

<@Atra> ASKthePCON, what are the steps involved in getting new competitions put together by a JM in a time of clan/house wide comps?

This would work similarly to any other time. We do not mind running singular competitions alongside, overlapping with, or during our major events. We would recommend they stick to smaller scale competitions during this time, however, as larger ones may divide attention too much.

<@Atra> ASKthePCON, I'm an awesome member of CNS and I would love to get involved in summit run projects, is there some organized way to get in on these?

Hey, so if you want to get involved in any summit run projects we do have a form to fill in. That's right released straight off the press just for this question it can be found here:

<https://docs.google.com/forms/d/1j2PKIP-LAsUarEaq2Gp4oglp5aNt-QIZgTAnRtdZjl/viewform>

<@Atra> ASKthePCON, I know I'm awesome, and I want my clan to know I'm awesome, what opportunities are there for me as a resident awesome?

The best way to show you are awesome is by being involved in Clan activities. Participate in competitions and discussions. Ask after ways to help improve the Clan, such as getting involved in Summit-run projects. Additionally, service work as a Magistrate, Shadow Academy Docent, or other Dark Council staff member helps out not only CNS, but the entire DJB, and that is very awesome.

<@Atra> ASKthePCON, so I hear Muz is a resident of the Clan now.. How can I get in on that hot ex-GM action?

You could ask him, but you might die. In all seriousness, Muz is always approachable and frequently appears on IRC and in our G+ Hangouts.

<Jeric>Is there any plans for a clan vendetta/house feud to move the clans fictional backstory along in the near future?

We currently can talk about our plans through May. As mentioned in our report, in April each House will have their own event, and their own stories for those. In May, we will be engaged in a joint event with CSP. After that, we cannot say for certain, however we have a few ideas that we are kicking around, which we will not mention yet.

<Jeric>Why haven't I received alcohol from Sebz yet?

Probably didn't train him well enough? :P

<Rox> What are your battleplan ideas? How can one possibly get involved in the master student program, and would an awesome elder of CNS maybe share some tips?

Battle plans are classified. One can get involved in the MSP by contacting Atra, the Rollmaster. Well, I'm not an Elder in the rank sense, but if you're looking to get ahead, the key is to participate and and get involved in the Clan and Brotherhood. This is really similar to one of the questions Atra asked above.

<Galleros>Just wondering but what are the places you can interact with other Clan Members on Sepros, and is there room for Character Development there?

Sepros is a very sparsely populated world. Aside from the Temples of Orian complex of structures and a couple of mines and military bases, along with a native population we have little contact with, it is almost entirely wild.

As a result, the Clan mostly sticks to the New Sadow Palace, otherwise known as the Temple of Sorrow. It

Also, does vanilla do it for you?

Vanilla is lame?

<James> Would you rather fight 100 duck-sized horses or 1 horse-sized duck?

100 duck-sized horses. It would be a bloodbath.

<Sebz>With the recent polls for battleteam joining, if push comes to shove will you probably open up more battleteams?

Opening new battle teams is something we are seriously considering in the next few weeks, as we carefully monitor interest. It is more complicated than you might think, as we have to ensure that we have enough active membership that we do not detract from current teams and do not open a new team that would be dead. We also have to make sure the interest is there for leaders for these new teams, if we are to open them.

<Sang>What plans do you have for the future development of the Clan and its position within the Brotherhood, especially with the influx of activity and personal investment by members old and new?

Well at the moment we are working on getting stability and activity back on track inside of Naga Sadow, our focus is to continue to progress and help members adapt to the changes that have taken place inside of the Clan. As such we want to expand the presence of Clan Naga Sadow inside of the Brotherhood becoming one of the strongest units in the Brotherhood. With the help of old members and new members alike we will manage to keep up a high standard of activity and work with everyone on the constant expansion and progress of the clan. The objective of the CNS Summit is to provide an awesome experience for our members, to strive to improve that experience, to assist each member in achieving their personal goals in the Dark Brotherhood, and to foster success in the entire Brotherhood.

<Daedric>What is the current state of the joint operation with HSP?

It's in the planning stages. Still shooting for March

<Roxas>Why aren't there more newbies posting on our email threads?!

While we used to use emails a lot more, we have moved slightly away since then with the newer members preferring to use IRC to keep in constant contact, that does not mean they do not read the email threads it just means they prefer communicating on IRC.