the topic of this chapter. Before reading the chapter, write about your prior knowledge, understanding, and feelings about the effective qualities of a teacher along with your motivation for becoming a teacher by answering the question above:	After reading the chapter, review your initial response to the above question. How has your knowledge and understanding increased about this topic? What do you feel you still need to learn on your journey to becoming a teacher?
Qualities that I think are important for a teacher are, if they teach well and make sure that their kids understand what they are teaching, if they're kind and understanding with their students and they help their students understand what they don't. I have the qualities of helping people, and being understanding. I think I need to work on being less rough and being more kind. Factors that motivate me to become an effective teacher are working with kids, helping students learn, and teaching and directing children.	After reading the chapter I think what an effective teacher's qualities need to include if they teach good, the way they teach and bond with their students. I think that I have the qualities to entertain and teach my students and have a good connection with them, I also have the qualities of being kind and understanding with my students to help them based on what they need and to make sure they understood the material that was being taught. I think I still need to work on being on time and having material to learn in my class. I also need to work on teaching skills and to make sure I teach good and clear enough to where my students can understand me and what I am instructing.
