

Faculty Survey for EyeRes Q&A

Thank you for sharing about your program! With no in-person interviews and limited opportunities to get to know about each program, at EyeRes, we are providing free resources for applicants to learn more about programs virtually and to help promote your program. Please complete this document and email your response to eyerestools@gmail.com.

Attach any pictures or videos of your program/residents that you want to share alongside your submission. Feel free to insert any links in your responses. For a sample program page, check out this link.

Residency Program:

Contact info (if you'd like this to be publicly available to applicants):

Are there social media accounts you would like to promote?

Are there upcoming residency events (virtual open houses, webinars, etc.)?

What are unique aspects of your program? How would you describe the culture for those who won't be able to rotate in-person? What characteristics make for a successful resident at your institution?

What is the rotation schedule like? Is the pre-lim year integrated? Call schedule?

(Not all programs include this on their website, but if yours does, feel free to leave this blank and we will paste the information in)

Is there an emphasis on research or dedicated time?

Are there programs to promote resident wellness?

Share your general advice for aspiring ophthalmologists in the Class of 2023:

(Optional) With the change in STEP 1 to P/F, how will you be viewing STEP2 scores in the context of the entire application?

Thank You!

Curious how EyeRes differs from what's already out there? Doximity shares great info on fellowship match rates with resident reviews, but it doesn't discuss logistics like STEP or integrated vs joint vs TY years. SF Match covers those logistics, but it doesn't have the qualitative data. Frieda doesn't focus on ophthalmology so the information can be a bit generic. Reddit has historically been very helpful for applicants, but oftentimes it's hard to tell where the information is being sourced from. We have done the research to aggregate all this great, publicly available data to streamline the process for applicants. We would love your support with answering some of the qualitative questions we've had too, and appreciate your time and continued support of us as medical students.
